18 Britons Missing On Amin's Plane

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Eighteen Britons are missing on a flight in President Idi Amin's personal plane in northern Uganda, Radio Uganda said Sunday night. The broadcast monitored here said Amin was directing search operations after flying into the area in another plane. The British citizens were visiting Uganda as Amin's guests for celebrations marking the sixth anniversary of the coup in which he seized power. The group has been visiting national parks in the central African country.

Uganda Radio said the weather was "very bad" when the plane took off Sunday morning from Kabalega National Park to fly to the Kidepo National Park in northeast Uganda near the frontier with the Sudan.

There were reports that the plane carried a crew of four. Amin was at Entebbe airport outside the Ugandan capital of Kampala when he heard the plane was missing, the radio said, and immediately ordered one of his personal helicopters to fly to the area with a rescue team. He then flew there also in another craft, it reported.

The radio did not name the persons aboard the missing plane. A spokesman at the French Embassy in Kampala said Ugandan authorities were making every effort to find the plane.

France has handled British affairs in Uganda since Britain severed diplomatic relations with Amin's regime last July.

Britain broke off relations when Dora Bloch, a woman with British and Israeli citizenship, disappeared after Israeli commandos rescued her. (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 3)

French Archeologist Held By African Rebels Released

PARIS (AP) — French archeologist Francoise Claustre, held hostage by rebels in the African country of Chad for almost three years, and her husband have been freed, the presidential palace announced Sunday night.

A communique said Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi told French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing by telephone at 10:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EST) that the Claustres had been freed and taken to Tripoli, Libya.

In Tripoli, the Arab Revolution News Agency said the Claustres were "in good health." An agency spokesman said details of the release and the couple's return to France would be disclosed at a news conference in the Libyan capital today.

Mrs. Claustre is in her late 30s.

The presidential palace statement said efforts to free the Claustres were given top priority at a secret meeting in Paris last September chaired by Giscard d'Estaing. It reported France began helping the Chad government work out an accommodation with the rebels and also discussed the matter with leaders of Libya, which borders Chad on the north.

Antigovernment rebels captured Mrs. Claustre at a Chad oasis April 21, 1974, along with Frenchman Marc Combes and German Dr. Klaus Staewen and his wife. The rebels demanded a ransom of $4 million in cash, supplies and arms, the release of political prisoners and publication of a manifesto.

Staewen's wife was wounded when they were captured and died. The three other hostages were taken to a hideout in the Tibesti desert. The West German government successfully bargained for the release of Staewen months later, and Combes managed to escape.

An attempt by the French government to free Mrs. Claustre in the summer of 1974 failed when the rebels detained the French negotiator, Commandant Pierre Galopin. They demanded at least $2.2 million be paid but the French government stalled and on April 12, 1975, the rebels announced they had executed Galopin.

Mrs. Claustre's husband, Pierre, went to the rebels' hideout in August, 1976, in an attempt to negotiate his wife's release, but he also was seized and held.

After protracted negotiations, the French government delivered a ransom of more than $800,000 in cash and $1.2 million in medical and other supplies to the rebel headquarters in the fall of 1975.

Mondale Arrives In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale, on the last leg of his 10-day world tour, begins talks today to encourage the Japanese to help stimulate the world economy and to convince them the United States will remain a Pacific power. The vice president arrived in Tokyo on Sunday night after a nearly 20-hour journey from Paris. According to officials traveling with him, Mondale also expects to focus on Japanese concerns about Carter administration policies toward Red China and South Korea.

Mondale planned to meet with Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda during the afternoon, then attend a dinner at the prime minister's residence in the evening. Fukuda, who took office Dec. 2, had previously served as Japan's foreign minister.

U.S.-Japanese relations appear to be good and there are no major differences between the two countries on bilateral issues, American officials traveling with the vice president said. They noted that the most significant aspect of the trip was its timing.

"The fact that the vice president, 11 days after the inauguration, is visiting Japan is obviously the most important fact on this trip," said one official aboard Mondale's plane, Air Force Two. "It demonstrates clearly the President's personal conviction that Japan is of equal importance to the countries in Europe we visited."

Mondale spent last week conferring with leaders in Brussels, Bonn, Rome, London and Paris, before flying to Tokyo by way of Iceland and Alaska. During the Iceland stopover, he talked briefly with Prime Minister Geir Halgrimsson.

Since the end of the Vietnam war, there has been considerable questioning of American resolve to maintain a strong stance in Asia and the Western Pacific. One U.S. source said Mondale's Japan trip would thus serve as "a major symbolic statement that the United States has regained its confidence under new leadership." Japanese officials are believed to be most interested in obtaining assurances from Mondale that they will be brought into international consultations as a full partner.

The 122-foot-long orbiter with its 53-foot-high vertical tail fin and its convoy of security vehicles was expected to attract hundreds of residents as it crept along paved roads on a 90-wheel trailer rig, starting at sunrise.

The convoy was to reach its temporary home at the Dryden Flight Research Center at Edwards by late afternoon.

1.5 Million Out Of Work In Natural Gas Shortage

By The Associated Press
More than 1.5 million persons were out of work as a cold wave continued through the weekend, forcing the closing of factories and businesses and a curtailment of natural gas consumption. At least 45 deaths were blamed on the weather in the nation's eastern and midwestern states. Ohio reported the highest number of workers sent home when plants closed. The state department of community Development said Sunday one million persons, 25 per cent of the state's work force, had been laid off because of the Arctic-like weather. Weather-related deaths from exposure, fires, heart attacks and carbon monoxide poisoning were reported in 10 states and 16 persons were missing in the ruin of a burned out hotel in Breckinridge, Minn. Workmen were trying to dig through the still smoking rubble.

Temperatures near or below zero combined with winds of 25 to 40 miles an hour along the north Atlantic Coast, the Great Lakes, the upper Mississippi Valley and the northern Plains. Wind-chill factors of 60 below zero or more were common across portions of Minnesota and the Dakotas early in the weekend. Although temperatures eased upward Sunday into the teens and 20s in the northern parts of the East, little relief from the cold weather was forecast for the rest of the weekend, and unseasonably cold temperatures were expected through today. Freezing rain mixed with snow fell from Texas across the Southeast as afternoon temperatures ranged from highs in the upper 20s to the upper 30s on Sunday. New gas shutoffs in New York state were expected to more than double the 100,000 (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 4)

Policemen Ride Snowmobiles To Chase Looters

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Scores of businesses, homes and stalled vehicles were looted over the weekend by thieves taking advantage of the blizzard, police said.

Fifty-nine persons were arraigned on Sunday by City Court Judge Samuel L. Green. Most were jailed in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Police used borrowed snowmobiles and four-wheel drive vehicles to respond to complaints but said they found it hard to stop the hit-and-run looters.

One witness said thieves ignored police warning shots and continued to raid vehicles abandoned in the snow-clogged roads.

Another person said a gang of 50 youths was looting stalled tractor-trailer trucks, using sleds and wagons to haul off the booty.

"They stripped Ben's Furniture and Appliances clean," one policeman said.

"They are hitting everywhere. We can't keep up with them in this weather with all the other problems," he said.

Thieves broke a front window at Howard Jewelers Inc. on Main Street and escaped with an undetermined amount of money, diamonds, watches and other jewelry, police said.

Drug stores, bakeries, a camera store and a car dealership were other targets reported on the police radio.

"We've had so many cars and trucks hit, we are not even keeping count any more," one officer said.

"They got a truckload of cigarettes, a liquor truck, dozens of Citizens Band radios. (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 7)

Turn Thermostats Down To 50 Degrees —Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wearing a sweater and long underwear, President Carter toured a chilly, partially shut-down factory near Pittsburgh Sunday to emphasize the nation's deep-freeze energy crisis. He called upon Americans to make even greater sacrifices to ease the fuel shortage.

Carter urged persons with fireplaces to burn logs, turn their thermostats as low as 50 degrees and follow his long-underwear-and-sweater example. He called on businesses and institutions to switch to a four-day work week of 10 hours each day, saying it's more energy efficient.

At the Pennsylvania turbine plant and in a wide-ranging conversation with reporters on his return trip to Washington, Carter said he wants authority to take natural gas away from industries that employ few persons and make non-crucial products and allocate it to industries that employ many persons and make more essential goods.

He promised a comprehensive energy policy by April 20. He said he would telephone and meet with Congressional committee chairmen later in the day and today to discuss amendments, if any seem advisable, to his emergency energy legislation before Congress. The legislation would permit Carter to direct the distribution of natural gas from areas with abundant reserves to areas where shortages exist.

One such amendment might be the authority to allocate natural gas among industries, Carter said. "I would like to have it on a multistate basis," he said. "Also the authority to authorize governors such as Milton Shapp (of Pennsylvania), Jay Rockefeller (of West Virginia) and Hugh Carey (of New York) to do the allocating within the states."

The President said he is hopeful that his legislation will be approved Monday or Tuesday.

Carter flew by helicopter to Pittsburgh shortly after breakfast and rode by car to the East Pittsburgh Westinghouse plant, which manufactures turbines for electrical power plants. He spent nearly an hour at the plant talking to about two dozen workers. (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 5)

Blizzard-Stricken Buffalo Begins Digging Out; 8 Dead

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — With federal help on the way, Gov. Hugh Carey flew to this blizzard-stricken city Sunday to coordinate efforts to open the streets and return thousands of stranded residents to their homes.

As Carey arrived, Buffalo was still being lashed by fierce winds two days after the blizzard hit.

Carey said eight persons died in the storm, including seven found in stranded cars.

"The streets are still a total disaster, but they're working to get them clear as fast as they can," said Rob Nett, a member of the Erie County sheriff's volunteer patrol. "It's terrible. The winds are still continuing and there's a lot of people stranded yet."

President Carter declared a state of emergency over the weekend for Buffalo and Erie County and three surrounding counties. The declaration makes federal aid available to them.

The blizzard lasted from Friday afternoon through Saturday morning, and was the worst storm of the worst winter in the history of Buffalo, meteorologists said.

Snow-clearing efforts were stalled in many places by abandoned cars and some motorists who decided to drive around sightseeing, said a spokesman for the Streets Sanitation Department.

"We can fight the snow but we can't fight the cars," he said.

Buffalo, which normally gets about 44 inches of snow by this time of year, has received 153 inches.

Although only four inches of snow fell during the blizzard, winds of up to 75 miles per hour whipped much of the 37 inches still on the ground from the previous storms into the air.

Many businesses had let workers out early, but the storm struck with such ferocity that thousands had to return to offices and factories to spend the night. Some were not able to leave until Sunday.

About 3,000 persons had to (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 8)

Couple Ends 16-Year Marriage To Obtain State Medical Care

WHITING, Ind. (AP) — Kurt and Karen Benninghoff have called it quits after 16 years of marriage, their divorce saving them from almost certain bankruptcy because of mounting medical bills to treat Mrs. Benninghoff's multiple sclerosis.

The ordeal that began last May ended earlier this week when Judge James J. Richards of Hammond granted the divorce he had refused to approve last summer.

The divorce means the state will pay for Mrs. Benninghoff's treatment.

Medical care for Mrs. Benninghoff — victimized by the disease 10 years ago — and her two sick children amounts to about $1,300 monthly. But her husband's $13,000 a year job as a meter reader for Northern Indiana Public Service Co. makes the family ineligible for Medicaid, officials said.

Last May, Mrs. Benninghoff was moved to Med Inn in Munster where round-the-clock medical attention is given. A short time later, the couple's health insurance ran out.

Benninghoff said his wife's hospitalization comes to about $500 more than he earns monthly. He said he owes more than $8,000 in back medical bills plus a $2,000 mortgage.

He said bankruptcy is inevitable.

Richards refused to grant the divorce the first time, ruling that state Welfare Department regulations discriminated against Mrs. Benninghoff because she was married. He ordered the state to begin making payments.

The Indiana Supreme Court disagreed, however, siding with the welfare department which had argued that a judge had no right to create special exceptions to department rules.

Welfare officials said Benninghoff could either divorce his wife or surrender all but $400 of his monthly paycheck to the welfare department.

WEATHER SLOWS TRUCKER SLOWDOWN

BREEZEWOOD, Pa. (AP) — The weather that has blocked roads throughout the eastern half of the nation has forced postponement in many states of a truckers' slowdown to protest the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit.

"It's senseless. Face it — you're lucky if you can travel 40 miles an hour on a lot of those roads," said Grace Shepherd, secretary of the Pennsylvania chapter of the Independent Truckers Association and wife of ITA's national vice president.

However, she said groups in states where roads were still said officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The reusable orbiter craft is designed to be fired into space by disposable rockets, carry out scientific or technological work in orbit, then soar back home through the earth's atmosphere without power and land like a glider.

Testing will begin Feb. 18. At first, the craft will be attached piggy-back atop a Boeing 747 jumbo jet. In this pilotless setup, the two mated aircraft will roll along the desert airstrip in taxi tests, then go aloft in a series of "captive" flight trials "just to see how the 747 handles with that big glob on the top," said Donald K. Slayton, veteran NASA astronaut who is in charge of the approach and landing tests.

The first manned flight in which the orbiter will be released from the carrier plane to swoop down for a landing is scheduled for July 22.

Most of the tests will be run with a streamlined cone in place over the giant rocket nozzles that extend from the tail of the shuttle's fuselage. The shield was designed to prevent buffeting by the wind that could make the jumbo jet unstable.

Crews for the tests have been training on jet airplanes modified to behave the way the gliding orbiter will act. Only one of the pilots — Fred Haise, 42 — has flown in space.

The other three test pilots are Charles G. Fullerton, Joe Engle and Richard H. Truly. They will not necessarily pilot the shuttle on its first flight into space, scheduled for 1979.

In guiding the shuttle orbiter to a landing — it touches down on wheels like an airplane landing gear — the pilots will be aided by a highly sophisticated computer system. There are four computers on board, and if necessary the entire landing can be carried out by an automatic pilot, Slayton said.

Today's big moving job was contracted to a Los Angeles firm that in the past has hauled massive fuel tanks for the Saturn rocket used in many U.S. launches and anti-pollution units for a copper mine in Arizona. Both those loads outweigh the shuttle.

Lee Bisson of Contractors Cargo said he believes this would be the "most expensive load ever carried in the history of trucking." Value of the craft alone is hard to determine, but one figure NASA has given is $500 million.

NEWS BRIEFS

Claudine To Be Sentenced Today

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Singer Andy Williams plans to be with ex-wife Claudine Longet as she is sentenced today for killing her lover, ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, an attorney says.

"Andy will definitely be here," Charles V. Weedman said over the weekend. Williams, a television and recording star was in this Rocky Mountain ski resort for several days of Miss Longet's two-week trial which ended Jan. 14.

Williams and Miss Longet have remained friends since their divorce in 1975.

A 12-member jury convicted Miss Longet of criminally negligent homicide, a misdemeanor, rather than the felony charge of reckless manslaughter sought by the prosecution.

Weedman, from Los Angeles, said one sentence suggested by a probation officer that would keep Miss Longet in prison for a term of consecutive days would be "very onerous" but has not bothered Miss Longet because it is only a recommendation.

Three Killed In Oregon Fire

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — A prominent Medford businessman, his son and another youth died early Sunday when fire swept through their home.

His wife and the couple's other three children escaped. Killed in the blaze were C.A. "Chuck" Boiler, 49; his son, Joseph, 13, and his son's friend, Alex Steiner, 13, who was spending the night at the Boiler's home.

The fire was reported at 2:20 a.m. Boiler's body was found in the kitchen. Investigators said he apparently had been attempting to rescue the two 13-year-olds when he was overcome by smoke.

Boiler, an insurance agent, was president of the Rogue Valley Country Club and was active in many civic and charitable organizations.

FV Man Dies Scuba Diving

HUNTINGTON BEACH — William L. Vaughn, 36, of 11808 Zircon Ct., Fountain Valley, Sunday, was pronounced dead on arrival at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital here after suffering a heart attack during a scuba-diving outing, the coroner reported.

A harbor department spokesman said Vaughn was on the surface off Sunset Beach near an oil island when he suffered the attack. Efforts by companions, a passing boatman, a harbor patrol crew and paramedics were of no avail, officials said.

Police Cadet Jailed For Joyride

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — A young San Francisco police cadet was jailed here after a car assigned to chief Charles Gain's staff was commandeered from a police parking garage, then wrecked in an apparent oceanfront joy ride, authorities said. The 17-year-old cadet, part of a program for aspirants to police work who are too young for the police academy, was booked at the Marin County juvenile bureau on an auto theft charge.

As fate would have it, the cadet's latest assignment was the auto theft detail.

His two companions, aged 16 and 17, were booked for auto theft and released following the Friday incident.

GI Exposed To Nerve Gas Better

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A soldier who accidentally inhaled a nerve gas at Dugway Proving Ground was reported in much better condition Sunday night and "no longer hallucinating," a nursing supervisor said.

Spec. 5 Ronald Mutchko's condition was upgraded by doctors to fair from serious, but he remained in the hospital's intensive care unit, said Ann Johnson, night supervisor at the University of Utah Medical Center.

Mutchko was hospitalized on Thursday after being exposed to the chemical warfare agent BZ at the Army base southeast of Salt Lake City.

Driver Of Stolen Car Critical

SANTA ANA — A driver suffered critical injuries here Sunday morning when the westbound stolen vehicle crashed through a guard rail and sailed off the McFadden Avenue bridge onto the Santa Ana River bottom, police reported.

Officers identified the driver as Frederick Charles Oelkers, 18, of 1230 S. King St., Santa Ana, and said he was given emergency treatment at Fountain Valley Community Hospital for a fractured skull, a compound fracture of a thigh, a broken right arm and a mangled hand. He later was transferred, police said, to the jail ward at UCI Medical Center.

The car was a total loss, police said.

Redford Wins NY Critics' Award

Miss Taylor, who has gone into semi-retirement since her marriage to former Secretary of the Navy John Warner, told Redford, "I can't go back to Washington unless I get your autograph for my daughters, my secretary, John's daughters and John's secretary."

Other winners of the Film Critics' award who attended the dinner at Sardi's included Jason Robards, Jr., best supporting actor for "All the President's Men"; Robert DeNiro, best actor for "Taxi Driver"; and Paddy Chayefsky, best writer for "Network."

Second Lockheed Trial Begins

TOKYO (AP) — A second group of defendants indicted in connection with the Lockheed payoff scandal went on trial today at the Tokyo District Court.

The eight defendants are former Transport Minister Tomisaburo Hashimoto, 75; former Parliamentary Transport Vice Minister Takayuki Sato, 48; Tokuji Wakasa, chairman of All Nippon Airways (ANA), and five other ANA executives.

Former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was in the first group at a trial that opened last Thursday. Those being tried with him are his secretary and three executives of Marubeni, a major trading company and promotion agent for Lockheed in Japan.

Adamson To Resume Testimony

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Confessed slayer John Harvey Adamson is scheduled to resume testimony this morning in a preliminary hearing for two suspects in the car-bomb murder of Phoenix newsman Don Bolles.

Adamson, 33, testified for three days last week in the hearing for Phoenix contractor Max Dunlap, 47, and suburban Chandler, Ariz. plumber Jimmy Robison, 54, who were arrested Jan. 15 on charges of first-degree murder and conspiracy in the June slaying of the Arizona Republic reporter.

Adamson pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in exchange for his testimony against others implicated in the case. Under the plea-bargaining agreement, he will serve at least 20 years in prison.

Searchers Dig For Bodies In Hotel's Rubble

BRECKENRIDGE, Minn. (AP) — Searchers looking for the bodies of 16 persons believed killed in a hotel fire got a break from the weather Sunday after two days of battling subzero temperatures, severe winds and heavy smoke.

High winds had swirled smoke in the hotel's basement, making it hard for workmen to see what they were doing, said Rusty Tallman, an assistant state fire marshal. The operator of a crane lifting rubble "had no way in the world of knowing what he was getting hold of," he said.

But Sunday was clear and winds had slackened as the clean-up effort resumed.

Authorities speculate 16 died when a savage fire struck the 67-year-old Stratford Hotel about 5 a.m. Friday.

One guest, Douglas Johnson, 41, Aberdeen, S.D., survived by using a ladder placed under his smoke-filled second-story window.

Neither Johnson nor fire fighters heard cries for help from other guests. Authorities speculated they died of asphyxiation. No bodies had been recovered by midday Sunday.

Cause of the fire which leveled the three-story building has not been determined.

Tons of brick and the roof of the structure fell into its basement. Sporadic fires broke out early Sunday as security guards stood watch.

Firemen pumped more than a million gallons of water onto the blaze, said fire chief Dick Johnson.

Some water, several feet deep in the basement, was pumped out.

However, overnight temperatures which had reached 20 below zero, and daytime highs of around zero, combined with a brutal wind gusting from 25 to 40 miles per hour to create a wind chill factor of 60 to 70 below zero.

Frozen debris, ice and heavy smoke harassed searchers for two days. Sunday broke clear and cold, about zero, but with gentler winds as workers resumed their search.

"We've got to cool it (the fire) down, but we don't want to spray any more water in there than we have to," Thompson said.

"It will freeze and it could be spring before we get the bodies all out of there."

Mayor Hugh Mikkelsen said: "If we find any bodies Sunday, the pathologist won't begin the task of identifying bodies until 8 a.m. Monday."

A morgue was to be set up in a local funeral home.

sengers of a commercial jetliner hijacked by pro-Palestinian guerrillas and held at Entebbe.

Mrs. Bloch had been hospitalized in Kampala before the rescue was made and British authorities charged that Ugandan police killed her in revenge for the Israeli operation.

In London, Henry Ritchie, chairman of the British Farmers Union in the Essex region, said those on the excursion to Uganda included 72-year-old Lady Judith Listowel, a biographer of Amin; two Scottish bagpipers; the chairman of the Essex Agricultural Society; other Essex farmers and their relatives; and a former RAF pilot who helped train Ugandan pilots last summer in Scotland.

Other sources said those on the trip included the wives of at least three farmers and at least two children.

It was not known if all those who went on the trip were on the plane when it disappeared.

Lady Listowel had frequently reported on Africa for the British Broadcasting Corp. Her marriage with the Earl of Listowel was dissolved in 1945.

A diplomatic source in Kampala contacted by telephone said, "We do not know whether the plane has crashed or simply been forced into an emergency landing because of bad weather."

The area where the aircraft disappeared is some 700 miles north of Kampala. It is rugged and desolate bush country, sparsely inhabited and with virtually no communications with Kampala or any other Ugandan town.

It is a two-day drive from the capital along rough dirt roads.

BRAKES FAIL — Ski patrol members use a sled to carry skier with broken ankle to aid station after an automatic brake on a chair lift at Jiminy Peak near Hancock, Mass., failed to engage Sunday. Six skiers were hospitalized and dozens of others suffered minor injuries when they jumped from the aerial lift when it started to slide backwards.

Blustery Winds, Cold Hamper Rescues In Rural W. Virginia

KINGWOOD, W.Va. (AP) — Blustery winds and extreme cold played havoc on Sunday with attempts to rescue people and farm animals from Preston County's snowed-in back country.

"It's a devil of a mess," said Rich Wolfe, the county's emergency services director. Preston County, a plateau region bordering Pennsylvania and Maryland, had its biggest snowfall in years this winter. At Terra Alta, 167 inches fell, 100 of them this month.

Because of high winds and the county's altitude, drifts as high as 18 feet cover portions of many secondary roads, Wolfe said.

Three days ago, bulldozers and other heavy equipment were making progress opening roads, but Friday's new snow and winds changed that, officials said. Nearly all secondary roads were closed and most of highways accommodated one-way traffic.

"One of the big problems now is getting supplies in to people," Wolfe said. "We can't get in to some places with Gamma-Goats (six wheel-drive Army vehicles) or even the snowmobiles. The next alternative is to try and get them out."

A temporary shelter was set up this weekend at a grade school near Terra Alta, but Wolfe said no one had taken advantage of it. "They're going to stay with friends and neighbors," he said.

Gov. Jay Rockefeller toured the area in a Jeep on Saturday. "I wanted to see how people are coping in rural, isolated areas," he said. He visited a number of isolated homes and was shown the road situation.

"I'm really impressed at the way the Department of Natural Resources people, the National Guard, and the state Department of Highways are working together," Rockefeller said. The National Guard has 45 men, mostly heavy equipment operators, at work in the county.

The Guard's helicopter was used Saturday to pick up a teen-age farm worker whose father had died in nearby Oakland, Md.

And Department of Natural Resources officers waded through snow three feet deep to a farmhouse to rescue a 2-year-old who was ill. He was taken to the nearest passable road, where rescuers ran into a traffic jam. Finally, state police transported the baby to a hospital at Morgantown.

Although technically a part-time worker, Wolfe said he has found his job suddenly "more than fulltime." "We just all work together. You just keep rolling along."

Set Thermostats To 50

Carter chose a helicopter for the 170-mile surprise trip to Pittsburgh because it uses less fuel than Air Force One.

After a bumpy ride that left Carter slightly queasy, the President directed the helicopter pilot to fly over the Monongahela Valley, packed with industry and homes.

He told the group at Westinghouse about the empty parking lots he saw around closed churches and praised Pennsylvania for closing all of its schools — tax-supported and private.

The plant, chosen for Carter's visit because of its energy-saving record, canceled its last two shifts Friday. It will continue operating with reduced shifts, but on Sunday the cavernous factory was quiet.

Carter told the knot of workers: "I'm wearing heavy underwear." There was a chuckle. "The White House is cold inside," the President said.

He said his wife "shed a few tears" when he ordered that White House thermostats be lowered to 65 degrees — in keeping with his request last week that all American households set their thermostats at that setting. Now, Carter said, his family is used to it. He assured one worker that the natural gas shortage in the area is real. At the same time, he promised to investigate the accuracy of energy company reports about their reserves and to "make sure there is no possibility for companies to get windfall profits" because of the fuel crisis.

Carter said the administration is trying to provide aid to the poor and elderly during the crisis and preparing for possible flooding after the ice and snow melt in the spring.

The name Ohio is probably derived from Iroquois words meaning "fair and beautiful river."

Congress To Work On Gas Rationing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bitter weather and fuel emergency dominates Congress this week as both chambers work on legislation to give President Carter the natural gas rationing authority he seeks.

Votes may come in the House and Senate by Tuesday. The House Commerce Committee planned to finish work on its version today so that leaders could schedule it for handling under expedite procedures Tuesday.

The corresponding measure is already on the Senate floor, but faces a series of attempts to amend it. Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said he would try to bring it to a vote today, but the odds appeared against action that fast.

Carter's energy chief, James R. Schlesinger, earlier pleaded for passage of the measure without major change so that Carter could act quickly to control gas supplies in hard-hit states where nearly one-half million workers have been idled by shutdown, many schools are closed and, Schlesinger has said, heating supplies for residences may be threatened if the cold continues.

Urging Congress to act immediately on the stopgap bill, the new administration has promised to submit longer-range legislation to increase energy supplies by April 30.

Both chambers have internal problems to cope with after disposing of the energy legislation.

The House may vote Wednesday on a resolution recreating its special committee to investigate the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. Controversies have arisen about the committee's staff, proposed methods of operation and budget. Richard Sprague, who was the committee's counsel, has insisted it requires $6.5 million for the first year to conduct a proper investigation.

The Senate will probably return later in the week to a proposal for drastic overhauling of its committee system and jurisdiction.

The House Ways and Means Committee begins Wednesday to consider the tax aspects of Carter's $31.2 billion, two-year economic stimulation package. First witnesses will be Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, Budget Director Thomas "Bert" Lance and Charles Schultze, chairman of the council of Economic Advisers.

ply arms, as the rebels had demanded, following a threat by the Chad government to break diplomatic relations over the issue. Chad is ruled by a nine-member military council under the presidency of Gen. Felix Malloum, who took power in April, 1975.

The Claustres languished in the remote desert compound, subsisting on a diet of camel meat, fruits and vegetables.

Last November hopes were raised that the Claustres would be freed soon when the antigovernment Chad Liberation Front (FROLINAT) said the rebels who had captured them had deserted their leader, Hissen Habre, and the Claustres were under FROLINAT control.

FROLINAT leader Abba Sidik had frequently denounced Habre for not releasing the Claustres.

But the Claustres remained in captivity.

There have been several televised interviews with Mrs. Claustre in captivity. More than two years after her capture she told one interviewer she was so despondent about ever being freed that she had contemplated suicide.

French public reaction was at fever pitch immediately after her capture, and demands were heard for months that the French government send troops to free her. But the tempest gradually subsided as the months and years passed.

stereos, whatever was in the vehicles," he said.

Even the fire department was hit. Looters entered Squad 8's stalled station wagon and made off with medical supplies and other items, officials said.

"They hit so many houses I can't even add them all up," one policeman said. Front windows were smashed or doors forced to enter most of the looted businesses and homes, police said.

They are expected to face questioning on Carter's decision to rely heavily the first year on a tax rebate and other payments so that nearly everyone in the country would receive $50, rather than on more permanent tax changes, especially those encouraging business expansion and investment.

and not be treated to surprise moves such as Henry A. Kissinger's first trip to Peking in 1971 and soybean embargoes which the United States imposed without advance notice. "What Japan wants to hear is that we aren't going to send them any shockers and we will be consulting them on major global issues," one source said.

Expansion of the Japanese economy fell sharply from an annual rate of 13.4 per cent in the first quarter of 1976 to a disappointing 1.3 per cent rate of increase by the third quarter, ending in September. Some economists doubt whether the official growth estimate of 5.6 per cent for the fiscal year which ends in March can be attained.

"My guess is that the Japanese will say to the vice president the best thing for the Japanese economy is a resurgent America," said one U.S. official.

Fukuda's economic stimulation package would pump into the Japanese economy the equivalent of about 1 per cent of the Gross National Product — a similar percentage of the GNP as Carter's $30 billion tax and public works program will cost.

American officials have predicted the Japanese economic plan would produce a growth rate of 6 to 7 per cent — slightly higher than that forecast for the United States — and would stimulate economic conditions beyond Japanese shores.

Two-way trade between the United States and Japan currently runs at about $25 billion annually. Mondale is expected to urge the Japanese to make it easier for U.S. businessmen to gain export markets for American goods within Japan.

The issue of U.S. troops in South Korea was raised frequently by Carter during the presidential campaign, and he promised a phased withdrawal of the 33,000 ground troops there.

"The Koreans are watching this trip very, very anxiously," said one official, who said Seoul had been assured "this is not a trip to cut a deal behind Korea's back."

A spokesman said the vice president had not been invited to South Korea and an official said no visit to Korea was planned.

More than 7,500 persons were without electricity this weekend due to wind-felled power lines. But a spokesman for the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. said Sunday that service to most customers had been restored.

The New York State Thruway remained closed from Rochester to the Pennsylvania line Sunday, a distance of 140 miles.

A spokesman for the Thruway Authority said crews were having difficulty clearing the highway due to the blowing snow.

SA Investigator Accidentally Kills Himself

BREA — Veteran Santa Ana police investigator Leroy L. (Skip) Lynn, was fatally wounded in the abdomen at his home here Sunday in what appeared to be an accidental discharge of his service revolver, the coroner said.

Officials said Lynn's wife heard a shot and rushed to the garage where she found him lying on the floor with the weapon nearby. On an adjacent bench, the coroner said, were the holster for the .38 caliber weapon, and materials used in cleaning the weapon, including a brush and rags.

A Santa Ana police spokesman said Lynn had been with the department for about 10 years and his latest assignment had been with the juvenile division.

Funeral Set Today For Freddie Prinze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Family members and close friends planned to gather today to say goodbye to Freddie Prinze, who brought laughter to millions but could not cope with the sorrow in his personal life.

A small funeral was scheduled at 12:30 p.m. PST for the talented young comedian who shot himself in the head Friday. He left a suicide note explaining he couldn't "take it anymore," said police Lt. Dan Cooke.

Friends said Prinze, who was to be buried at Old North Church of Forest Lawn, was just too young to cope with the pressures of stardom.

James Komack, executive producer of the "Chico and the Man" television series that made Prinze a star, said Prinze was "the most gifted entertainer of his time" but was uncomfortable in the real world.

"Unfortunately, he had to grow up in the glare of the public spotlight and everything he did while approaching maturity was magnified," said Komack, who hired Prinze for the show when he was just 19. If Prinze had been older when he reached stardom, Komack said, "he would have been sure enough and seasoned enough to look at the world properly."

But Prinze was 22 and he had to cope with the recent breakup of a marriage to a woman he loved, the problems of trying to free himself from a contract with a manager with whom he had signed at 19 and the concern over an impending trial on charges of driving under the influence of drugs.

Johnny Carson, host of the "Tonight" show where Komack spotted Prinze, said the young actor "had tremendous talent. The sadness is always magnified when someone so young finds the pressures intolerable."

Said one friend, who asked not to be identified: "People don't seem to be able to understand that you can be talented, good-looking, healthy, that you could have fame and fortune and still have a problem."

The friend said Prinze had not been joking early Friday when he pulled the trigger, to the horror of his business agent who looked on. "It wasn't a fun-and-games kind of thing," the friend said. Prinze had just been visited by his psychiatrist and secretary, then telephoned his parents and estranged wife, Katherine Cochrane, 26. It was after speaking to her that he fired the gun, sending the fatal bullet through his head.

Doctors struggled to save him for 33 hours while the family and a few close friends, including entertainer Tony Orlando, held a vigil at UCLA Medical Center.

Young Takes Oath As U.N. Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Young, a Democratic congressman from Georgia and a leader of the civil rights movement in the 1960s, took the oath of office Sunday as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

President Carter called him the best public servant he has ever known.

Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, whom Young first met when his fifth-grade civics teacher took him to hear Marshall plead a case as a lawyer in New Orleans, administered the oath. The ceremony, in the East Room of the White House, was attended by at least as many blacks as whites.

Among the guests were tennis star Arthur Ashe; Coretta Scott King, widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King; Calvin Hill.

There was sustained applause when Young and his wife entered, prompting Carter to say: "I may have made the wrong choice. This is the first Cabinet officer who has gotten more applause than the President."

Becoming serious, the President praised Young as a "very rare combination of inner-strength and quiet self-assurance... Of all the people I've ever known in public service, Andy Young is the best."

DRUMMER JOSEPH COCHRANE IS SOLE SURVIVOR OF RARE BLOOD CONDITION
Four Other Known Victims All Died — He Once Was Pronounced Dead, Too

Drummer Gets The Beat On Rare Blood Ailment

BOSTON (AP) — Professional drummer Joseph Cochrane is back at work at weddings, tapping out the beat for waltzes and polkas. Doctors won a six-year medical battle to keep him alive.

The tall, burly musician at 53 is the sole known survivor of a blood condition thought to have affected only four others in the world.

Beginning in 1971, the Boston native was admitted to Massachusetts General Hospital 17 times when his blood pressure dipped so low it sent his body into shock. His illness baffled researchers for years.

Doctors at Massachusetts General said in this month's issue of MGH News they have pinpointed the cause of the mysterious ailment that left Cochrane bedridden for months at a time. And they said they have a treatment for the sickness.

Dr. Newton E. Hyslop, immunologist in charge of Cochrane's case, said the drummer goes into shock — a condition that often follows crushing injuries or major surgery — when his blood's serum content leaks out of capillaries and into muscle tissue.

Triggered by an unusually high degree of clotting ability, the condition causes vessels to collapse and blood pressure to fall, they said. Circulation is cut off to vital organs, a prelude to death.

Hyslop prescribed an oral blood thinner for Cochrane in August 1975 that has returned the patient's clotting level to normal and almost stopped his attacks. He suffered only two minor episodes in 1976.

Cochrane, who has played with some of the best jazz and Dixieland bands, hardly noticed his first attack. He thought he had a bad virus cold until one day he felt so weak he couldn't get out of bed.

Twinges and aches followed and he soon lost consciousness. His wife, Mary, called an ambulance that rushed him to the hospital.

"One doctor pronounced me dead for eight minutes," said Cochrane, who now stays within an hour of the hospital. "It's just like a feeling of being out of your body, like being in a dark place."

Doctors listed his illness as "pneumonia with complications" but wondered why he had gone into shock so suddenly. A full year went by until Cochrane suffered another attack. Once again he was saved.

Then, six months later, the drummer had his worst episode. His heart stopped 12 times and he went into cardiac and respiratory arrest.

Doctors and nurses took turns applying manual pressure to his chest throughout the night to keep his heart beating.

"One nurse kept beating me until her wrists grew sore," he said. "They broke all the ribs in my thorax trying to keep me alive."

Cochrane, connected to a respirator, hovered between life and death for months while researchers analyzed his blood, looking in vain for tumors, allergies or glandular disorder.

The drummer became a devout Catholic during his years of waiting. "You can't lose hope. Reading the Bible helped me accept sickness and suffering."

"If the doctors had given up, I wouldn't be here today. But I'm feeling better now than I have for years," Cochrane said as he tapped out a lively beat. "Someone was on my side."

Dr. Hyslop said the drummer's case, said the drummer goes into shock — a condition that often follows crushing injuries or major surgery

'A Star,' 'Network,' 'Rocky' Win Golden Globe Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbra Streisand was the big winner in a rainbow of categories, but tears were shed at the annual Golden Globes awards as Peter Finch was named best actor posthumously.

The Globes, presented Saturday night by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, are the first of the major movie awards of the season. Often they serve as a precursor of winners of the annual Academy Awards.

Amid applause, Miss Streisand walked to the stage three times. The Brooklynborn personality was a producer, an honor she shared with boyfriend Jon Peters, when she accepted a globe for "A Star Is Born," named best comedy or musical film.

Then as a lyricist, she again stepped to podium to share songwriting's top honor with lyricist Paul Williams for penning "Evergreen," which was featured in the same film.

And Miss Streisand was named best actress for her starring role in "Star."

The movie was "the most painful, the most difficult, and yet the most rewarding film experience I've had. It was a picture about and for love, and tonight I feel so much of it," she said.

The same film also won Kris Kristofferson a globe as best actor in a comedy or musical.

Actor Michael Murphy accepted Finch's award for best actor in a drama. The British-born performer, who died of a heart attack two weeks ago, played a deranged television newscaster in the film, "Network."

Murphy thanked the foreign press "for singling out one of the greatest actors of all time."

Faye Dunaway, who played a power-hungry rising network executive in the film, was named best actress in a drama.

"Network" also won awards for best screenplay by Paddy Chayefsky and best direction by Sidney Lumet.

But "Network" lost out as best picture to "Rocky," a low budget story of the rise of a boxer.

50,000 In India Join Anti-Gandhi Rally

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 50,000 persons turned out on Sunday for the first opposition rally permitted by the government in 19 months of emergency rule as active political campaigning began for the March parliamentary elections.

"I never expected the turnout to be so great," former Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai told the rally, which was organized on two days' notice with little publicity. "It shows that the spirit of the people is still alive."

Reports reaching New Delhi said the newly formed Janata (People's) party headed by Desai also held rallies in four other Indian cities — Jaipur, Patna, Kanpur and Bombay — to kick off the campaign against Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party, which has ruled India since independence in 1947.

The Congress party has not yet formally begun its campaign, although Mrs. Gandhi's controversial son, Sanjay, has been barnstorming the country attacking the Janata party, which was formed last week through the merger of four non-Communist opposition groups.

The rally in New Delhi was considered the most significant because it was held on the same site — the spacious Ram Lila grounds — where the last opposition public meeting took place on June 25, 1975. A few hours afterward, the government proclaimed an emergency, suspended civil liberties, jailed opposition leaders and imposed press censorship.

The 1975 rally, also attended by about 50,000 persons, was dominated by calls by opposition leaders for Mrs. Gandhi to resign following her conviction on charges of corrupt electoral practices in winning her Parliament seat in the 1971 elections.

Sunday's rally was marked by repeated pleas to Indian voters to overcome what Desai described as an atmosphere of fear created during the emergency.

"The people have to come out of this shell of fear or else they will become slaves of the present regime," he said. "Even during the British era we had not witnessed the atmosphere of fear we are witnessing today."

"You have to face this fear with boldness and courage," Desai told the crowd, reminding them of the teachings of independence leader Mohandas Gandhi, who was assassinated 29 years ago to the day.

Wearing the traditional white cap of the movement which led to India's independence and wrapped in a shawl to protect himself against the chilly weather, Desai told the crowd to stop cheering him as he was introduced.

"Shouts will not do," he said. "You have to bring victory to the Janata party. Only then you can cheer."

Draft Resisters Plan D.C. Protest

TORONTO (AP) — More than 300 U.S. draft resisters and deserters from as far away as Sweden and France met here this weekend and denounced President Carter's amnesty program.

Steve Grossman, an organizer of the conference, said some of the war resisters would travel to Washington for a 10-day vigil and fast beginning Tuesday to dramatize their opposition to the Carter plan. It offers pardons to almost all Vietnam war-era draft evaders but not to deserters.

Tom Nagel, a deserter who has lived in Paris for four years, said the meeting "proves there is universal support for full amnesty. We'll force Carter to give it to us."

Grossman repeated the complaint of many expatriates that most draft evaders were white and middle class and that poorer, less-schooled youths who objected to the war resisted only at the last moment by becoming deserters.

"There are 30,000 military deserters still subject to arrest and some 792,000 Vietnam veterans who received less-than-honorable discharges that prevent them from getting jobs, veteran benefits, loans or insurance," said Grossman. He is the publisher of Amex-Canada, a periodical for American war resisters.

Grossman said the Washington demonstration would focus on the plight of veterans with less-than-honorable discharges. Supporters of full amnesty say many veterans received bad-conduct, undesirable or other less-than-honorable discharges because of antiwar activities.

Grossman and the other Americans at the meeting did not give their hometowns.

It was not clear how many, if any, deserters would risk arrest by going to Washington for the demonstration.

Carter has asked the Defense Department to study the deserter situation and the possibility of upgrading some less-than-honorable discharges.

Although he is covered by the Carter pardon, Joe Jones, a draft evader living in Vancouver, B.C., said he would continue to work for full amnesty. "You're happy for yourself, but you know the situation hasn't really been taken care of," he said.

"It's time to stick together and continue to fight for unconditional amnesty for all war resisters," said Jack Colhoun, a deserter and editor of Amex-Canada.

Grossman is from Chicago and Colhoun is a native of Philadelphia.

Dave Minugh, formerly of Carle Place, N.Y., said the planned Washington protest could be compared to the 1932 Bonus March by World War I veterans demanding immediate payment of war bonuses.

REVEREND HAS ANSWERS FOR NO-CHURCH EXCUSES

TOLLAND, Conn. (AP) — The Rev. Bob Tallent had heard enough of the flimsy excuses people use to avoid going to church. So with tongue slightly in cheek he had an ambulance standing by and a couple of hard hats available at "No Excuse" services Sunday.

They were for those who had warned him of heart attacks or a falling roof if they ventured out to church.

And there was more — objects laid out near the pulpit at the First Baptist Church symbolizing other often-used excuses. It looked almost like a rummage sale — parishioners contributed the items.

There was a vacuum cleaner

for the women who work all week then say they can't go to church because they have to clean the house. For the Sunday shoppers, there was a bag of groceries. There were fishing poles for those who enjoy ice fishing, hockey sticks and golf clubs. An alarm clock for the late riser.

The all-time excuse was a bed for the late sleepers.

He said attendance was up by 20 per cent and included 25 persons who are not regular parishioners.

The ambulance gimmick paid off for one person. It got the driver to church. He conceded he hadn't attended services in a year.

Appeals Court Overturns Award in Age Bias Case

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal appeals court, reversing a $550,000 judgment against Exxon Corp., says employers guilty of age discrimination cannot be punished for the emotional distress they cause.

The court said if older workers knew they could get huge awards from sympathetic juries, they wouldn't bother using administrative procedures designed by Congress to settle grievances out of court.

The ruling was made public Sunday by attorneys in the case tried in February 1975 in federal court here. The reversal was issued last week by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

The decision voided a $550,000 award to the estate of Dilworth T. Rogers, a Summit, N.J., scientist who accused his superiors at Exxon of hounding him into early retirement at the age 60 to replace him with a younger, lower salaried worker.

The suit was filed in 1971, but Rogers died in 1973, two years before the case came to trial. His wife Gladys was named as the plaintiff on behalf of his estate.

At a 13-day trial, witnesses said Rogers was forced out of the company by being given jobs requiring him to stand for hours.

Testimony revealed one Exxon executive had said, "The budget is tight and therefore in order to get some of the money we need we're going to take it out of the hides of the older employees."

After deliberating for a brief time, the jury awarded Mrs. Rogers $750,000.

U.S. District Judge Herbert J. Stern cut the award to $550,000 several weeks later. The appeals court said he should have abolished it entirely.

"In this case, the jury's award for pain and suffering is more a condemnation of defendant's activity than a measurement of the actual distress attributable to treatment by the company," the court said.

The court said the 1967 age discrimination law specified complaints should be first taken to the Labor Department and state civil rights agencies.

Aspin Says House Plans Effort To Establish Intelligence Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a watchdog panel already functioning in the Senate, a fresh effort is scheduled to be made today to give the House a role in overseeing U.S. government intelligence operations.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said

he would introduce a resolution to create a permanent intelligence committee as a counterpart to the Senate committee established last spring.

A similar proposal in the House last year failed after a special House committee, investigating abuses by the CIA and other intelligence-gathering agencies, suffered severe embarrassment because of unauthorized disclosures of its findings.

Aspin, a sponsor of last year's bill, took note of criticism that a permanent intelligence committee might only increase the likelihood of government secrets being leaked. However, he said such fears have been dispelled by the Senate panel's success in avoiding such problems.

The extent of House support for a permanent committee is unclear, but there appears to be little enthusiasm anywhere on Capitol Hill for a joint committee, sometimes suggested as a possible alternative to having separate panels with largely duplicated responsibilities in each house.

The joint committee concept is preferred by many intelligence officials, who argue that it would limit the number of individuals with access to sensitive or classified data, and would require less time to be spent giving briefings or testifying in hearings.

Aspin said he felt that with a lessening of the furor over the abuses exposed last year, the time has come for "systematic oversight" of the intelligence community.

"With a fulltime committee and staff keeping watch over the intelligence flock, it is less likely that the kinds of abuses exposed will recur," he said.

As is the case with the Senate committee, Aspin's proposed House panel could not declassify information over the President's objections, but would be empowered to refer disputes over declassification to the full House, which would have final say.

Neither would it be able to approve or reject covert operations, but as in the case of the Senate, agency heads would be expected to keep the panel "fully and currently informed" about continuing and anticipated operations.

The House committee would authorize appropriations for all intelligence agencies and the intelligence-gathering functions of other agencies, with exclusive jurisdiction over the CIA.

WHIPLASH AND SPORT - LASH OFTEN HAVE DELAYED EFFECTS

Symptoms and Their Meanings With...

Dr. A.N. Burpee, D.C.

Q: Doctor, I never believed in a whiplash until I had one. Now, I'm wondering, will I ever get over it?

A: This is so often the case. A person who does not believe in the dynamics of a whiplash-type injury will often take a light view of his problems following an accident. This attitude can postpone proper examination and treatment allowing the condition to set up problems they are seemingly impossible to overcome.

Q: I was examined by one Doctor and he said I wasn't injured while another Doctor examined me and said I had a whiplash - why the difference?

A: Many doctors are interested only in bone fractures, contusions and lacerations - actually, those things that demand immediate attention. The underlying "unseen" damage of a whiplash injury may not be their concern due to their limited emergency room practice or their lack of treating facilities that such injuries require. The Doctor of Chiropractic is the best suited specialist in treating this type of injury.

Q: After an accident, how long should one wait to be examined by a good Chiropractor?

A: Our suggestion is that you make an appointment for examination and Spinal Stress X-rays at least within 48 hours after an accident. Sometimes even more immediate attention is suggested. At any rate, this is a problem that should not be put off for two reasons: 1. The first six weeks following a whiplash is considered the "Golden Age of Treatment" and prevents the greatest amount of permanent damage. 2. Whiplash injuries are often deceptive and do not create immediate symptoms. Sometimes it is weeks, months or years before the full problems appear.

Q: Can I get a whiplash-type injury in any other way besides an auto accident?

A: You most certainly can. Here are a few ways: Falls, hitting the head on overhead structures, near falls, assaults, skiing or water skiing, wrestling, etc. Any of these injuries bear checking out because so often, much damage takes place and accumulates builds a vicious health problem long before the pain is pronounced. DO YOU HAVE A QUESTION?

Call the Chiropractic Care and Information Bureau, 836-1190, and ask to speak to a Doctor of Chiropractic. Treated daily at Burpee Chiropractic Offices are injuries resulting from home, work, auto or sports accidents and spinal related health problems as headaches, neck, shoulder and arm pains, chest and stomach pain, and low back, hip and leg pains and sciatica. GOP to Work On Rebuilding Local Support WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Republicans lose a presidential election, GOP leaders talk about rebuilding the party. New GOP chairman Bill Brock says this time the Republicans mean it.

The effort will begin by "re-storing and rebuilding our basic organizational structure in the 50 states and their individual districts and communities," he said.

"That's where we start," he said. "That's our most important priority right now. That's where we're going to start because we have allowed that base to erode in the last few years to the point where we simply must rebuild it."

Brock said it is essential to elect state legislators, sheriffs and mayors, aldermen and commissioners. Even a strong losing effort will develop experience for candidates and party workers, he said.

Many local offices have fallen to the Democrats in recent years, Brock noted in an interview. Unless GOP candidates win local office, he said, the party cannot build "the candidate pool from which we draw candidates for governor, for House and senate seats."

"We must have candidates in these legislative districts," Brock said. "Some of them won't win, but the experience they gain will be enormous. The volunteers they attract will be vital to our broader efforts."

Brock perhaps understands the problem better than most. An ex-senator from Tennessee and once a symbol of the Republican revival in the South, he lost his job last fall to James Sasser, a Democrat making his first race.

Brock said he hopes to spend $1.7 million a year training and deploying professional organizers to the states.

In addition to the presidency, Democrats hold 2-to-1 majorities in Congress and 38 of the 50 governorships. They also dominate many state legislatures, city halls and county courthouses.

Brock said he also hopes to find leadership posts for blacks, women, ethnic minorities and others who he says may feel lost or neglected in the Democratic party.

"I have and will continue to have very strong black advice, to be very sure that their needs are encompassed in the program," he said.

"We're going to try to create in the community an understanding of the tremendous contribution that blacks can make to this party," Brock said.

"We're going to try to do the same thing for people who work — the hourly workers, the blue-collar workers," he said. "We're going to try to do the same for women, for the ethnic voters, Hispanics or Cubans or Poles or whatever, by setting our machinery here and our field program up in such a fashion as to encourage the community organizations that we support to reach out and bring people in."

Grandmother From Long Beach Wins Mrs. America Contest

MRS. JAMES JOHNSON

A Long Beach housewife and grandmother is the new Mrs. America. MRS. JAMES B. JOHNSON, 47, was selected by a panel of judges that included BARRON HILTON of the Hilton Hotels Corp., DR. JOYCE BROTHERS, former Olympic great JESSE OWENS and CHRYSTIE JENNER, wife of 1976 Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner. Mrs. Johnson is the mother of three children and has one grandchild. The contest was conducted under rules similar to those used in the Miss America pageant, but the contestants representing the 50 states also had to demonstrate their homemaking ability.

OTIS SIMMONS, the Alabama derelict who won a court fight Jan. 10 to prevent amputation of his gangrene-infected feet, was reported Sunday in stable condition. "We are treating him aggressively with antibiotics," said a spokesman for Roosevelt Hospital in New York. Doctors, however, continue to believe the infected parts of his feet will drop off, as three of his fingers did after a similar experience in Detroit in 1968.

NICOLE BARRETT, the 20-year-old girl friend of executed killer Gary Gilmore, has been released from the house and playing with his children until he was freed at 21. The rancher treated the slave "like his own son," Smith recalled.

English revolutionary ROSE DUGDALE and EDDIE GALLAGHER, imprisoned in Ireland, want to get married, officials say in Dublin. Officials declined comment Sunday on the request, but, said one, "The applications are being studied." Dr. Dugdale, 36, is serving nine years in Utah State Hospital, a spokesman said this weekend. Mrs. Barrett, divorced and the mother of two, was committed to the mental institution Dec. 3 by her mother. That was two weeks after she had taken an overdose of drugs in her apartment, the same day Gilmore was taken from the Utah State Prison to University of Utah Medical Center because of an overdose of drugs.

CHARLIE SMITH experienced events portrayed last week in the television series based on Alex Haley's book "Roots." Smith, 134, was 12, living in an African port when he was shipped to New Orleans and sold to a Texas rancher named Charles Smith. "I know what it was like 'cause I was there," Smith said in Barton, Fla. He said he remained with the Texas rancher, living in his Limerick prison for masterminding an art robbery and hijacking a helicopter for outlawed Irish Republican Army. Gallagher, 28, was sentenced to 20 years in Portlaoise prison for kidnaping a Dutch industrialist as ransom for Dr. Dugdale's release. Dr. Dugdale bore Gallagher's son in Limerick two years ago. He has never seen the youngster.

Canadian ballet star KAREN KAIN and FRANK AUGUSTYN left for home Sunday after a three-week tour of four Soviet cities. The two told reporters before leaving they got a standing ovation from over 1,000 fans after their final performance Friday in Kiev. Miss Kain and Augustyn, leading dancers of the Canadian National Ballet, performed Giselle at Moscow's Bolshoi Theater, and with the local companies in Tallinn, Volnius and Kiev.

Let Us Help

....A father discovers his adolescent daughter is experimenting with drugs. He doesn't know what to do.
....A lonely wife sobs into a pillow. Her marriage is breaking up. Her elderly parents have become a burden. She can't cope.
....A middle-aged man with a good job shakes uncontrollably as he reaches for a bottle of booze. He tried to stop drinking, but failed.

These scenes are common everyday experiences. All of us have problems and we search for their solutions. Sometimes we succeed. Other times we can't. Then we need professional help. Where to find this help can become a problem. PROBLEM TALK SHOP helps people find answers to their problems.

PROBLEM TALK SHOPS are free counseling and referral services located in Orange County.

PROBLEM TALK SHOPS are here to offer you help through counseling and referral. There is no charge for our service to you. We refer to both public and private agencies in Orange County. Facilities to care for individuals are available on a 24-hour basis. That means we can help you whenever you need help. Appointments are not necessary. If you prefer to make an appointment, day and evening hours are available. (Office hours: 8:30 a.m. — 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. In extreme emergencies, a counselor can be reached after 5:00 p.m., and on weekends.)

Let Us Help With:

Crisis Intervention — When a problem is so big or complex that you are unable to see alternatives, talking with a professional may help.

Marital Discord — A counselor helps establish a starting point and guidance for husband and wife.

Adolescent Problems — The years 14 through 18 are trying for the young person as well as his parents, learning to communicate is one of the basic steps a counselor can help bring about.

Single Parent Problems — The single parent may often feel ignored in a couple-oriented society. Trying to be two people, mother and father, can be too difficult for one person to handle.

Geriatric Problems — Sometimes a senior citizen parent needs tender loving care away from the family, specialized nursing care, or a place to live with others near his or her own age, and the children who make these decisions must learn how to cope with their feelings of guilt.

Alcohol and Drug Problems — More and more people are becoming dependent on alcohol and other drugs. Specialized medical care and a treatment program are needed.

Individual Psychiatric Problems — Sometimes we feel that our world is caving in on us. Tension, anxiety, and fear may keep us from coping effectively with everyday life. Psychiatric help may be your first step toward healthy living.

Austerity Curtails Italian Living Scale

ROME (AP) — The Italian love for fast cars, good food and holidays is slowly adjusting to economic reality under the six-month-old austerity government of Premier Giulio Andreotti. 8

Italy's problems are not small ones. In 1976 it had an inflation rate of 22 per cent, a foreign trade deficit of almost $5 billion, unemployment estimated at 7 per cent in a work force of 20 million, industrial stagnation and a slide of almost one-third in the value of the lira.

When he visited Rome last week, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said he was encouraged by the progress being made in dealing with the country's economic crisis.

His visit coincided with a breakthrough agreement between industrialists and Italy's powerful labor unions to reduce the cost of labor, a prime condition set by the International Monetary Fund for granting Italy a $500 million loan. The labor pact was hammered out after weeks of bargaining and government pressure.

Andreotti's minority Christian Democrat government remains in power only through the tacit cooperation of the Communists and other leftists. The left's only major criticism has been that not everyone is being asked to sacrifice and that perhaps austerity is not yet severe enough.

But the belt-tightening being asked of the people is beginning to take its toll on daily life in subtle yet significant ways.

The car owner has been hit hardest by austerity, putting the brakes on a love affair that has transformed a motorbike society of 20 years ago into one in which there is a car for every four people.

Gas prices were hiked 25 per cent in October to 500 lire per liter — to $2.16 from $1.73 a gallon. This is expected to raise $1.1 billion for the hard-pressed national treasury and cut down on expensive oil imports by discouraging consumption.

Gasoline use dropped 7 per cent in November and again in December, showing that at least some Italians gave up their cherished Sunday drives into the country and dependence on the family car to go to and from work.

To discourage luxury car sales yearly road taxes were cut for small cars but raised for bigger models. The tax for a Mercedes 300D, for example, quintupled to $640. Government officials are talking about further curbs on the car owner, including gasoline rationing and partial bans on Sunday and holiday driving.

Italian eating habits are also under pressure, and that's a real blow in a country where everything stops for three hours at midday to allow time for a two-plate meal and trimmings.

The Italian Chamber of Commerce estimates that the economic squeeze has already forced families to cut back by as much as 20 per cent on the amount they spend on food.

Because beef is the second biggest import item next to oil, the government is looking for ways to cut down meat consumption. Tentative plans have been announced to buy 40,000 tons of frozen beef from other Common Market countries and to ban the sale of fresh meat one week each month.

But the Italian palate is accustomed to fresh meat and vegetables bought the day they are cooked, and many Italian households don't have freezers.

Working habits are also changing. The unions reluctantly agreed to work seven holidays this year, breaking up the 17-day holiday feast that is the biggest in the industrialized world. Thousands of workers habitually "bridged" their midweek holidays to the weekend, creating minivacations.

In the heat of the economic crisis last fall, the government managed to divert cost-of-living wage hikes into government bonds for those making more than $9,200 a year.

But the unions are determined to avoid a repetition of that, and last week they won a promise from Andreotti not to touch the cost-of-living mechanism again. The unions reciprocated with a break for industrialists — pensions and separation pay will no longer be covered by the automatic cost-of-living hikes. This will save industry an estimated 5 per cent on labor costs this year.

Postal, electric, railroad and telephone rates have been increased to help those services pay for themselves.

In a newspaper interview this week, Andreotti returned to the theme he sounds every chance he gets to address the Italian people:

"Families are being called on to limit their consumption, to keep their spending within their means.... Everybody must unite in the effort, accepting his own share of sacrifices."

LÓS ANGELES (AP) — In an age of rockets to the moon, a trip across the United States in a hot air balloon might not seem like much of an adventure. And there is a routine side to it, says Karl Thomas.

"I'll go up and let the wind take me east for about 10 or 12 hours, then I'll come down and refuel and go up again," said the 28-year-old adventurer.

But Thomas knows the journey is potentially dangerous, and that's why he's going to have a crew of 18 following on the ground; why he's taking along a parachute; why he'll wear arctic clothing for sub-zero temperatures, and why he plans to enjoy the entire trip immensely.

The Ford Motor Co. is sponsoring the 2,600-mile cross-country trip, as Thomas, from Flint, Mich., tries to set a record of better than 41 days. Ford's sponsorship doesn't insure success, he said.

Asked Thomas: "If it was easy, why hasn't it been done by more people? Why are balloons considered so dangerous?"

Thomas should know better than to try something foolhardy. He has a master's degree in clinical psychology and was a practicing psychologist for five months, "until I realized that I hated the patients. I found only one difference between patients and psychologists: sometimes the patients get well."

So he opted for a life in the air. He already was a pilot, so he bought a small airport, business boomed, and "I grossed $4 million one year." Then he formed an adventurer's club and decided to try something that hadn't been done: cross the Atlantic on a balloon.

The try nearly ended in tragedy.

"On the morning of the second day, I noticed a storm ahead. Lots of lightning. I took the balloon down to try to get under it, but it was no use. I had to make a decision: stay with the balloon or ditch. Thunderstorms will rip up a balloon, but before I could decide what to do, the gondola flipped and most of my gear went into the ocean."

"So I jumped." Four days later, weak, hungry, with three broken ribs and a punctured lung, he was rescued from his life raft by a Russian freighter.

"Was it worth it?" he repeated a question. "Absolutely! It was an experience I wouldn't want to go through again, but I wouldn't trade it for anything. I've always felt I had the ability to survive anything, and this gave me a chance to prove myself to myself."

Publisher Malcolm Forbes set the record of 41 days from coast to coast in a hot-air balloon, but Thomas said he can make it in as few as 12 days, no more than 18. Organization is the key, he said.

"My crew is gearing up to follow me wherever the balloon goes," he said. "If I come down on top of a mountain, I want them there, so I'm not stuck in a tree for a couple of days."

The balloon lifts off Monday evening from Santa Anita race track and will cover a zig-zag course, avoiding mountains, over Phoenix, Rosewell, N.M., Dallas, Jackson, Miss., and he'll wind up in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Italian Offers Lottery To Cut Workers' Absenteeism

SANT'ILARIO D'ENZA, Italy (AP) — The owner of a local firm has set up a lottery among his workers in an effort to reduce absenteeism, a major plague of Italian industry. So far, he says, it has cut work days lost by more than 50 per cent.

Giuseppe Rocchi, owner of the Icca container plant here, announced the plan last April, saying everyone who missed no more than one day of work during the rest of the year would be eligible for a year-end drawing for $1,200.

Rosaria Varesi, a 50-year-old widow and mother of a grown son, won the prize in the drawing earlier this month.

She was one of 30 employees eligible.

The lottery drew bitter criticisms by union officials. They called it "paternalistic and discriminatory." Even the local manufacturers association called it an example not to be followed.

Rocchi remains enthusiastic about his idea and plans to continue the lottery once a year, perhaps with higher bonuses to be split among several "good" workers. He said absenteeism had been running 18-20 per cent of the work force but has dropped to 8-9 per cent since the lottery was begun.

"Certainly the lottery is not our only effort for reducing absenteeism in our firm. We are also pursuing prevention of labor accidents and labor diseases. However, the lottery is helping us a lot and is the antiabsenteeism measure which has worked best," Rocchi said.

Mrs. Varesi had lost several working days because of sickness prior to the lottery. She said, however, it was not her bad will but bad luck and bad health.

The lottery was open to all the 180 white and blue collar employees of Icca in this town near Reggio Emilia.

"No doubt the lottery was successful," one local union official said. "In current times of austerity, one million lire ($1,200) are useful to everybody. But the employers, and the workers, must understand the causes and solutions for absenteeism are different."

"It was an Italian-style solution in absence of stiffer laws against absenteeism. It is the traditional Italian art of getting along. But it is not a solution of the problem, which must be political," an official of the Milan manufacturers association said.

Absenteeism has risen as high as 25 per cent daily in the big Italian industrial companies during recent years, chiefly because a law prevents physical checks for workers staying home.

FDA May Require Bubble Bath Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of injuries associated with bubble baths, the Food and Drug Administration has proposed requiring consumer warning labels on the soap.

Sherwin Gardner, acting FDA commissioner, said the number of adverse reactions to bubble baths remains high, despite a 1971 FDA request that manufacturers remove all harsh ingredients.

"The Food and Drug Administration has received many complaints from consumers and physicians about adverse reactions from bubble baths," Gardner said. "The reactions range from rashes and itching to injuries to the urinary tract, bladder and kidney, and genital disorders, particularly in girls."

"Other reports are of eye irritation and respiratory disorders," he continued. "Many of these reactions required medical attention."

In a 1974 survey, FDA said it found the rate of adverse reactions to bubble baths was 14 per 10,000 product uses, compared with a 6.9 rate for all cosmetics.

Consumers spent $41.2 million on bubble baths in 1975, up

42 per cent from 1971 figures, the agency said.

The FDA proposes that each bubble bath product carry this statement:

"Caution — use only as directed. Excessive use or prolonged exposure may cause irritation to skin and urinary tract. Discontinue use if rash, redness or itching occur. Consult your physician if irritation persists. Keep out of reach of children."

For powdered bubble bath, the FDA proposes adding an additional cautionary statement, saying: "Avoid inhalation of dust to prevent respiratory discomfort."

"The cautionary label we are proposing will alert consumers to the potential for these reactions," Gardner said. "We hope this caution label will reduce misuse of bubble baths and lower the number of injuries to consumers."

Chimp Won't Let Scientist Lie, Especially When It Involves Food

ATLANTA (AP) — Honesty is always the best policy — especially when you're dealing with a "talking" chimpanzee.

Lana, 6, is part of a language project at Emory University's Yerkes Primate Center. Scientists have taught her to "converse" with humans through a computer.

In a recent experiment, researcher Tim Gill tried to lie to the chimp.

He substituted cabbage for Lana's favorite monkey chow in the machine that rewards her when she punches out a request for food on the computer keyboard.

"Chow in machine," she asked Gill on the computer. (In the computerized language she punches, the question mark comes before the sentence.)

"Yes," Gill lied.

"No chow in machine," said Lana.

"What in machine," Gill asked.

"Cabbage in machine," Lana said. "You move cabbage out of machine."

"Yes," said Gill, removing the cabbage and replacing it with monkey chow.

"Please machine give piece of chow," Lana instructed the machine repeatedly until she had all the chow.

Gill, a Georgia State University doctoral student who has worked on the language project for several years, says he and others "talk" to Lana with the help of a computerized language system, using a kind of talk named "Yerkish" after the primate center.

Since chimps lack the vocal chord structure to speak, Lana presses large keys on the machine to indicate certain words and phrases.

"These experiments clearly demonstrate that Lana is operating in a domain once held exclusive to man, that of language," Gill said of the experiment which was begun in 1972 by Dr. Duane M.umbaugh, a Georgia State psychologist.

Gill said Lana also has performed other things during the experiment which she had not done before. In one case she asked that an unwanted item be removed from a dispenser that gives her food and other items.

Another time, Gill said, he put water in her milk dispenser and "she indicated in Yerkish and in a number of other ways (facial expressions) that she didn't like it."

Waldheim Fears New Mideast War In 2 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Sunday that he feared war would break out in the Middle East within two years unless there was a negotiating breakthrough with the Arabs and Israelis this year.

Waldheim was interviewed on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program one day before starting a two-week trip to Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Israel aimed at reviving the 1973 Geneva Peace Conference.

He said both the Arabs and Israelis showed readiness to resume negotiations and both were interested in getting a lasting settlement.

"I have the firm impression that the Arab governments are ready to accept the existence of Israel and, in an overall settlement, to recognize Israel," he added.

Among diplomats at the United Nations, Arab refusal to grant Israel formal diplomatic recognition has been considered one obstacle to a settlement, like Israel's reluctance to give up all or nearly all the territory of Egypt, Jordan and Syria occupied in Arab-Israeli wars.

"I'm afraid that if we are unable to achieve a breakthrough in the negotiating process this year, then we will have war in the Middle East in two years' time," Waldheim said.

He noted that there was talk of setting up a Palestinian state in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Israel has declined to accept any Palestinian state not linked with Jordan, but Jordan has agreed with other Arabs that the PLO should have an independent state.

Waldheim conferred in Washington on Friday with U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who will visit the Middle East after him.

Waldheim also commented on Rhodesia and Cyprus during the television program.

Pope Defends His Stand Against Women Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI defended on Sunday his stand against the ordination of women Sunday, telling Roman Catholic women they can still occupy first place in charity and social fields.

He told a crowd of several thousand in St. Peter's square there must continue to be a division of functions within the Catholic church.

Woman was exhorted "to carry out, with a new conscience and increased strength her mission of piety, wisdom and virtue of love that made herself, like Mary, teacher and queen."

Pope Paul's comments were an apparent answer to critics of a document issued Thursday by the Vatican Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith reaffirming the ban on priestly ordination of women. The document was issued on the Pope's orders.

The world leader of Roman Catholicism said the woman priest has been made "unduly fastidious by some forms of unmoderate feminism."

"The true reason (for the ban)," the 79-year-old pontiff said, "is that Christ, by giving the church its fundamental constitution, its theological anthropology — always followed by the tradition of the church itself — has established the rule."

"In a choir of human voices," the Pope said, "there are the tenor and the soprano...It is not a preference for one and a wrongdoing for the other but an order based on the essence of the person who makes it (the choir)..."

The document of the Congregation of the Faith, the Pope said, has given "a negative solution to the question which has become pressing in these last years, regarding the admission of women to priesthood."

This document, the Pope said, "deserves to be known even if it does not say nothing new."

The 6,000-word declaration noted that Christ was and remains a man and his apostles, all men, chose other men as their successors. Quoting St. Thomas Aquinas, it said a priest must bear a "natural resemblance" to Christ.

"Modern seminism, even that healthy and religious (kind) to which goes our respect and favor," the Pope said, "insistently demands an explanation for this inequality between man and woman."

"Why only men and not also women can be invested with priesthood? We can reply quickly: the disparity of functions does not mean a diversity of dignity in the objective order of grace and, as a result, a reduction in the hierarchy of charity, where woman — and Mary is an example — can occupy a first active place in the exercise of so many virtues...such as in the charity and social fields."

"Let us invite women, even in untying this knot made unduly fastidious by some forms of unmoderate feminism, to understand how the church does not intend to emarginate her precious function in the integral design of God's kingdom and even in the temporal kingdom," the Pope said.

Dead Horse, Alaska, Gets Mail — Finally

DEAD HORSE, Alaska (AP) — The mail must get through even for the 40 residents of Dead Horse, Alaska, the U.S. Postal Service has decided.

The townspeople complained that packages and mail heavier than 13 ounces had been marked "Return to sender" for some months. The packages, including Christmas gifts bearing first-class postage, were returned without explanation by Alaska National Bank of the North, the postal contractor for Dead Horse.

"We can't even order our groceries," said Mrs. James Childs. Dead Horse has no store and groceries are ordered by mail using a two-pound catalogue, she said.

"I contacted postal officials in Fairbanks and they couldn't give an answer. I even called the postmaster in Washington, D.C., but I could get no explanation," she said.

The problem was caused by a misunderstanding on the part of the Dead Horse mail contractor, officials said.

The Post Office contract with the Dead Horse agent requires the delivery of all "priority mail" and that can weigh up to 70 pounds, said Bill Kobis, director of customer service in Anchorage.

Vatican Priest Gives Up Faith Weds Girl, 26

TURIN, Italy (AP) — A prelate and Vatican diplomat has resigned from the papal diplomatic corps and married a Colombian woman in a civil wedding because he says "I no longer believe in this church."

The priest, Bernardo Arduino, disclosed the rare defection from the specially trained Vatican diplomatic corps in an interview appearing in Turin's daily La Stampa. Arduino, 41, until recently was secretary to the papal nuncio or envoy in Bogota, Colombia.

"For personal and family reasons, after long reflection, I notify you with my irrevocable renunciation of the diplomatic service and to any other post in the employment of the Holy See," Arduino said he told Pope Paul VI's secretariat in a letter Jan. 13.

He said he sent the letter shortly after being informed he was about to be transferred to the politically sensitive post of Lisbon, Portugal.

As to his status as a priest, Arduino said he would not seek the church's permission to be reduced to a lay state and lifted of the moral obligations deriving from the chastity vow he took when he was ordained 15 years ago.

"I already told my bishop I need nothing from the church because I no longer believe in the church," Arduino said. "It is up to the church to do whatever they deem necessary."

Arduino was interviewed in his native town of Laigueglia, a seaside resort on the Italian Riviera halfway between Genoa and the French border. He settled in a small apartment there recently with his wife, 26-year-old Ilda. Arduino said they were married in a civil rite in Panama early in December.

Without going into detail, Arduino said he lost his Roman Catholic faith "owing to circumstances I lived through abroad."

"I stopped believing in the values of the church and therefore in my conscience I could no longer be part of it," he said.

Child Abusers Can Find Help

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1977 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

The National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse tells us that child abuse is now epidemic not only in the United States, but throughout the world. Last year, approximately one million American children were abused, and two thousand died painful deaths from beatings, burns, immersion in scalding water, etc.

Neglect (failure to provide a child with the basic necessities of life: food, clothing, shelter or medical care) is also child abuse. So is using a child for sexual gratification.

Child abuse can leave permanent physical scars—a crippled limb, impaired vision, a hearing loss and even brain damage. It causes antisocial behavior, failure in school, juvenile delinquency and emotional problems.

Parents who abuse their children need the kind of help that is now available through Parents Anonymous. It was founded by parents who had abused their children and had the courage to organize and seek solutions to their problem. They are headquartered at 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, Calif. 90278.

There are now 450 chapters in more than 300 cities. You can reach them toll free. In California dial 1-800-352-0386. Outside California, dial 1-800-421-1353.

Some questions:

Do you sometimes physically hurt your child because you're angry with yourself?

Were you mistreated as a child and now find yourself repeating your past?

Do you feel inadequate as a parent? Depressed? Unable to cope?

After punishing your child severely are you heartsick, ashamed and disgusted with yourself to the point of prayers and tears?

Have you ever injured your child, and then lied about it? ("He fell down the stairs"—or "out of bed"?)

If you can see yourself in any of the above situations, don't be ashamed. You are not alone. Call P.A.

Here are some questions and answers that might be helpful:

Who may report a case of child abuse? Anybody can.

Do I have any legal protection when I report a suspected case of child abuse? Yes. Persons who report in good faith are granted immunity from civil and criminal court action, even if the report proves to be erroneous.

How sure must I be before I report? There is no rule. If there is serious doubt, resolve the doubt in favor of the child, and report.

Must I identify myself when I report? No, but it would be better if you did.

Is hitting "child abuse"? It depends on the age of the child, what part of the body was hit, what was used to inflict the punishment and how serious the injuries are.

Do abusive parents hate their children? No. Most parents love their children, but in times of anger, they strike out at whoever is closest.

Do abusive parents ever learn to cope with their problems, and can the children be safely returned home? Yes. If parents receive the right kind of support and treatment, they can learn to handle their anger, and their children can be left safely in their care.

Does jailing abusive parents help solve the problem? No. It only satisfies society's need for retribution and protects the child only temporarily. Imprisonment does not provide treatment and counseling, which is what the abusive parent desperately needs.

There are more than a dozen government, private, volunteer and specialized programs dealing with the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Parents Anonymous is a good place to start if one wants to know more about the project.

If you think you need help, call P.A. now. If you suspect that a child you know is being abused, please, please report it. All reports will be strictly confidential, and your name will be withheld.

Children should be seen—and not hurt.

Steelworker Claims Union Weakened

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers rebel Edward Sadlowski renewed his attack Sunday on the union's no-strike agreement, charging it has weakened the USW's bargaining clout with the steel industry.

Sadlowski appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" with his opponent, Lloyd McBride. The two men are waging a heated battle to succeed retiring USW president I.W. Abel when the union's 1.4 million members vote Feb. 8.

The no-strike pact — known as the Experimental Negotiating Agreement (ENA) — was signed in 1973. It prohibits a nationwide steel strike and requires all unresolved contract items to be settled by binding arbitration.

"I am bitterly opposed to the concept of ENA, both from a philosophical and practical aspect," said Sadlowski, of Chicago.

"We've seen our bargaining posture diminish behind the autoworkers, rubber workers and coal miners and we have not kept abreast of profits in the steel industry."

McBride was not asked about ENA but has said previously that although he supports the concept he would abandon it if it becomes disadvantageous to the union.

ENA covers about one-third of the union's membership. Regardless who wins the election, ENA will govern this year's steel negotiations which begin one week after the Feb. 8 balloting. However, it remains to be decided if ENA will be used again in 1980.

The campaign bitterness and the legal maneuvers by each candidate have raised fears that the election outcome may be challenged, thereby affecting the start of contract talks.

Abel has already said that if Sadlowski wins he will quit

Carters Discover Exercise Machines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has given some glimpses into life at the White House. He said he uses President Dwight D. Eisenhower's exercise bicycle and that Mrs. Carter exercises on a treadmill.

Carter also said he goes without any breakfast other than orange juice, and drinks a cup of coffee when he arrives at the Oval Office. He has only a sandwich for lunch to save even more room for a big dinner at night with his family.

"That way there's no weight problem, and I can eat all I want at the evening meal," Carter said.

The President spoke with reporters on Sunday.

Carter said his son, Chip, found Ike's exercise bike in a warehouse the White House uses to store memorabilia, spare equipment and other items. Carter said Chip also found the treadmill.

The President said he keeps the exercise bicycle in his study. "It has an electric motor that's strong and fast," Carter said. "When you've been on that thing for 20 minutes you've really had a workout."

He said his wife, Rosalynn, uses the treadmill in her private quarters.

A ripe banana is 75 per cent water. It contains more sugar, 21 per cent, than any other fruit.

He described the warehouse as "really something."

Whenever the White House staff redecorates with new draperies or re-upholsters furniture, they save all odds and ends from the material and store them, Carter said.

Arab Campaign Puts Carter On Spot

AMMAN Jordan (AP) — The Arab campaign for renewed peace talks with Israel already has put President Carter's administration on the spot in the Middle East.

Moderate Arab leaders are banking on Carter to influence Israel and turn their peace offensive into tangible progress during 1977, a mammoth task in this volatile region.

Outright failure would ignite bitter disappointment among those who played the American card, risking a new oil crisis and possibly another round of Arab-Israeli war.

"If nothing happens, I am very afraid," said the Rev. Elia Khoury, a moderate Palestinian on the ruling executive committee of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

The stakes are high because the leaders of Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia have put their credentials as backers of the Arab and Palestinian cause on the line. In some cases, the future of their regimes could be riding on the outcome.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt already is blaming the recent riots in Egyptian cities on political agents trying to sidetrack his efforts to reconvene the Geneva peace conference.

Radical Palestinians in Beirut are claiming that failure at Geneva will create an "explosive" situation for Sadat and other Arab leaders pushing for negotiations now.

Arab officials here and in other capitals thus feel they have gone as far as they can to build a momentum toward peace. They cite:

— President Hafez Assad's use of the Syrian army to crush Palestinian guerrillas might in Lebanon and his campaign to force the PLO leadership into a more moderate negotiating stand.

— Saudi Arabia's costly battle to keep oil price increases down to a level that American and European economies can afford.

— King Hussein's new willingness to deal with the Palestinian leadership — Jordan's enemies in a 1970 war — and open the way for cooperation on the fate of the occupied West Bank.

— Sadat's conciliatory statements to journalists and visiting American dignitaries designed to parade a flexible attitude before American public opinion.

These steps will be high on the agenda of Arab leaders when they receive U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance during his Middle East tour, scheduled to begin in two weeks, shortly after a swing through the area by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

In return, diplomats and Arab officials say, the leaders will be asking Vance and Waldheim to use their leverage on Israel to get Geneva started and make it a success. Given the U.N. record with Israel, the real hopes will be pinned on Vance. "If the high-level foreign visitors who fly through the Middle East do not see flexibility as a two-way process, they should not waste their time or money on purposeless voyages," wrote the Jordan Times in an editorial reflecting official thinking.

But some Arab and diplomatic analysts doubt Vance can deliver on all that the Arabs want from an Israeli government forced by elections in May to stay close to popular Israeli opinion.

King Hussein, whose traditional warm relations with the West have given him a good vantage point, is warning his fellow Arab leaders against overoptimism in the push toward Geneva.

"They have an overestimation of the U.S. position and a continuing overestimation of what the United States is prepared to make Israel do," said a Western diplomat here.

Many foreign and Arab observers predict that to keep up a head of steam during 1977, Arabs will have to settle for ceremonial reconvening of the Geneva peace talks — but postponement of attempts at a real solution on the ground.

Waldheim has spoken of the possibility of gathering for an inaugural meeting at Geneva and then splitting up into work groups to tackle issues one by one.

"The expectation is not for substance but for something that could take the place of substance," a diplomat commented.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1

Your birthday today: Subjunctivity rules your coming year: life is what you make of it. You can enjoy a modest situation as if on cloud nine, or you can weep and worry when you have it all made. Your wits show you ways to adjust income upwards if really needed. Relationships run strong but require care. Today's natives are ambitious, magnetic, gifted in the arts, have ready answers on any topic. Those born this year have less ambition, prefer individuality to worldly status.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Personally centered emotions dominate decisions. Group ventures are a matter of belonging rather than making a profit. Your achievements attract good notice.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: However brief or local, all travel runs into difficulty. Far-flung places are appealing; enjoy life right where you are. Improvisation is a fine art.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Interruptions, plus distraction of a wandering mind, intrude on the scene. Stick to the subject. Don't bicker over money. Evening is better socially.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Keep your indecision less visible, and you can persuade people to go along with your schemes or at least stay out of the way. Speculation is out; don't!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Charity begins at home, helps to clear work space. Convert unwanted articles to cash, or take a tax deduction by donating them to organizations for the needy.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Everyone has ideas for your money; don't let loose! In a strange situation, like a new job, ask how things are supposed to be done, then create your version.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: The impact of people's idiosyncrasies spoils usual co-operation, forces you into self-sufficiency. Tonight is the end of a long mood-cycle: celebrate!

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Promises you make are dug up, your memory refreshed, so don't be vague about commitments. Early news is incomplete, later items change the story's meaning.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Discontent drives you to intelligent planning or to harebrained action, depending on how you manage your energy. Don't launch a critical verbal barrage.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Take a day off if opportunity offers, symbolically if you can't escape. Your program has little chance to advance until neglected details are updated.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You have less leverage in getting your way on policy. Let others learn reasons from hard experience. Live easier with fewer self-assumed responsibilities.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Wishful thinking distorts financial pictures. Be sure you want what you dig into reserves to buy. Guidance in your crowd is nil. Use your intuitive system.

West Bank Arabs Cool To Hussein

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Jordan's renewed interest in taking control of the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River after a Mideast peace agreement has created a stir in Israel. But Palestinians living in the occupied area give the idea only grudging acceptance.

"The average farmer in my town does not like Jordan's King Hussein," said Mohammed Hassan Mulheim, mayor of Halhul, a vineyard town 15 miles south of Jerusalem. "But many recognize him as our hope for an end to occupation."

The West Bank once was part of Palestine. It was annexed by Jordan in 1950 and seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

An ardent desire for an end to Israel's 10-year occupation of the West Bank was the most widespread opinion encountered in a tour of the area and in interviews with mayors, students and others.

The Palestinian Arabs welcome the current drive to get Mideast peace talks started this year. They are less happy with King Hussein's effort to re-establish himself as spokesman for the West Bank, at the expense of the weakened Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Hussein met in mid-January with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and agreed that Jordan would participate in a Geneva peace conference. Interviewed by a Beirut newspaper last week, Hussein said West Bank Palestinians should vote on their own future, and he would accept the result whether they chose independence or a link with Jordan.

Meanwhile, Jordan has increased its aid to the West Bank in the past two weeks. A number of mayors and other West Bank notables have visited or plan to visit Hussein in Amman, the Jordanian capital.

Israel has always refused to negotiate with the PLO over the West Bank and thus is happy with Hussein's re-emergence.

Nor was there any indication of a change in Jordan's demand that Israel withdraw from all territories occupied since the 1967 war, including Egypt's Sinai Peninsula and Syria's Golan Heights. Israel refuses this demand, offering at most a territorial compromise with Jordan on the West Bank so that Israel would have more secure borders.

Israel also rejects the idea of an independent Palestinian state on the West Bank and Gaza Strip, saying it would once again become a base for attacks in Israel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Republican U.S. Attorneys may stay in office despite their politics because of the Carter administration's promise to choose prosecutors on the basis of merit. Justice Department officials say that most of the 94 U.S. attorneys across the nation are postponing job decisions until they see how Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell plans to carry out the merit selection policy. The federal prosecutors are presidential appointees subject to Senate confirmation. Traditionally, they have been chosen by the senators and other political leaders in their states, with a president simply agreeing to the choices. The selection was often based on an individual's work for the party in power. That tradition has waned in recent years, and Carter and Bell have promised to go even further toward ending it. Before taking office, Bell asked department officials to poll the U.S. attorneys to determine which ones want to keep their jobs. "That doesn't mean they will be retained but they'll have an opportunity to be considered for retention on a merit system," Bell told the Senate Judiciary Committee during his confirmation hearings.

"If we are really serious about doing something about crime, then we must go into some career service for prosecutorial forces," he said. Only a handful of federal prosecutors have submitted their resignations since the November election, and some of those have listed personal reasons not related to the change of administration. William Gray, director of the department's executive office for U.S. attorneys, said 13 of the 94 positions are now open. That includes two prosecutors who remain in office although their four-year terms have expired. They are Peter Mills in Portland, Maine and Wilbur H. Dillahunty in Little Rock, Ark. Although the prosecutors are not routinely submitting resignations because of the change of administration, knowledgeable sources say none appears to be digging in his heels to keep the job.

"The ones I have talked to have expressed two kinds of desires — either they would like to finish their term to see through major cases or projects, or they would like to stay long enough to help in the transition."

Syrian Troops Moves In Southern Lebanon Draws Israeli Warnings

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel is maintaining diplomatic contacts "attended by appropriate security alertness" to get Syria to withdraw the troops it sent to within eight miles of the Israeli border in South Lebanon, the government said Sunday.

The strongly worded communique followed the weekly meeting of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's cabinet and came a few hours after Defense Minister Shimon Peres described the Syrian troop movements as a "misunderstanding" that he hoped could be solved by diplomacy.

"Israel objects to this unilateral and unagreed move which is tantamount to a change in the Syrian force deployment in the South Lebanese region," the communique said, adding:

"Israel sees no justification" in the move and "rejects the shifting" of Syrian troops to the south.

A unit of 600 Syrians, part of the Lebanese peacekeeping force, moved into Nabatiyeh more than a week ago, with the announced purpose of collecting heavy weapons from Palestinian units. The Lebanese government was reported Saturday trying to put together some units from its disbanded regular army to replace the Syrians in the south and thereby avoid confrontation with Israel.

Carter Raps Action By State Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Sunday the State Department spoke in support of Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov last week without checking with him first. But the statement "reflected my attitude," the President said.

The statement, issued Thursday by a State Department spokesman, cautioned against attempts by the Soviet government "to intimidate" or silence Sakharov. Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin has told the Carter administration the Kremlin is bound to resent support for the dissident.

Speaking to reporters on his helicopter trip to inspect the impact of winter and the energy crisis on Pennsylvania, the President said the State Department should have obtained his prior concurrence before speaking out.

Carter agreed the statement would give Sakharov and other dissidents in Russia "a lift." But he said, "There might have been more lift" had he made the statement personally.

The President said American support for human rights will have more impact in Russia as the relationship between himself and Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev develops.

Some Wonder If Carter's $50 Rebate Can Stimulate Economy

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — A virtual certainty for most Americans this year, but what isn't certain in the minds of some is whether the rebate plan will achieve President Carter's goal of stimulating sustained economic growth.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., and other lawmakers last week wondered aloud why the Carter administration thought its stimulus plan would work any better to promote solid economic growth than past programs, such as the 1975 tax rebate plan.

The purpose of the 1975 rebate and of Carter's plan is to put more spending money in the hands of consumers.

Hopefully, this will initiate a self-sustaining cycle of greater production, more employment, more consumption and, eventually, new investment by business and industry to expand production capacity.

Economists blame poor investment activity last year as a reason for the slowdown in economic growth.

Two years ago, Congress and then President Gerald R. Ford worked out a similar tax rebate, whose purpose also was to get the economy moving.

That rebate provided for a 10 per cent refund on a taxpayer's tax bill, up to a maximum rebate of $200. A total of $8.2 billion was paid out, with an average rebate per taxpayer of $125.

Carter's proposal is for rebate payments of $50 per dependent for each taxpayer, with additional $50 payments for Social Security recipients and low-income persons who already obtain the earned income credit.

Under the Carter plan, a family of six, for example, would receive a rebate of $300, since each dependent is entitled to $50. The total amount of the Carter rebate would be $11.4 billion.

If Congress goes along with Carter's plan, as expected, rebate checks will be in the mail to most Americans beginning in April, with everybody being paid by June at the latest.

Carter officials claim rebates will reach 96 per cent of Americans, while the 1975 rebate reached 89 per cent of the population. Some four million poor Americans, who don't have children or who don't file a tax return or who don't receive Social Security payments, will be excluded. Carter administration economists are optimistic the Carter rebate will work to stimulate the economy.

As evidence, they cite the 1975 rebate.

Charles L. Schultze, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, said the 1975 rebate "did work" in helping to halt the recession and to start economic recovery.

He said the U.S. Gross National Product increased 7.3

per cent in the 12 months after the rebate while personal consumption of Americans jumped 6 per cent in that period.

"People did spend, not immediately, but over a period of the first, second and third quarters," he said.

"The problem was, it didn't last long enough," Schultze said.

As Schultze sees it, the 1975 rebate wasn't followed up by anything else, so after Americans spent their rebate, ev-everything went flat again.

Carter aims to solve that problem by having other measures ready to take over when the impact of the rebate wears off. Schultze said. These include a permanent tax cut later this year.

Oswald: "This helps you to plan your play in accordance with 'How can I make this contract?'"

Jim: "East overtook his partner's king of spades with the ace and led the suit back. South's jack lost to West's queen and West continued with the 10 of spades which South ruffed."

Oswald: "South reviewed the bidding in his own mind. East had passed his partner's one-spade opening and had shown up with the ace of spades. There was no way he could also hold the king of hearts. In addition West had made a vulnerable opening bid. He needed the king of hearts for it."

Jim: "Both signs told South that his only chance to make his contract would be to find West with that king and no guard for it. He laid down his ace of hearts, dropped the king and was home."

Assuming your partner doesn't take your opening preempts seriously you should open three spades if not vulnerable and might even try it when vulnerable if you like to live dangerously.

Gilmore Cost Utah Taxpayers Over $60,000

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It cost Utah more than $60,000 to try executed killer Gary Gilmore and keep him alive through two suicide attempts, a newspaper says.

The Salt Lake Tribune said Sunday its figure was obtained through a survey conducted between Nov. 1 and Gilmore's execution Jan. 17.

It did not include the cost of clothing and feeding Gilmore.

Utah County Atty. Noall Wootton said Gilmore's three-day trial cost between $15,000 and $20,000. Sheriff Mack Holley said additional costs included pay for five extra officers during the trial.

Combined with the 14 deputies called in for duty on the two occasions Gilmore was returned to District Court for resentencing, the cost to the sheriff's office was $3,000, Holley said.

During the 102 days Gilmore spent in the Utah State Prison, taxpayers spent $18,330, including the tab from the University of Utah Medical Center where Gilmore was hospitalized twice for taking drug overdoses.

Another $725 was paid to the six-man firing squad.

More than 200 of the prison's total staff of 320 were called in at 3 a.m. on the day Gilmore died.

Atty. Gen. Robert B. Hansen estimated it cost $19,000 for the extra work of his deputies and secretaries. It cost the state $513 for an airplane flight to Denver where a last-minute stay of execution was overturned by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals.

But longer cigarettes usually have more tar. Well, Vantage just wouldn't go along with that.

So we worked. Until we could perfect a longer cigarette with the famous Vantage combination of full flavor and low tar. Not the lowest long cigarette you can find. But very possibly the lowest that you will enjoy.

New Vantage Longs. A blend of flavor-rich tobaccos with tar levels held down to the point where good taste still comes through.

THE TROUBLE SHOOTER

The Trouble Shooter cannot accept phone calls. Please communicate by mail to address below.

GOOD MECHANIC?

Dear Trouble Shooter
My problem is my car. I have run the gamut from annoyed to disgusted, trying to get someone to figure out what is wrong with it. It started a couple of months ago when I noticed it making a strange noise and dripping. I took it back to the dealer. They said it was the smog pump and replaced it. As I drove out, the noise was exactly the same and the dripping was still going on. I returned it to the same place. This time they said the power steering fluid had been overfilled (dripping) and that the belts were cold (noise). I didn't buy that, but what could I do? I had taken it back to the dealer figuring if they didn't know the car, who would?

Two days later, I was coming home from work and noticed the temperature rising. I couldn't pull off the road immediately because I was not familiar with the area and couldn't see any service stations. I drove about a mile. By then the car was overheated. (I know that one should not drive an overheated car, but I also know the hazards of a woman alone on a dark road.)

After the car stopped steaming and whistling, I located a station and drove it there. They replaced the water pump. The next day, I picked the car up. It was leaking again, so I returned it to the same service station. He tightened a bolt he said he had missed. A few days later, I noticed fresh coolant on the driveway and returned it again. This time, they replaced the radiator cap.

So, here I am, coolant still dripping and I wait not too impatiently for my next exciting breakdown. The car has developed an occasional heavy vibration which the dealer won't acknowledge.

I don't know anything about cars except that when it sounds strange, leaks and vibrates that something is going to happen.

All I want is a mechanic who is honest, reasonably priced and who works hours that will accommodate a Los Angeles commuter. Can your readers recommend one?

B.H. Fullerton
Doesn't do any harm to ask, does it? The Trouble Shooter will forward all recommendations.

The Trouble Shooter receives more complaints about car problems, and finds them harder to solve, than anything else, Ma'am. In fact, he's had some frustrating experiences of his own.

There's a new group called "autocap" organizing across the country to deal with problems like yours. "Autocap" stands for "Automotive Consumer Action Panel," and chances are this group soon will be able to eliminate at least some of the frustrations that buyers of new and used cars run into.

In the Parade Magazine section of The Register on Jan. 16, there was a story about Autocap (How To Settle an Argument With Your Car Dealer), but the story's writer mistakenly reported that there was already an Autocap group in the Los Angeles area.

To date, there is no Autocap in Southern California, according to folks at the National Automobile Dealers Association, but there soon should be.

In other sections of the country, cases like yours are brought before an Autocap "jury" for trial. The jury panel is generally made up of six members, three consumer representatives and three dealers. If a car owner's complaint is a fair and honest one, he can expect a fair shake.

Dear Trouble Shooter
The Santa Ana Uptown Lions Club will hold its fourth annual Antique and Collectible swap meet Feb. 27. We have more than 450 display booths for sale. With the usual support of your readers, we expect to fill each and every one of them pronto.

Last year, more than 4100 people attended our swap meet held at Santa Ana College. This meant not only a good day for those selling, but a good day for the Orange County charities we help with proceeds of the event. Topping the recipient list then, and now, is Orange County

Services for the Blind, Inc. Contributions from the Santa Ana Uptown Lions Club for the last two years have helped to finance the comprehensive training of one little girl who attends the Service's Development Center. She was blind and crippled. Through a miraculous effort, she is now learning to walk! What a heart-warming thing those readers of yours have done in supporting our swap meet!

People interested in booth spaces are asked to contact Lion Maury Burns at 542-9691. Cost of each display booth is $7.50.

Also, will you please ask your readers who want to attend the event to mark their calendars? With their support, we'll make this year's contribution list to the community bigger than ever.

J.B. Santa Ana
Have you put a big check mark on the Feb. 27 page of your calendar, folks? The Trouble Shooter hopes so.

And, while you're about it, mark May 22, too. That's the date of the Ol' Trouble Shooter's big Antique Swap Session to be held at The City shopping center in Orange. Space reservations will not go on sale until April 1. More details later.

CLINIC HELP

Dear Trouble Shooter
Will you tell readers who are licensed California physicians, dentists or pharmacists that the Laguna Beach Free Clinic needs their volunteer efforts?

For a few hours a month, they can gain the satisfaction of helping people who would otherwise do without necessary health care.

The Free Clinic is located at 460 Ocean Ave., Laguna Beach. Our phone numbers are (714) 494-0761 and (714) 548-3715.

M.M. Laguna Beach

Hope your letter in today's column attracts some of the volunteer professionals you needs. A tip of the Trouble Shooter's big white sombrero to the Laguna Beach Free Clinic! Staffed by volunteer physicians, dentists, pharmacists, lab technicians, psychologists, lawyers and others, and dependent upon public and patient donations, the clinic served 11,958 persons last year.

REPAIR CLASS

Dear Trouble Shooter
I'm sure some of the hobbyists who read your column and others interested in clock repairing would like to know that a clock repairing class is forming (it's bi-lingual) in the Los Angeles Unified School District. The class starts today. The materials fee is $2.50. It's not too late to enroll.

If folks need further details, they can call me at 633-1703.

J.W. Orange

Happy to pass word of the class long, Ma'am. Thanks for your letter.

PRESIDENT FORD?

Dear Trouble Shooter
While watching the Bing Crosby PGA Tournament, I noticed that everyone called ex-President Ford "Mr. President."

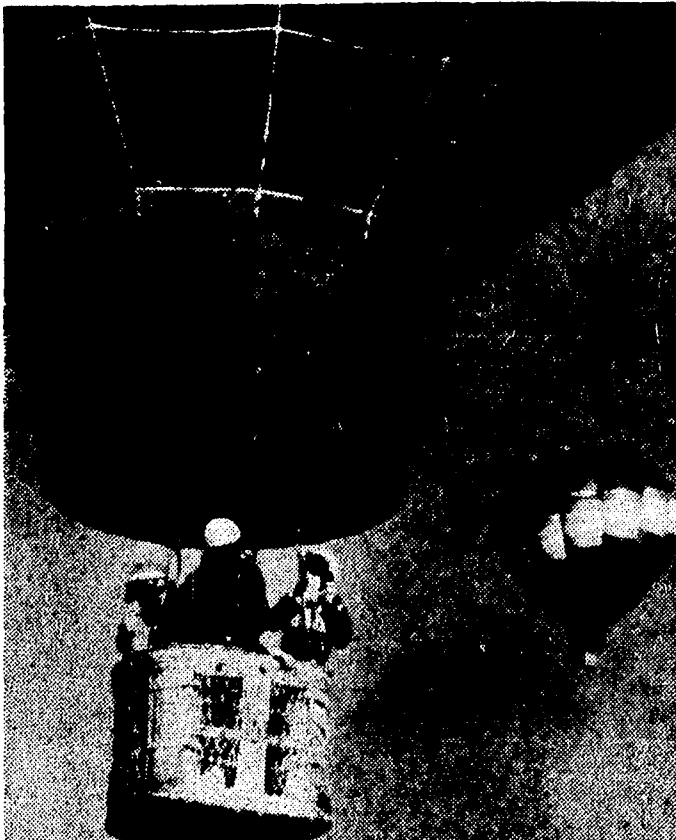

My son says that he is always to be addressed as "Mr. President," even though out of office.

I say no, but I'm not sure exactly how it is proper to address him.

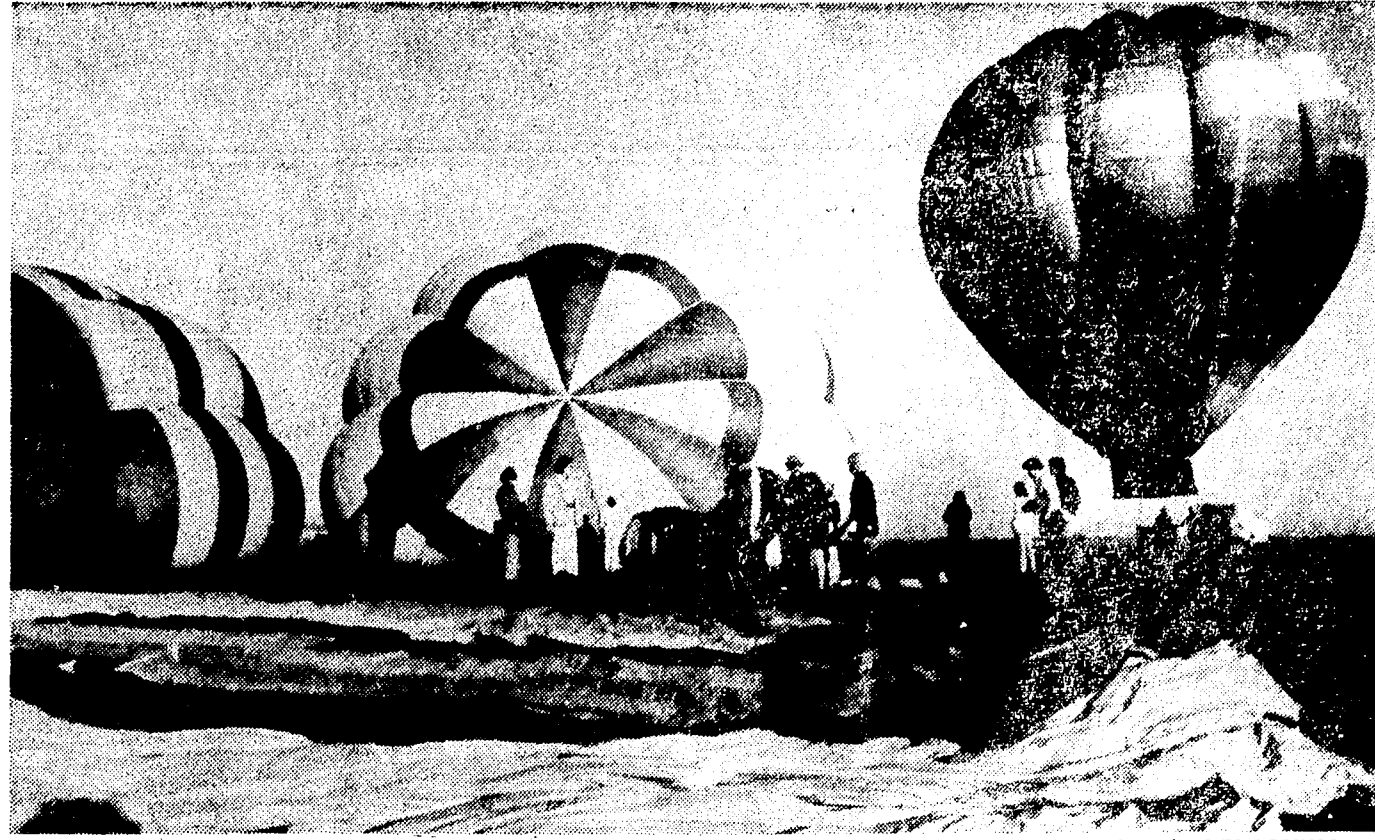

Please settle this one for us.

R.H.S. Fountain Valley
Former presidents are entitled to be addressed as "Mr. President" as long as they live.

Got a Problem? Write The Trouble Shooter, P.O. Box 11624, Santa Ana, Calif., 92711. PLEASE DO NOT TELEPHONE YOUR PROBLEM TO US. HOT AIR BALLOONS BEING INFLATED RISE LIKE BREAD IN AN OVEN

A WIDE-OPEN SPORT FOR WIDE-OPEN COUNTRY - ORANGE COUNTY BALLOONISTS TAKE TO THE AIR FOR "HARE AND HOUNDS" RACE

PEACE AND CALM, GLIDING ON THE WIND

Balloons - Baubles In The Sky

By RITA ROBINSON
Register Staff Writer
Drifting in a hot air balloon 1,000 feet above patchwork fields and miniature farmhouses, I expected adventure and instead found peace and calm.

Actually, I was in a race with origins dating back to the 18th Century in France, the race of the hare and the hounds.

My pilot, Chris Robillard of Newport Beach, told me the first hot air balloon was invented by French brothers Joseph and Etienne Montgolfier in 1783. The papier-mache and linen balloon rose as the air inside was heated by an open fire on the ground below.

In today's balloons, the air is heated by fire from propane gas ignited by pilot lights.

The baskets, or gondolas, are handmade out of wicker from Borneo. And the balloons are still huge, colorful baubles dangling in the sky.

The race was like gliding on the wind. Suddenly, we found ourselves upon the hare balloon as it landed less than a quarter mile ahead of us.

Chris warned we were going to drop in for a landing to get as close as possible to the hare balloon and win the race.

We landed with a great bounce and up in the air we went again. I wondered if we'd just continue bouncing over the fields, a toy of the fickle wind.

But we did stop, less than 50 feet away from the hare. Our first touch down is what counts in the race. It measured 63 paces, twice as close as the next nearest hound.

If we had been in France, rather than Perris Valley east of Elsinore, we would have popped a bottle of champagne.

Instead, Chris sounded the end of our chase on his fox hunter's horn.

Other balloonists from Orange County gathered around and the chase team held the balloon down while we got out.

There are only about 1,000 balloonists in the United States, 25 in California, Chris said. All balloons must be approved by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and pilots must have FAA licenses.

Today's balloons, made of fire-resistant nylon, stand 70 feet tall by 50 feet wide and cost from $5,000 to $10,000.

With a volume capacity of 70,000 cubic feet, the balloons can lift more than 1,000 pounds. When deflated, the entire balloon fits into its own wicker basket.

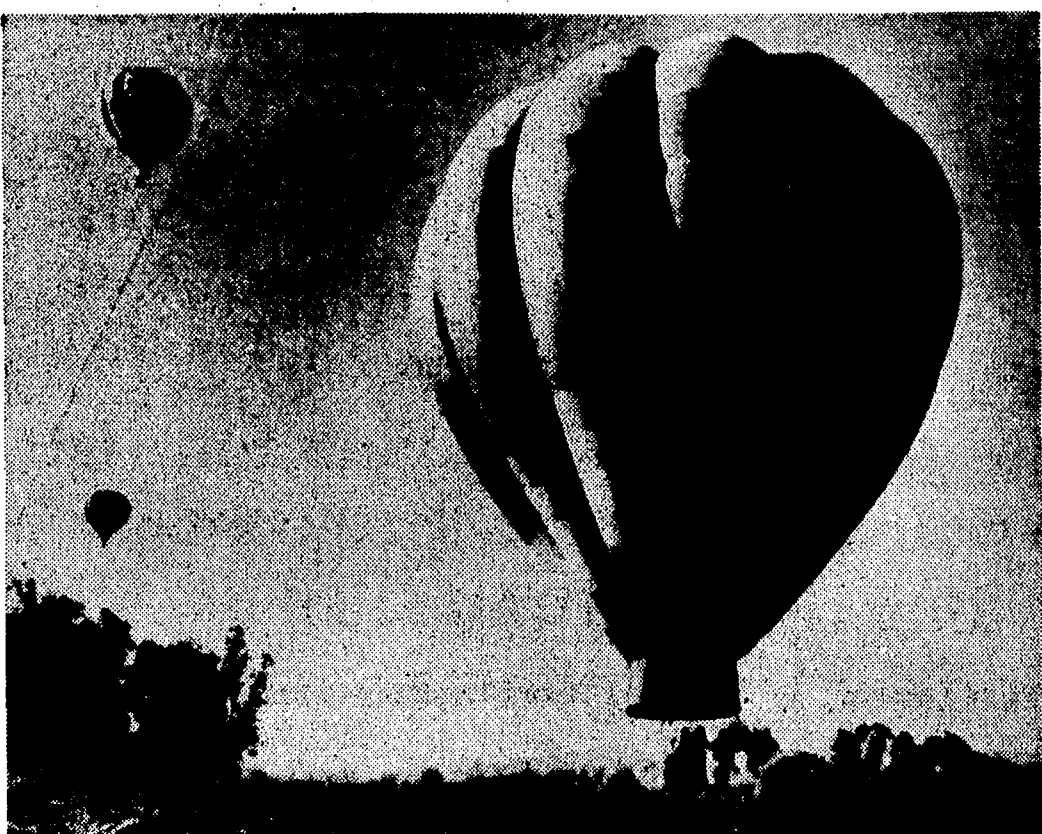

Chris and his friends can be found on almost any weekend ballooning above the pastures surrounding the Perris Valley Airport.

Besides the lack of high power lines and high-rise buildings, the valley is a favorite spot because of its perimeter formed by the San Jacinto and Santa Ana mountains.

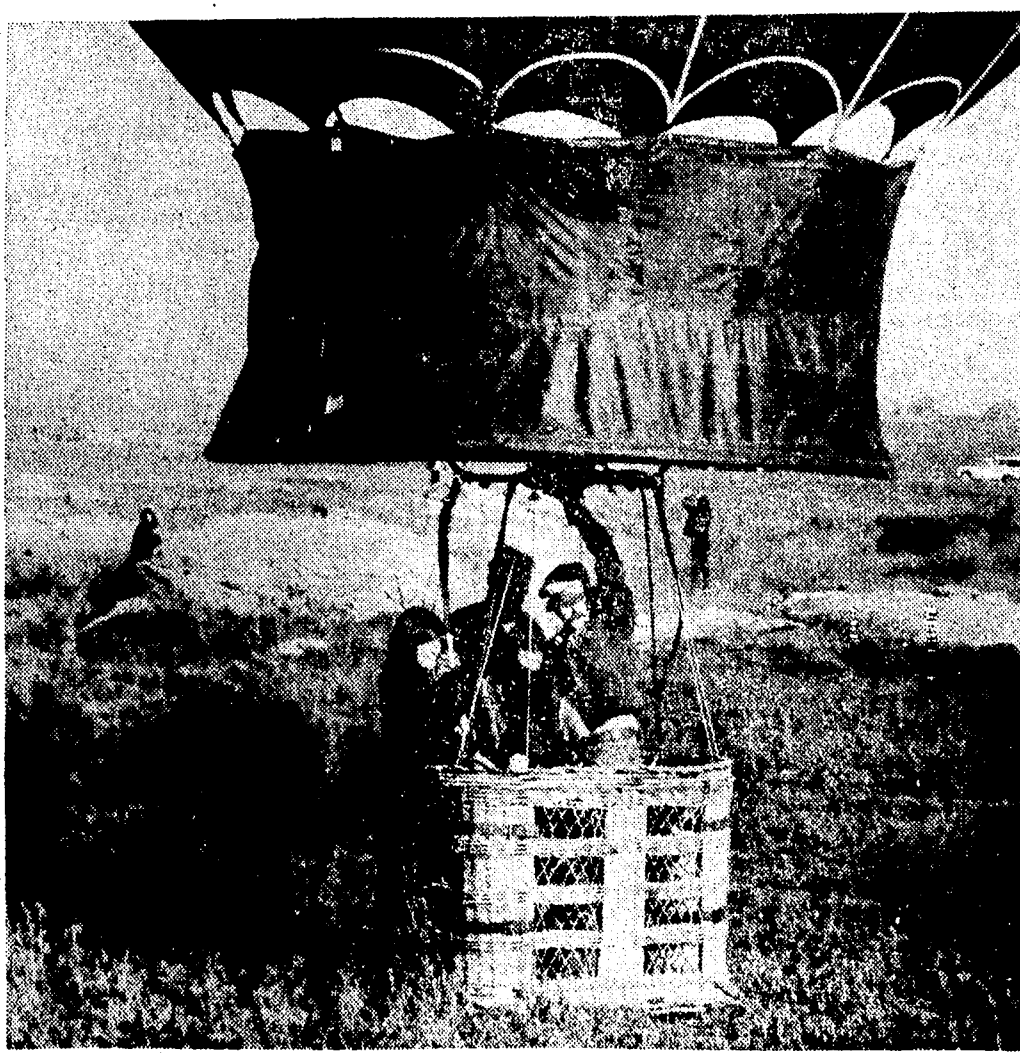

Ballooning to Chris is an old-fashioned and charming way to get away from it all. As he says, "To me, it's like I'm an observer as the world is falling away from me."

Frost Filigree

The trees of Goat Island, N.Y., strike their strange, frozen arabesques in response to their unique environment: the island's small wedge of land in the middle of the Niagara Falls. The American Falls are to one side, the Canadian (Horseshoe) Falls to the other, while immediately below a tumult of water endlessly churns, tossing up floating veils of spray and mist. And all around is the very special climate that develops in the Niagara gorge from the interaction of wind, water and temperature.

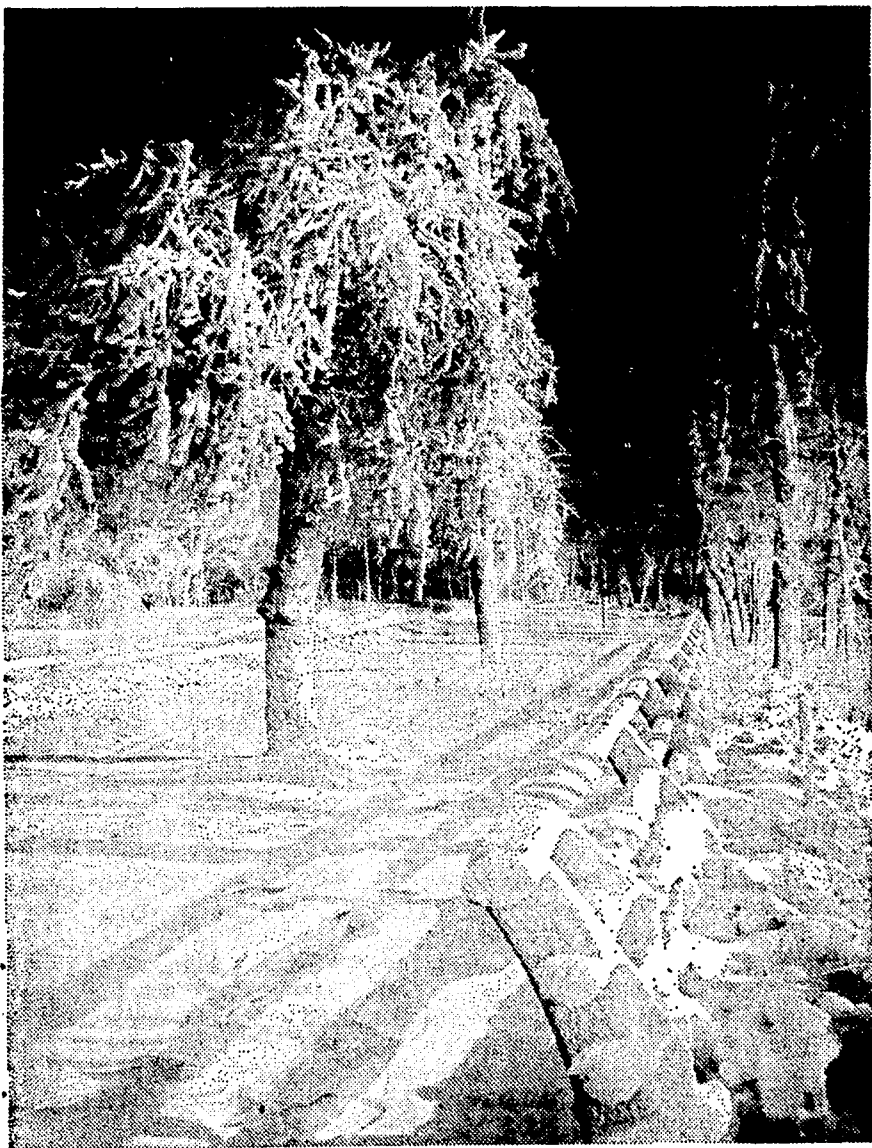

Goat Island's trees grow up buffeted, bent and warped by these forces of nature, acquiring silhouettes whose grotesque grace is choreographed by the relentless pressures on them. But in winter comes an unwonted kindness as the harsh elements lavish a breathtaking beauty on their victims. Frigid mist, icy rain and heavy swathes of snow turn the trees into magical groves of frost filigree. There are vehicle tracks, and a few briskly made footprints, but the snow pillows on the benches remain pristine, unused, for visitors are rare at this time of year—except for the hardy photographer whose images are all many of us ever see or know of the winter world of Niagara.

Reindeer Escape Over Snowdrifts

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Three large Scandinavian reindeer took advantage of giant snowdrifts at the Buffalo Zoo on Sunday. Using the drifts as ramps, they jumped over the fence for some short-lived freedom.

The three reindeer, weighing between 500 and 600 pounds, were captured within an hour.

Don Fusco, in charge of the zoo's tigers, lions and other large cats, said there was no likelihood that any other animals might escape.

Fusco said the reindeer spread out in three directions after their escape. One traveled about a mile along a snow-covered street.

Bears Just Sleep

Bears don't hibernate during the winter — they just sleep deeply. In true hibernation all body processes are slowed down, but a bear's pulse and respiration stay nearly normal during his long winter's nap.

tured in Detroit's newspapers.

This week, Mrs. Guinnane, her husband Gerard and their seven youngsters — including the quads — face eviction from their home because of a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulation.

The Guinnanes used to own the house. But six years ago they fell behind in their mortgage payments, a finance company foreclosed, HUD paid the mortgage and took over the property.

Ever since, the family has been paying $141 a month rent to HUD.

But last September, the department returned the rent check, and told the Guinnanes they could either buy the house — for $17,000 — or move out.

Nobody knows why HUD waited six years to act. But the department's Detroit deputy director, William Harris, said the eviction is necessary because it's the rule.

The Guinnanes say they'd love to buy the house, but not for $17,000. According to Mrs. Guinnane, an appraiser told her the property was worth about $6,000.

"What the Guinnanes are saying is forget the fact we had to go through foreclosure, sell this property to me at a price I say is right," Harris said.

The villain, apparently, is a HUD rule that says anyone who loses a house because of an unpaid mortgage, and later elects to buy the home back, must pay 105 per cent of the mortgage amount plus repair cost.

Ironically, Mrs. Guinnane said, it was another HUD official who told her and her husband to let their mortgage lapse in the first place. When they complained about mounting repair costs, she said, the official told them to let the finance company foreclose and then HUD would rent them the home.

It's hard to predict how much the house would bring on the open market once the Guinnanes are evicted. HUD has owned as many as 17,000 houses and vacant lots in Detroit at one time because it couldn't find buyers.

Some 3,000 of those houses have been torn down after vandals destroyed them.

Asked if it wouldn't be more practical to take the Guinnane's rent than to gamble on trying to sell the home, Harris said, "That is irrelevant...We took the property back with the intent to resell."

Meanwhile, the Guinnanes have faithfully put $141 a month into an escrow bank account.

"It's their (HUD's) money," Mrs. Guinnane said.

San Miguel's Burros Killed On U.S. Orders

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — The small band of burros on Lonesome San Miguel Island is gone — shot to death under government orders.

The National Park Service, in charge of the tiny Navy-owned island 45 miles offshore in the Catalina Channel, ordered the 30 escaped domestic burros shot in December without public announcement.

An abalone diver, trespassing on the island early this week, observed that a number of animals had been shot. Government officials confirmed the shooting Friday.

William Ehorn, superintendent of the National Monument Group in the Channel Islands, said officials decided to eliminate the animals because they were partly diseased and were destroying rare native plants on the island.

His mother and Nakao told police the boy had been handcuffed in the bathroom in order to prevent him from running away, Mullen said.

Application of SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GAS COMPANY for authority to (a) engage in a solar demonstration project and (b) to include in its rates the amounts necessary to recover the project program.

NOTICE OF FILING OF APPLICATION

Southern California Gas Company (Applicant) hereby gives notice that an application was filed with the California Public Utilities Commission on January 21, 1977 requesting rate authorization to engage in a solar energy demonstration program.

Due to the significant decline in availability of natural gas supplies, the Applicant supports the development of solar energy as a means of stretching available gas supplies. The purpose of the proposed program is to further develop, through demonstration installations, practical solar assisted gas systems that are cost effective, and acceptable to the public.

Granting of this request will result in the introduction of a Solar Energy Development (SEED) into the Applicant's rate structure, applicable on a uniform basis to all rate schedules. The cost for the first full year of this program is estimated to be $0.5 million, which is considerably less than the cost of present revenues. The resulting cost for a residential customer using 100 therms per month will be approximately 3 cents per month.

It's A Strange Life For Child Actors

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Natasha Ryan, featured in the television movie "Sybil," wants to see her name on a theater marquee and maybe become a professional glass blower.

In the film shown last November, Miss Ryan was shown lying on a table, her legs spread apart, while her sick mother attacked her with a knife. Another scene showed her tied to a piano while the mother banged loudly on the instrument.

Natasha is 6 years old. Valerie Bertinelli is 17 and plays 16-year-old Barbara on the weekly primetime comedy series, "One Day at a Time."

Mother Nancy Bertinelli says Valerie once was "embarrassed about kissing this boy in rehearsal hall over and over again. I left the room a little bit to make her feel more at ease."

Natasha and Valerie are 11 years apart in age. But both are among 5,000 kids aged 6 months to 18 years currently holding California work permits to perform, says Johanne Des Ruisseaux, a theatrical permit officer for the state Labor Commission.

Adult performances are coaxed from these kids by directors who sometimes have misgivings about the use of children in their adult world. But the folks who make the shows, as well as parents and the kids themselves, see a lot of benefits too.

Whatever problems occur — aside from occasional embarrassing moments like Valerie's — are usually prompted by the lifestyle, not the often intense or mature story material sometimes enveloping the kids.

"We've never seen anything that has harmed her," says Tomi Ryan, Natasha's mom. "In fact she thrives on it," adds Jim Ryan, her father, a physician and author specializing in preventive medicine.

At work, the state orders that a parent or guardian, as well as a teacher-social worker, must be present every minute the child or teen-ager is working, to monitor such things as work hours and tutored schooling.

The experience for the kids is great "as long as the child can do this work without pressure," says Mrs. Ryan.

"For aware children, it's such good experience," she adds. "They learn to be attentive, they learn to have good manners, they learn to have respect."

Natasha is taught that she should strive for a profession in addition to acting. Ryan says her choice right now is glass blowing. She's achieved one of her life's ambitions, riding in a limousine. Now she'd like to see her name in lights.

Natasha, says her dad, started acting in commercials before she was 2 years old, after a physician studying exceptional children at UCLA suggested the acting might be a good outlet.

"Natasha is a very bright little girl," said Dan Petrie, who directed "Sybil," the story of an abused 6-year-old who grew to adulthood as a schizophrenic with multiple personalities.

"I explained to Natasha," says Petrie, that the mother on film "is not like your own Mommy."

In the piano scene, "I got down and acted it out myself. I could say then after my acting, after assuming a cheery expression, 'See, that's all there's to it,' then smile and say, 'Let's go get a cookie.'"

"Natasha came and saw the picture," said Petrie, "and she was only frightened by one part of it," a dream scene depicting a headless cat.

"Oh Dan, I don't think I'm going to watch it on television," Petrie recalled the child exclaiming after watching the scene.

Natasha was delighted to work with Petrie, says, but he fears the effect of the work on less talented or less attentive children whom he feels belong on the schoolyard.

"I never allowed any of my own kids (now aged 18 to 25) to act as children. It was just a feeling of mine that it is a very, very heavy burden to lay on them. If they're good at it they get too much approval, if they're not very good at it they get too much condemnation."

"If I had children I wouldn't want them working in show business," says Herb Kenworth, who directs Valerie Bertinelli and Mackenzie Phillips, also 17. Mackenzie plays Valerie's older sister on "One Day at a Time," which depicts the trials of a recently divorced mother raising two teen-aged daughters.

"But then you see Valerie and Mackenzie and you wonder 'why not,' " the director adds.

Valerie and Mackenzie both say they prefer being tutored by teacher and social-worker Gladys Hirsch at the schools they attend in the off-season.

Mackenzie, who grew up in show business with her entertainer-father John Phillips, likes the studio class better than the semester she spent last year at Hollywood Professional School.

"It's quieter, I'm only here with Gladys and Valerie and my biology project, hamsters," says Mackenzie.

"Last year going back to suburban Granada Hills High School wasn't so bad, but this year I'm a little scared to go back, because the show has gotten bigger and people just treat you a lot different," says Valerie.

Mrs. Bertinelli says she's excited by daughter Valerie's success but at the same time

"It's changed her social life. She doesn't see the kids she used to go to school with all the time."

Valerie's dates now are usually with guys in their 20s. and, says Mrs. Ryan, "I'm really getting accustomed to the fact that she doesn't really have much choice" because of the unavailability of teen-aged guys around the studio.

Viewers May Cheer Sharks Tonight

By GARY BLONSTON
Knight News Wire
Imagine how Evel Kneivel would look being rent into bite-size pieces by a pack of sharks, on live, prime-time television.

If you are under 12 and male, you might consider that a tragedy.

If you are over 12 and at all discriminating, you might consider that television at its socially useful best.

In either case, relax. Evel Kneivel is indeed going to rev up his Harley and jump over a pool of sharks on the tube this week, but in the end this odd little exercise isn't likely to be either tragic or socially useful.

It is most likely to be merely silly.

It is going to happen as the dramatic conclusion to a full 90 minutes of this sort of thing, performed by a variety of strange people on a show called "Evel Kneivel's Death Defiers."

The organization guilty of this show is CBS, and it has scheduled Evel and his colleagues to appear in the heart of the evening, from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Monday.

Along with him will be the ever-present and somewhat boring Karl Wallenda on his ever-present and somewhat boring high wire, a guy named Joe Gerlach who jumps out of tall buildings on to big pieces of rubber, and a person who calls himself "The Human Bomb" and spends short periods of time sharing small spaces like boxes and barrels with exploding dynamite.

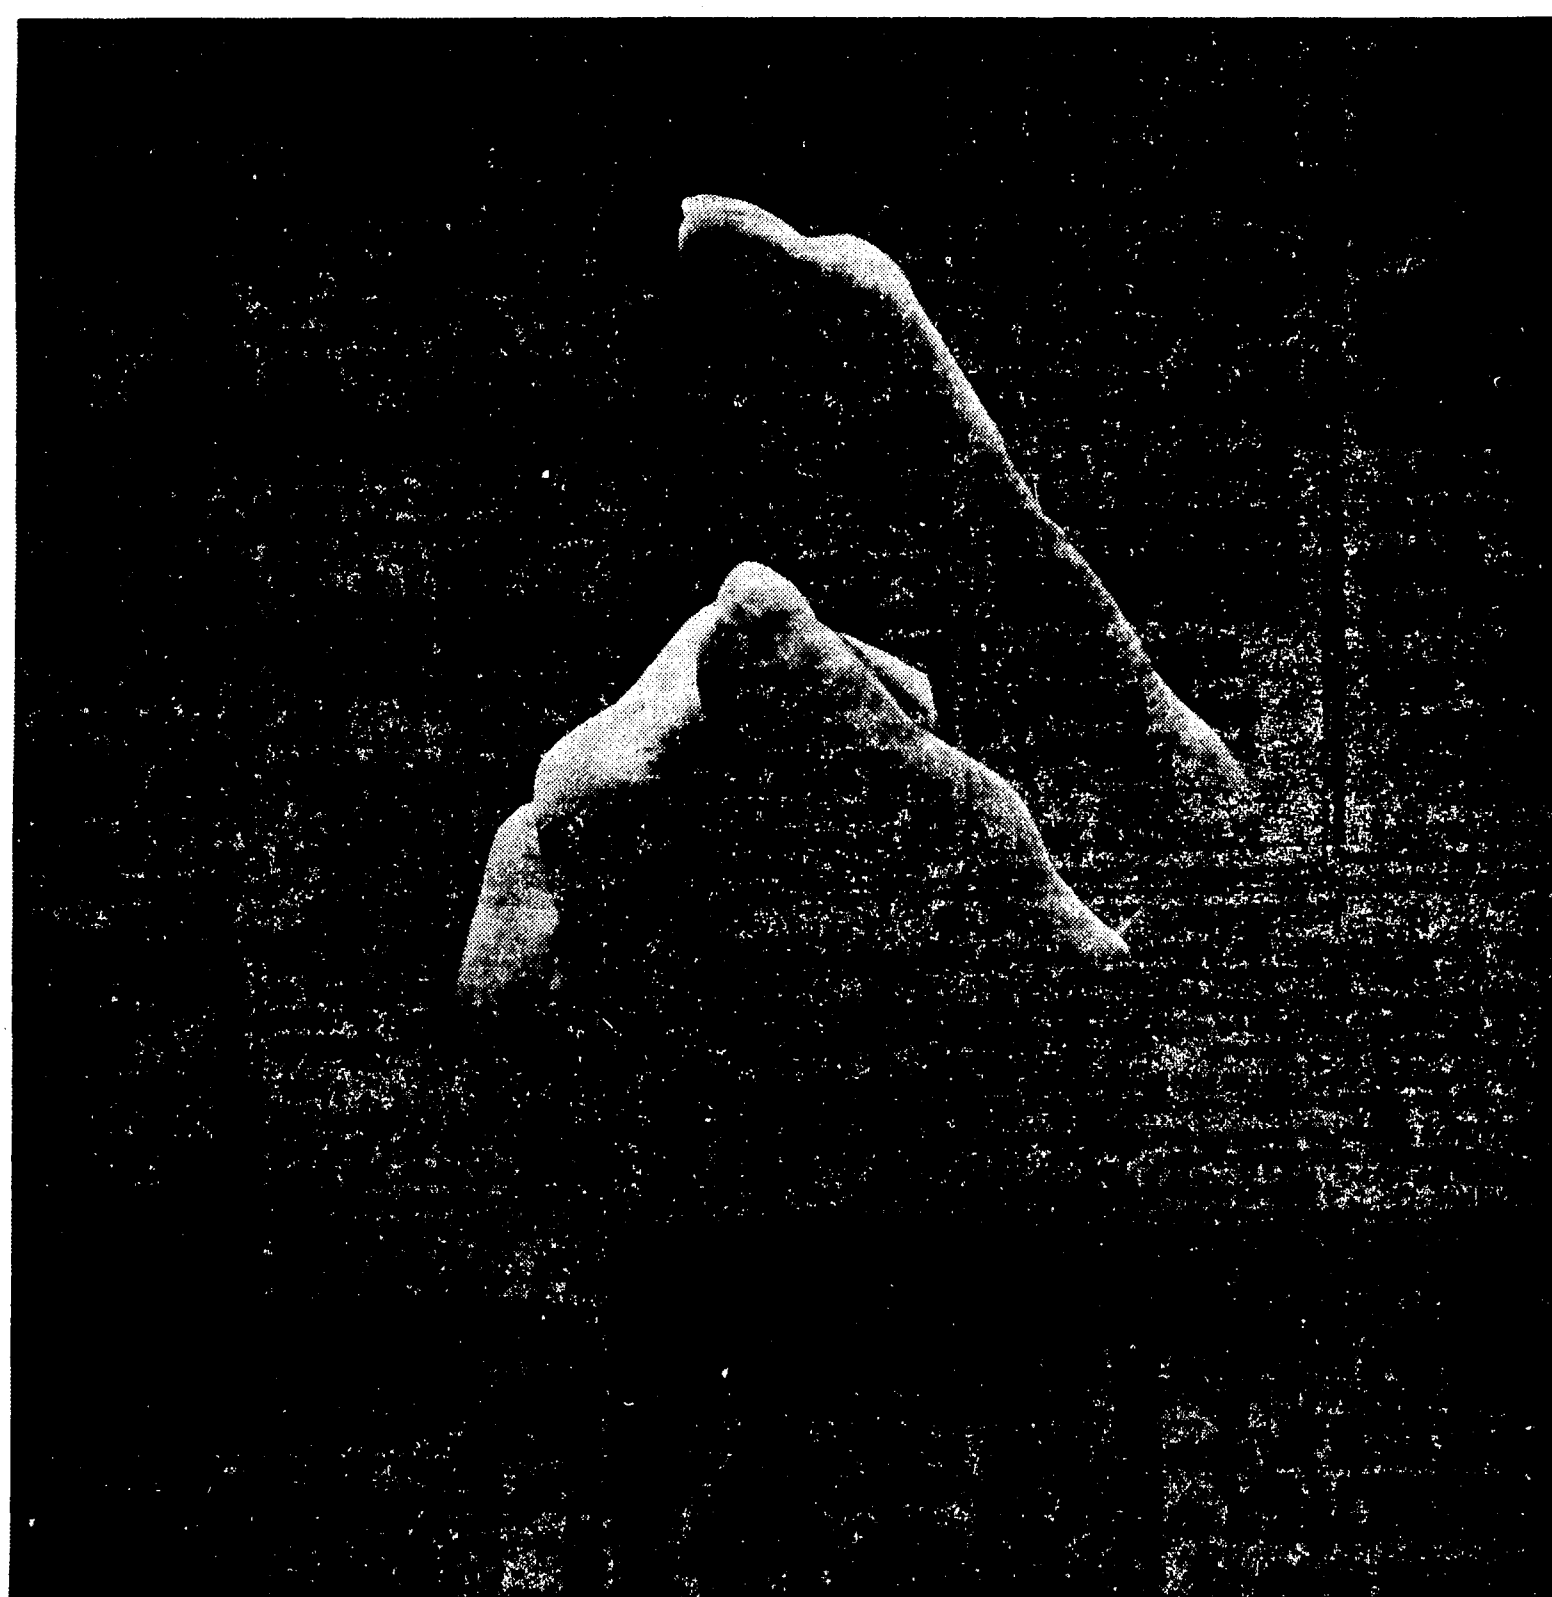

There will be other daredevil types, too, all over the country. CBS will flash from place to place, catching them at work. Presiding over all this will be Telly Savalas and Jill St. John. It is possible that they, too, took their jobs on a dare.

But back to the weird part, the sharks. It was probably inevitable that Evel Kneivel would figure out a way to work sharks into his act, even though he missed the big "Jaws" boom because it overlapped his attempt to sputter over Idaho's Snake River Canyon in a steam rocket a couple years back.

But if all goes as planned, 13 lemon sharks (that's their name, not necessarily a comment on their quality) collected along the Florida coast will be flown to Chicago and placed in a 90-by-50-foot tank four feet deep on the floor of the Chicago Amphitheatre. Someone, Savalas or St. John or maybe Kneivel himself, will talk about how menacing the sharks are, what could happen to a man — or a motorcycle in their toothy grasp and how Kneivel doesn't really want to take this kind of risk but his fans expect it of him.

Then he'll jump his bike off a ramp, fly over the tank and survive.

It doesn't care who it hurts, either. Arthritis is our nation's #1 crippler. It can hit anyone, anywhere. Hands, legs, backs, hips, shoulders. If there's a place that can hurt, it can be ravaged by arthritis. The only common denominator is pain. And right now, there's no cure. Kris Kristofferson Barbra Streisand

La Streisand Grants Interview

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES - The surprise hit of the new movie season might well be "A Star Is Born." Why a surprise?

Because most of Hollywood seemed to be predicting its failure.

"No picture ever had such bad talk about it," says Barbra Streisand. "Everybody jumped on the thing that the star hired a producer who was her boyfriend and had been a hairdresser. It was a base journalistic setup."

"But I think we profited from the backlash to all the bad publicity," adds Jon Peters, her producer-boyfriend and onetime hairdresser. "People are discovering the film for themselves and saying that the critics were all wrong."

Streisand and Peters were in a state of exhilaration when a reporter called at her Holmby Hills manse on a sunny January afternoon. She sat on the floor of the living room and poured tea; the black-bearded Peters reclined on the couch and chided her for indulging in the sweets. The words tumbled out from both of them as they discussed the aftermath of "A Star Is Born."

"Right now the prediction for the domestic (U.S. and Canada) film rental is between 40 and 50 million," Peters said. "Proportionately we're doing as well as 'King Kong' and in some places better."

"I believe it will do just as well world-wide as it does here."

Peters. "That's when Barbra took over and edited the film herself. The work was staggering - 18 hours a day from July to December. When she got through, Kris's performance was terrific."

"And Pierson accused me of padding my own part in the cutting!" Streisand exploded. "Many times I cut my own shots out if Kris was better in his."

She added that she has received a large amount of letters from people who say they were profoundly moved by the film. "Then maybe we succeeded in what we were trying to do: to tell certain truths about today's life," she said.

"In old movies, love affairs were never clouded by conflict. No matter what happened, the sweethearts never argued. In our picture you have two people who have to fight to stay alive. They are desperate to work out a relationship."

"In the old movie when Fredric March disgraces her at the awards, Janet Gaynor comes home and takes off his shoes because he's too drunk to do it himself. In our picture I say, 'What are you gonna do for an encore - set yourself on fire?' In fact some of the scenes were so rough we had to cut them ...

"She could never get to him. The film shows the power of communication. To stay alive you must communicate."

Did Barbra actually direct some of the movie, as Pierson charged?

"You bet I did!" she replied vigorously. "I was forced to do it. Either that or fire the director, and get somebody else which would have only added to all the bad press."

"I dealt very closely with the actors, and I'm proud of what I accomplished. Especially with Kris (Kristofferson). He is my greatest joy, the fact that I was able to help him bring the character to life, to make him feel secure as an actor."

Some reviewers, including this one, observed that Kristofferson finally came alive as an actor in "A Star Is Born." His performance providing a needed balance to the always dynamic Streisand. Yet when Warner Brothers saw the first cut of the film, they despaired of the actor's work and hence the film.

"Warners panicked," said

Sometimes, when people agree with Norm Crosby, he gets a little uneasy.

As when he asserts "the country is in economical reluctance." Or, as he told a crowd why they came to see him: "A subliminal suction magnetized you."

"Sometimes, I say things that are totally ridiculous. But instead of laughing, some people nod. 'Oh, yes,'" says the 47-year-old master of the malaprop.

The freshly tanned Crosby, who left Honolulu "and the luau, the pupus, and the mums" after doing "The Don Ho Show," says he's enjoying a leveling in his nine-year career. ("Wherever I go it's super - the best clubs, Vegas.")

In the manner of many budding comics, Crosby began by borrowing material from people he saw on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

"I was always the funny kid in the neighborhood," says the former Bostonian. Eventually he started performing for friends at company parties, church suppers, temple breakfasts. Then he graduated to governors' and police chiefs' banquets.

Then one day he brazenly quit his job as advertising manager at a ladies' shoe store. His boss asked if he was crazy and offered to reserve his job. But Crosby already had made the shoe-to-show business transition.

"I wasn't enthralled with show business, per se. I thought more of the business (end). And I had nothing to lose really. I was single and living with my parents at the time."

He also was receiving disability payments. During the war his eardrums were shattered in an explosion and his hearing was impaired.

MR. MALAPROP

A Confusing Comic

Crosby, who wears hearing aids, has become a spokesman for the Better Hearing Institute in Washington (he's a trustee for the Hope for Hearing Foundation in Los Angeles).

Crosby's brand of humor developed from a conversation with a night club owner who asked Crosby to find out if a dancer in the show was "staying over or communicating."

"Nobody was playing with words - I thought that it could be a funny way to go." After debuting in New York's Latin Quarter, and eventually on "The Tonight Show," Crosby carved his niche.

He doesn't prepare everything in advance ("That's too mechanical"). "Of course I don't create 40 minutes when I walk out, either. But I don't do everything in the same sequence every night." He says his barometer is his "permanent people" - the guys in the band who see him every night. "They can't fake enthusiasm."

"If it's cold I might talk about the snow and the slush and the frigidity with delinquent gales flowing from the lake from pollution. It varies - but I embellish every night." He tailors his act to his audience.

He has his favorite lines. On a Mike Douglas show he was introduced to a medium and asked if he had ever met one before. "No, but I've met a lot of well-dones," he quipped, to which Douglas countered, "That's rare."

Not everyone appreciates his humor. Economist and Tribune columnist Eliot Janeway almost punched Crosby out after an exchange on the "Dinah" show. "That's a rumor." And on the sagging economy, he taunted, "How does the money know if it's soft or hard?"

"You fool, this is not a laughing matter," Janeway is said to have growled.

Crosby himself dabbled in the talk show format. About two years ago he did a daily 90-minute show that almost was picked up by CBS. With 100 shows in the can, the Canadian network he worked with went bankrupt.

Now, he is waiting for a TV situation comedy series in which he can play himself. "I'm not hungry money-wise or career-wise. I don't have to prove anything - I can wait."

Off stage, Crosby is a family man who prefers to stay home. He might get together with close friends Dean Martin, Don Rickles, or Bob Newhart.

"I'm not a big goer-outer. I like to tinker in the garage workshop or play golf."

Absurd Drama In Brooklyn

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) - Absurd drama most wild comes to the Chelsea Theater Center in a long-neglected Polish play, "The Crazy Locomotive."

Stop and look emphatically, but listen only occasionally to the cartoon spectacle that opened Wednesday at the experimental stage center in Brooklyn.

Though reportedly being done now for the first time in English translation, the bizarre piece was written in 1923 by Stanislaw Ignacy Witkiewicz, a pioneer in surrealist poetry and painting. In a dozen plays he was obsessed with the nothingness of human existence.

In "The Crazy Locomotive" he plunged into futuristic shock after reading Einstein's theory of relativity. At the center of chaotic plotting are a pair of famous criminals driving a trainload of unwilling passengers to apocalyptic destruction.

NBC Pays $82 Million For Moscow Rights

In a hurried mission to Moscow to outmaneuver ABC, NBC has snared exclusive U.S. television rights to the 1980 Summer Olympics there for a fee of $82 million.

NBC was aided in negotiations by a West German contact, Lothar P. Bock, who has dealt with the Soviets for years in theatrical ventures. Bock, 38, lives in Munich.

Until last week, Bock had spent 18 months as a CBS emissary seeking to obtain the Olympics for CBS. Last Tuesday CBS announced its "unequivocal withdrawal" from negotiations.

Without giving any details of its quick deal, NBC announced Sunday that it had reached agreement with the Soviet Olympic Organizing Committee and the Soviet Committee for Television for rights to the games. The formal contract "will be signed shortly," NBC said.

In what was then a well-guarded secret, Robert T. Howard, president of the NBC-TV network, and two other NBC executives left here for Moscow last Thursday night. The others were Carl Lindemann Jr., vice president of sports, and Ben Raub, a vice president in the legal department.

They were accompanied by Bock, who only that morning had approached NBC about helping it to negotiate with the Soviets. Bock went to NBC after he had been released from his CBS commitment the night before.

The NBC group arrived in Moscow Friday night and within 36 hours they reached agreement with Soviet authorities. Boone Arledge, president of ABC Sports, was reported to be in Moscow Sunday, having arrived the day after the NBC group. Another ABC Sports executive declined comment Sunday on the NBC announcement.

The NBC deal ended any possibility that the Satra Corp., an international trading company, might get rights to the Moscow Olympics. Satra said last month it had signed a protocol, a preliminary step in obtaining rights, with the Russians.

The $82 million NBC will pay for the Moscow Olympics more than triple the $25 million that ABC paid last year for the Summer Olympics in Montreal. ABC has televised most Olympics — winter and summer — since 1968. NBC covered the Summer Olympics in Tokyo in 1964 and the Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, in 1972.

ABC, CBS and NBC went to Moscow last month expecting to bid competitively on rights to the Summer Olympics. But they terminated negotiations after the Soviets insisted that about 85 per cent of the fee be paid by July 1, 1979, a year before the Olympics. With so much money at stake the networks then decided to seek a pool arrangement and share the costs and risks. Recently they asked the Justice Department to exempt their proposal from antitrust law, but the department has not yet replied.

After CBS withdrew last Tuesday, ABC said it would reassess the situation and review all courses of action open to the company. NBC said then it was still interested in a pool arrangement with ABC.

It's Another Record For Watson

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "It's getting monotonous, but I love this kind of monotony," joyful Tom Watson said Sunday after a second consecutive, record-setting triumph, this one in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

"I can't recall playing this well this long," said Watson, who built a six-shot lead with eight holes to play and cruised in with relaxed, confident ease and a closing three-under-par 69. "I just hope it continues."

"I was driving the ball about as well as I can possibly hit it. That was the key."

"I can't harp on this enough. It was my driving. And that's where I had my problems before — I'd always hit it in the rough or in the bushes somewhere."

This time, however, he hit it so well — so long and true — the par fives were cut down to par fours. And that meant the difference. He reached three of the four par five holes with two big swings and birdied them all. In all, he played the long holes a distant 13-under-par for the week.

"I have discovered, over the last couple of weeks, it is much easier playing from the fairways than out of the trees."

Watson, who broke a tournament record by four strokes with his 14-under-par winning total in the Bing Crosby last week, took this one with a 269 total, 19 under par and under the tournament record by three shots.

The freckle-faced, red-haired, 27-year-old made this one look easy. He opened the warm, sunny final round with a two-shot lead, increased it to four at the turn, engineered a two-stroke swing in his favor on the next hole and acquired his sixth career title by a relaxed, five-shot margin.

The former British Open champion, who has played his last nine rounds in subpar figures, collected $36,000 from the total purse of $180,000, became the year's leading money-winner with $86,700 and, as a multiple title-holder, became only the third man to win his way into the World Series of Golf. Jack Nicklaus and World Cup winner Ernesto Perez Acosta of Mexico are the others.

A hole-in-one during Thursday's first round helped, but Watson built this triumph on his domination of the par-five holes. He had a string of 10 consecutive birdies on those long holes, ending on the 13th Sunday, and played them 13 under par for the week.

He also chipped in once during the week, holed it for a birdie from a bunker on the third hole Sunday and saved par from off the green on the 14th.

Those heroics made the title chase not a matter of "who?" but "by how much?" and left the national television commentators little to discuss except the fight for second place.

That ended in a tie when Larry Nelson rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole and caught John Schroeder. They finished at 274, Schroeder with a closing 67 and Nelson with a 69.

Australian rookie Bob Shearer, who started the last round two shots back and the only man who really had a chance at catching Watson, slipped to a 73 and was tied with Jerry McGee at 275. J.C. Snead, the winner of the last two San Diego events, never really got in the chase here. He finished with a 75 and a 283 total.

Watson now has finished fourth, first and first in his last three starts and has played those three tournaments a stunning 42 under par.

He opened this one with a 66, followed with rounds of 67 and 67 and wrapped it up neatly with the final 69 that included a birdie on the final hole.

The Stanford graduate in psychology, rapidly becoming one of the game's finest gate attractions, helped pull a tournament-record 29,000 fans to the sun-splashed, seaside Torrey Pines Golf Club — and he didn't disappoint them at all.

He nailed it down quickly. Watson birdied the second from about 15 feet, holed the bunker shot on the third, had a four-stroke lead and really wasn't challenged after that.

Although he's only 5-foot-9 and 160 pounds, it was his length off the tee that led to his success on the par-fives. And that was the key to the victory. He reached three of them with two big shots Sunday and two-putted for birdies on all three.

He three-putted twice for bogey and failed to get it up and down after he missed the eighth green. But it really didn't matter. No one was close and it only cut into his already comfortable winning margin.

Stockton Finally Beats Connors On Pro Circuit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I hit the ball unbelievably well," said Dick Stockton Sunday after upsetting the world's ranking tennis star, Jimmy Connors, in the U.S. Indoor Pro Tennis Championships.

The steady Stockton beat Connors 3-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, to earn the $40,000 first prize before a stunned crowd of 14,571.

"I guess I never hit the ball so well before," said the 25-year-old Stockton, who had never beaten Connors in their pro careers. The last Stockton victory over Connors was in the 1969 national Junior Championships.

Stockton insisted that despite his lack of success against Connors on the professional tennis tour he was not in awe of the U.S. Open champion.

"People seem to have the opinion that it's Connors and then everybody else," said Stockton. "Sure, he's No. 1 in the world. But there are a lot of players capable of beating him."

"Americans like myself who grew up with him are not awed by him and can beat him. Foreigners think there is no way to beat him."

Stockton said that he had always felt that if he went out and played to his capability, he could beat anybody.

Both Stockton and Connors said the key to the match was in the fifth game of the fourth set when Connors was ahead 40-15 on Stockton's serve. But Stockton came back to win the game.

"If he'd have won that game," Stockton said, "he could have run over me." Later, Connors agreed.

Stockton, who lost here in a four-set semifinal to Connors last year, advanced during the week-long, upset-filled tournament with victories over John Alexander, Brian Gottfried, Ken Rosewall and Jeff Borowiak.

This was the first World Championship Tennis defeat for Connors, who was 3-0 last year and won the season opener two weeks ago in Birmingham, Ala.

Connors stroked into the final with an aura of invincibility, wasting Buster Mottram, Wojtek Fibak, Tony Roche and Cliff Drysdale.

He never lost more than three games in a set in any of those matches.

Connors had been described Saturday night by his semifinal victim, Drysdale, as the best player of the last 15 years. But Stockton, a native of New York City who calls Dallas home, obviously was unimpressed.

"I heard over a newscast at 11 o'clock last night (Saturday) that I didn't have a chance," Stockton said. "I guess me and my wife were the only ones who thought I could win."

Connors started strong, breaking Stockton in the first game of the opening set and holding service for a 6-3 victory. But Stockton, apparently gaining confidence with each stroke, shattered Connors' opening service of the second set and went on to win 6-4.

Stockton's strategy appeared to be to come in and take Connors' services on the rise. He had the defending champion repeatedly overdriving the baselines.

Connors won the third set of the three-hour plus match with a service break in the fourth game. He had Stockton missing with low shots that landed at Stockton's feet. From the break, they played out service for a 6-3 Connors win.

In the fourth set, Stockton held his service at the start and broke through Connors in the second game by outslugging the game's greatest power hitter from the baselines.

Connors was just a fraction over the baseline on several key points. As the crowd waited for Connors to rally, Stockton broke him again in game 6, winning the last two points by forcing errors from the best basics player in the game.

In the final set, Stockton, sensing his first pro victory over Connors, broke service in the first game and kept the pressure on in an easy 6-2 set and match victory.

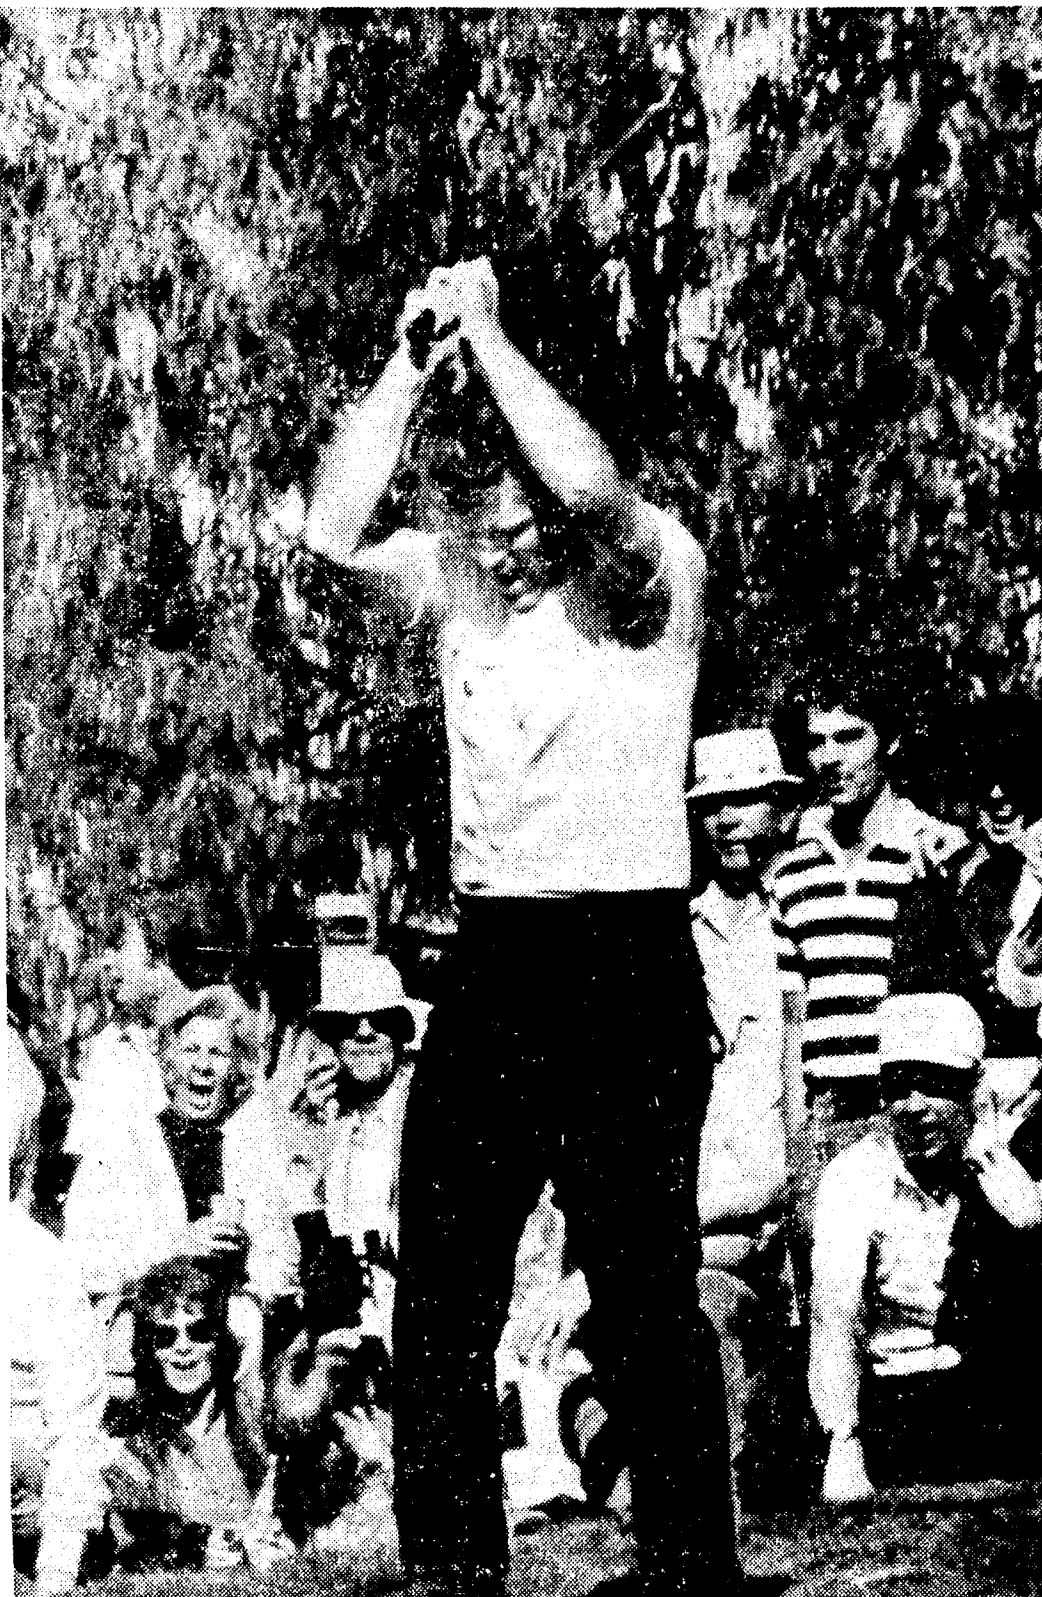

In the final game of the set, Stockton opened with a service ace and passed Connors' with two sizzling forehand placements for a 40-0 lead. Connors came back on a passing shot, but overdrove the baseline as Stockton leaped in the air to symbolize victory.

Stockton, the 10th-ranking U.S. player, earned $138,766 last year. He is a graduate of Trinity University and a former National Collegiate and Junior champion. He was handicapped in recent years with a back problem that he said was helped with acupuncture.

The 24-year-old Connors led all money winners in 1976 with $687,335. He won the U.S. Open title for the second time in three years, but was eliminated in the quarter-finals in Wimbledon.

Lakers Extend Home Streak To 19 Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points, 13 in the fourth quarter, to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a comeback behind 101-99 National Basketball Association victory over the New Orleans Jazz Sunday night.

The Lakers won their 19th straight game at home and New Orleans lost its 10th straight road game.

Trailing 92-86 with 5:30 to play, Los Angeles outscored the Jazz 15-7 down the stretch. The win keeps them one-half game behind the Portland Trailblazers in the Pacific Division, with a 32-16 record. With Los Angeles leading 101-98 on two free-throws by Earl Tatum, Pete Maravich drove the lane and was fouled by Abdul-Jabbar in a bonus foul situation. Maravich missed the first shot, converted the second, and intentionally missed the third free-throw, hoping for a Jazz rebound.

Abdul-Jabbar got the rebound, but his outlet pass was intercepted by Nate Williams, who missed from the corner with one second remaining.

Maravich led all scorers with 29 points. However, he did not score his first point until seven minutes remained in the second quarter. For the game, he was 11 for 33 from the field and 7 for 9 from the line.

Williams scored 24 points coming off the bench for New Orleans, and Cazzie Russell and Don Chaney each scored 16 for the Lakers.

Bruins March Through Vols In Atlanta, 103-89

ATLANTA (AP) — Marques Johnson of UCLA thanked the big, staring eye of national television for the eighth-ranked Bruins' 103-89 college basketball romp over No. 7 Tennessee Sunday.

"We had been there before," said Johnson. "They started off tight. They were on national TV and that's probably something new for them. We were more relaxed than they were."

Johnson and sophomores David Greenwood and Roy Hamilton combined for 76 points to lead the Bruins to the surprisingly easy victory, one that snapped Tennessee's 12-game winning streak.

"It was a grueling game," said Coach Gene Bartow of UCLA. "We can't shoot much better than we shot. I was hoping we would play as well as we did. We beat an awfully good team."

The Bruins, who never trailed, took control early, opening leads of 11 points after six minutes of play and stretching it to 15 before halftime.

"I thought the first 10 minutes we set the momentum and it was very critical," Bartow said. "It got us moving."

Meanwhile, Coach Ray Mears of Tennessee said, "We haven't played anyone as awesome as they are. I haven't seen a better team than UCLA looked today."

The Vols managed one flurry that brought a predominantly Tennessee crowd to its feet early in the second half. Ernie Grunfeld converted a three-point play that narrowed the lead to 56-52 with just under 17 minutes left.

left in the game. Tennessee's record fell to 14-3

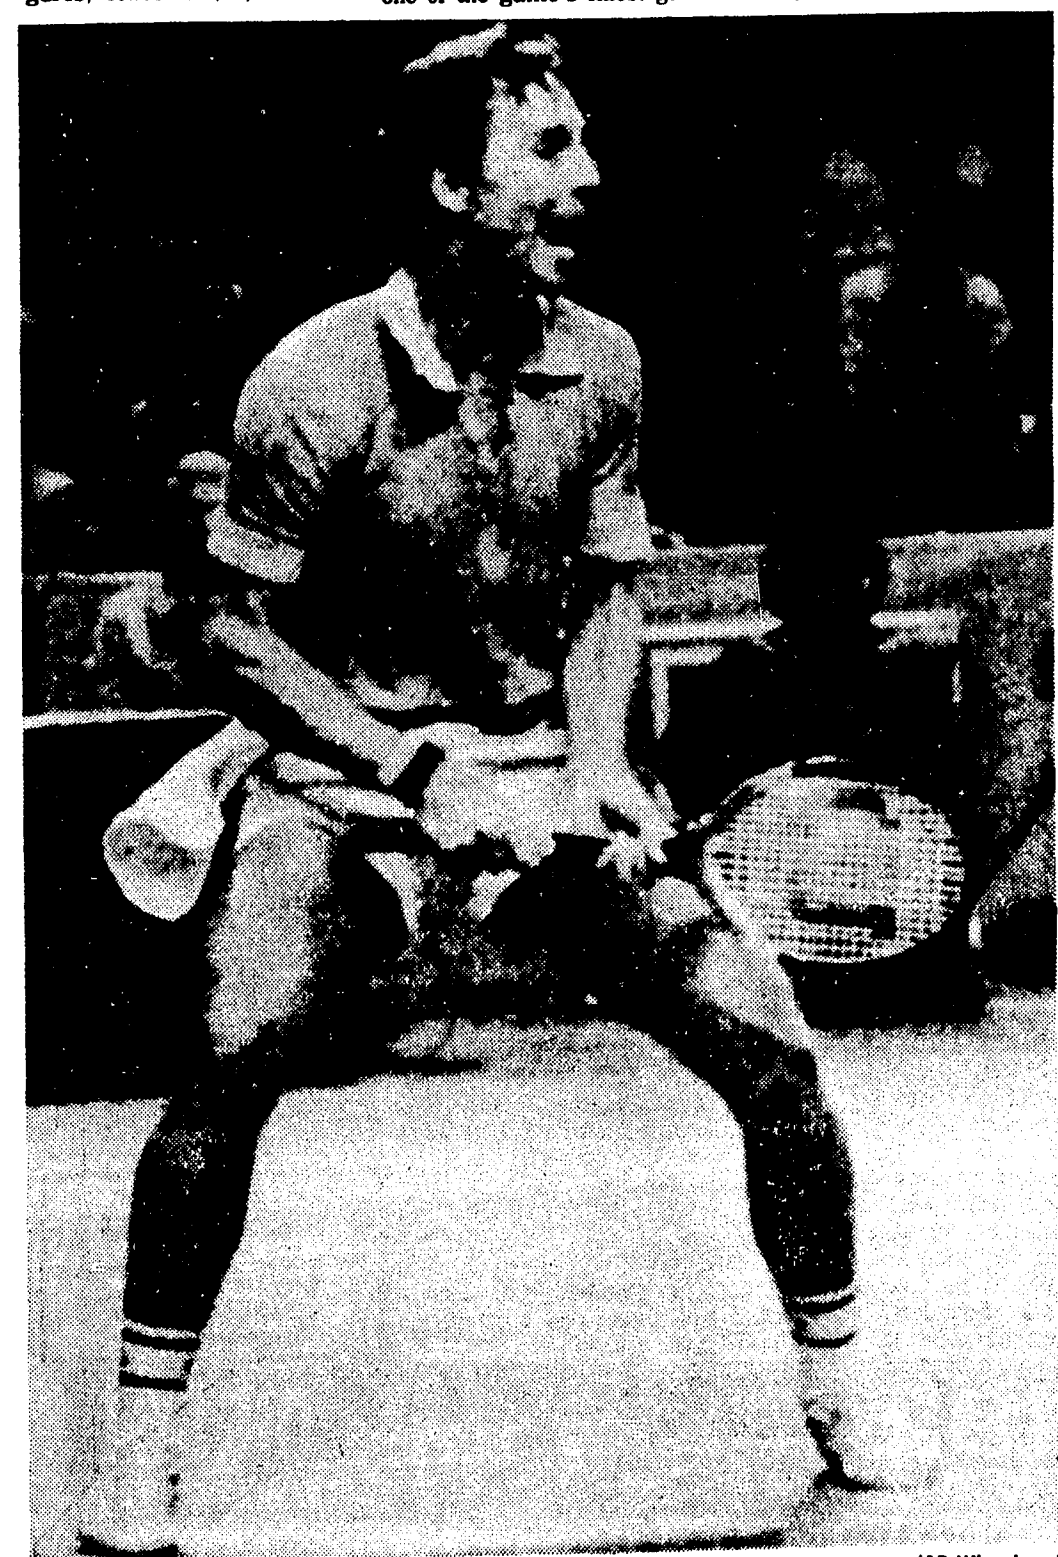

The Bruins then went on a 31-18 streak that put the game out of reach, lifting their lead to 87-70 with 6:50 remaining.

Hamilton, a sophomore, poured in 30 points as UCLA reeled off its sixth straight victory and lifted its record to 16-2. Johnson, a senior, added 24 points and Greenwood, a sophomore who sat out much of the second half in foul trouble, added 22.

Bernard King was the leading scorer for Tennessee with 31 points, and Grunfeld had 23 before fouling out with 5:14 left.

DiMaggio and Graham Win AA Golf Classic

By ART PARRA
SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The team of Joe DiMaggio and Otto Graham won the 11th annual American Airlines Golf Classic Sunday afternoon at the McCormick Ranch Country Club as the former New York Yankee "Clipper" sank a five-foot putt on the second sudden death hole.

It marked the ninth time DiMaggio and Graham had played together in this event featuring a baseball and football player as a team. The duo are "Hall of Fame" entries.

The five-foot putt was a pressure stroke after runner-ups Clyde Wright and Joe Namath had each bogied the 180-yard par 3 second hole.

DiMaggio stepped up to his ball, took aim and drilled it straight into the cup, winning $10,000 for the pair.

Both Graham and DiMaggio immediately announced their purses of $5000 each would be given to charity.

Said DiMaggio, "Class will tell. Otto and I have been telling these guys for 9 years we were the best. When we got on a course where accuracy made the difference instead of sheer strength, we showed them. My share of the purse will go to several charities in the San Francisco area."

Graham echoed the comments of DiMaggio but added, "My share will be given to the United States Coast Guard Academy Athletic Association. I am doing this knowing everyone is going to pay their taxes quick this year. You see, as a member of the Coast Guard, my income is from tax payers generosity."

The 54-hole tournament, played before a huge crowd with most following combinations of DiMaggio-Graham and Wright-Namath, ended with both teams shooting net 61's for a total of 181.

Picking up second money was worth $2500 each to Wright and Namath. Wright, now negotiating his 1977 contract with the Tokyo Giants in the Japan Major League, announced his purse would go to fix Mrs. Wright's teeth again. "That will take about $1800 of it. The rest will be used for a big party...and you know what that means."

Namath admitted he would keep his share of the money. Buddy Bell, Cleveland Indians third-baseman, and Paul Warfield, Cleveland Browns wide-receiver, finished third with 182, one stroke back. The two shot a 61 for final day. Phil Garner, (Oakland A's) Fred Biletnikoff (Oakland Raiders) were next at 183, also coming home with a final round of 61.

Co-leaders at the end of 36 holes, Bobby Grich (California Angels) and Steve Zabel (New England Patriots) shot a 66, finishing with 186. Don Sutton (Los Angeles Dodgers) and Jim Hart (St. Louis Cardinals) each picked up $500 with a total of 184, shooting 61 Sunday.

PARRA-graphs — The popular tournament will be played in the Phoenix area again next year...Clyde Wright was a last minute substitute for Thurman Snow (New York Yankees), snuffed in at Cleveland...The two 1976 DCY Young award pitchers were seen playing catch behind the hotel. Randy Jones (San Diego Padres-National) and Jim Palmer (Baltimore Orioles-American) even let Don Sutton join the fun...The victory Sunday for DiMaggio and Graham makes slightly more than $20,000 they have won in nine trips to the tee.

Duran May Get World Title Bout

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Roberto Duran, seemingly in a class by himself in the lightweight division but unable to call himself undisputed world champion, might soon get his chance to settle that dispute.

Don King, who promoted Duran's 13th-round knockout of Vilomar Fernandez here Saturday, is trying to set up a fight between Duran, champion of the World Boxing Association, and Esteban DeJesus of Puerto Rico, champion of the World Boxing Council.

DeJesus is the only man ever to beat Duran, winning a 10-round decision in a non-title fight about six months after Duran gained the title by stopping Ken Buchanan in the 13th round on June 26, 1972.

Duran avenged the loss by knocking out DeJesus in the 11th round of a WBA title fight March 16, 1974. DeJesus is scheduled to defend the WBC title in Puerto Rico Feb. 12 against Buzzsaw Yamabe of Japan.

The lightweight title, as with most others, has been split in the power struggle between the two groups.

Fernandez Saturday as DeJesus watched at ringside. Finally catching up with him, Duran scored his knockout with 2:10 gone in the 13th round. He drove home a solid left to the side and followed with a right to the belly, causing Fernandez to crumple to his knees.

Fernandez was able to walk to his corner after the 10 count. Later, he said the "good shot to the body" left him groggy and unable to see.

Fernandez' rights caught pursuing Duran occasionally, but lacked the power to slow the Panamanian champion. Fernandez, a native of the Dominican Republic and a resident of New York, has scored only five knockouts in his 20-6-1 pro career.

Duran, meanwhile, is a human buzz-saw who goes for the knockout. He has succeeded in all 10 of his title defenses and 45 of his 56 fights.

"It didn't bother me that he ran a lot," said Duran. "I knew I'd catch him."

The crowd paid up to $40 with no guarantee the bout would go longer than the one round it took Duran to floor

Alvaro Rojas three months ago. The fans didn't mind the shift tactics of Fernandez.

In fact, referee Servio Lay of Panama drew lusty boos from the 1,400 present in the indoor tennis facility at the Hotel Fontainebleau when he told Fernandez to mix it up during a circling, non-punching routine in the fifth round.

Fernandez took some of Duran's best punches during the bout. He admitted to being tired from the 10th round on, but until he collapsed from the body punches in the 13th, he'd shown little sign of wilting.

Duran credited Fernandez for being a "valiant fighter well prepared" after it was over.

At 23, Fernandez is two years younger than Duran. He's lighter, too, scaling 132½ to the champion's 133½ at weigh-in.

The 25-year-old Duran earned $60,000 and Fernandez, 23, got $20,000.

Leonard Makes Pro Debut

Sugar Ray Leonard, an Olympic gold medalist, launches his pro career this week while Emile Griffith opens his 19th year, hoping to win a world title for the sixth time.

The 21-year-old Leonard, of Palmer Park, Md., will fight a six-round lightweight bout against Luis Vega of Allentown, Pa., Saturday in Baltimore and for CBS-TV.

Griffith, who will be 39 next Thursday, will fight Christy Elliott, an Irishman living in New Jersey, in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Griffith, who held the world welterweight and middleweight titles a total of five times, lost a disputed decision in a bid for the junior middleweight title last year and says he hopes to get another shot a championship.

The featured 10-rounder on the Garden show will pit Wilfredo Benitez of Puerto Rico against Harold Weston of New York, who is rated among the top 10 welterweight contenders by the World Boxing Association and the World Boxing Council.

Benitez, 26-0, recently was stripped of the WBA junior welterweight title for failure to defend within a prescribed time.

The week's schedule: Tuesday, Sean O'Grady, Oklahoma City, vs. Earl Large, Clovis, N.M., 10, super bantams. Wednesday, At New York, Madison Square Garden, Wilfredo Benitez, Puerto Rico, vs. Harold Weston, New York, 10, welter; Emile Griffith, New York, vs. Christy Elliott, Ireland, 10, middle; Pedro Soto, Puerto Rico, vs. Brian O'Melia, Jersey City, N.J., 10, heavies. Saturday, At Baltimore, Civic Center, Sugar Ray Leonard, Palmer Park, Md., vs. Luis Vega, Allentown, Pa., 6, light; Ralph Padilla, Baltimore, vs. Angel Garcia, New York, 10, welter; Frank Kolovrat, Cleveland, vs. Jimmy Savage, Philadelphia, 10, welter.

At Winterinternals Prudhomme Shatters Mark

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Don Prudhomme posted the fastest speed in Funny Car drag racing history Sunday and won his third consecutive championship in the National Hot Rod Association Winterinternals.

Prudhomme, the two-time defending Winston World Champion from Granada Hills, Calif., raced past Raymond Beadle of Dallas Tex., in the Funny Car finals with a time of 6.03 seconds and a finish line speed of 247.25 miles per hour.

No one other than Prudhomme had ever before run faster than 240 MPH in a bodied race car and Prudhomme's own previous best was only 241.53 MPH.

In the other racing categories, Jerry Ruth of Seattle, Wash., won Top Fuel; Larry Lombardo of Malvern, Pa., Pro Stock; Dave Settles of Euless, Tex., Pro Comp; John Lingenfelter of Hoagland, Ind., Competition; Tony Christian of Arlington Heights, Ill., Modified; Dave Boertman of Muskogon, Mich., Super Stock; and Chad Langdon, Garden Grove, Calif., Stock.

Ruth, the 1973 World Champion and runner-up at the 1974 Winterinternals, upset Don Garlits of Seffner, Fla., in the finals after low qualifier Shirley Muldowney of Mt. Clemens, Mich., was eliminated in the first round by an equipment malfunction.

Lombardo, driving for four-time Winterinternals winner Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins, not only beat Don Nicholson of Orange, Calif., for the money but also established a new national top speed record for Pro Stock cars at 159.29 MPH. The old mark of 158.73 was held by Warren Johnson of Fridley, Minn.

Gushiken kept down from a third-round knockdown Sunday and retained the World Boxing Association junior flyweight championship with a split 15-round decision over Jaime Rios of Panama.

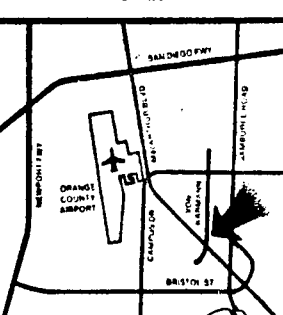

Gushiken went down from a right to the jaw for a mandatory eight count in the third round and was cut over both eyes. But he became more aggressive in the fourth round and appeared in control from the 10th round on, mixing a two-fisted attack to the head and body.

"It's a very bad decision," said Harmodio Icaza, co-manager of Rios, who once held the title. "Rios scored a knockdown and a cut over both eyes of Gushiken. Rios won 10 rounds and it's impossible that he lost... I am going to protest to the World Boxing Association."

Upsets Sting Top College Cage Teams

San Francisco's latest victory left Coach Bob Galliard speechless. Galliard was unable to talk for five minutes after San Francisco's game Saturday night, a heart-stopper in which the top-ranked Dons erased a 16-point second-half deficit to beat Santa Clara 71-70 on a basket by Chubby Cox with two seconds left. "Santa Clara outplayed us," said Galliard, when he finally found his voice. "But we got the ball to the right guy at the right time." So the Dons got a big scare but managed to keep their perfect record intact at 21-0. But the three top challengers to San Francisco's No. 1 ranking were not so fortunate. All fell by the wayside. No. 2 Michigan was upset by Big Ten rival Northwestern

No. 7 UCLA defeated Tennessee, 103-89 in a nationally televised game from the Omni in Atlanta. No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas lost to Athletics in Action 104-77 in an exhibition game. No. 14 Providence did not play and No. 17 Syracuse's game against LaSalle was postponed because of heavy snow. Many other games also were called off because of harsh weather, including everything in the Mid-American Conference. San Francisco trailed by as many as 16 points in the second half, came back to take the lead with a 25-6 spurt, then fell behind 70-67 on Roy Taylor's steal and dunk with 1:45 to go. A tip-in by Marlon Redmond then brought the Dons within one with 58 seconds left.

Santa Clara went into a stall to try and kill the clock and Kurt Rambis was fouled with nine seconds left. But he missed the front end of a one-and-one and the ball bounced out of bounds - off Santa Clara. Cox then took the inbound pass and drove the length of the court, putting up the gamewinning shot with two seconds left. Cox led the Dons with 14 points. Text Winter called Northwestern's upset of Michigan "the sweetest win I've ever had in basketball in 30 years." Guard Billy McKinney was Northwestern's big gun with 29 points and also the key man because of his ballhandling. "Michigan is the quickest team in college basketball," said Winter. "They rely on a pressure defense. Some teams break the pressure defense but are unable to score. We broke it and did score." Northwestern jumped ahead 45-39 at the half, built the lead to 13 at 70-57 and then withstood a comeback which brought Michigan within two. "It was our third game on the road this week, but that had no bearing on the loss," said Michigan Coach Johnny Orr. "Give Northwestern credit. They outplayed us and outshot us. We made a comeback, but we couldn't contain them. And McKinney was absolutely phenomenal." Kentucky scored a big road victory over Alabama, Jack Givens' two free throws with 14 seconds remaining clinching the triumph. In the SEC race, Tennessee leads with an 8-0 mark. Kentucky is now 7-1 and Alabama is 6-2. They have played each other once, with one more meeting to go. "To say that I am pleased is the understatement of my life," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "It was just beautiful to me. We really executed well down the stretch." Kentucky led for most of the second half, but Rickey Brown's three-point play tied it for Alabama at 83-83 with 2:02 to go. Rick Robey gave Kentucky the lead for good with two free throws with 1:51 to play, then Givens' two foul shots provided enough margin to offset a basket by Keith McCord in the closing seconds. Givens led all scorers with 23 points. Wayne "Tree" Rollins scored 15 points, grabbed 19 rebounds and blocked eight shots as Clemson clobbered North Carolina. The Tigers led 40-34 at halftime, then shot 69 per cent from the field in the second half to pull away. DePaul stayed with Marquette for 20 minutes, trailing just 32-29 at halftime, but the

'Tark' Hit On 'Saturday Night'

NEW YORK (AP) - Comedian John Belushi opened NBC's "Saturday Night" show by asking for an edge from above. "Please help guide Fran Tarkenton in this show," he prayed. "Don't let him humiliate himself like he did in the Super Bowl."

Tarkenton, the quarterback of the Minnesota Vikings who was embarrassed by the Oakland Raiders three weeks ago before millions of armchair quarterbacks, redeemed himself Saturday night in a different type of live television performance. Hosting NBC's irreverent comedy show, Tarkenton showed a warm, comfortable delivery. "It went great," said the 36-year-old millionaire, whose nonsports activities range from broadcaster to businessman. "I've never had so much fun in my life."

Leo Sayer, a rock singer from England, said he mistook Tarkenton for a regular member of the show's repertory company. "The Not Ready For Prime Time Players." And the show's producer, Lorne Michaels, said the quarterback turned comedian "was sensational. We'd be glad to have him back." The feeling here was that he

He looked like he did belong, however, and that's probably all one could expect of a man whose athletic performance - and not his acting ability - has been recorded by television cameras since he was drafted into the National Football League in 1961.

For the first hour of the 90-minute show, they often handed the ball to Tarkenton, who had an opening monologue. "I guarantee we'll be in the Super Bowl, and I predict we'll lose again," he said, sang a little (at least no one booed), joked about the myth that blacks don't make good quarterbacks, munched a bowlful of anabolic steroids for breakfast and had a slow start but finally scored with a football groupie.

In the final 30 minutes, Tarkenton mostly handed off, introducing several songs and holding on to a tarantula. "Tarantulas don't bite," he said before feigning panic at being bitten and throwing the animal off the stage.

That was the one time Tarkenton reverted to his Super Bowl form. The tarantula was supposed to land on the stage, where a crew member could cage him. But, as happened so often in the Vikings' 32-14 Super Bowl loss to Oakland, Tarkenton was off target. It was last seen crawling in the crowd.

Tarkenton, the record holder of many passing records, said he stuck to the script, but called a couple of audibles here and there. "I wasn't married to the cue cards," he said.

But between his bits, he was constantly going over the cue cards. "I was just checking my lines," he said. "We were changing the script up until 30 minutes before air time. "Coach Bud Grant would throw a fit if we had a game plan like that."

Hot Navratilova Sweeps Barker

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Sizzling Martina Navratilova swamped Britain's Sue Barker 6-0, 6-1 Sunday to win her third Women's Professional Tennis Tournament in four weeks.

Miss Navratilova led 5-0 in the second set before Miss Barker won her only game and avoided becoming the first person in tournament history to be entirely shut out in a championship match. A week ago in Houston, Miss Navratilova also beat Miss Barker in the championship match, but it was much closer with scores of 7-6 and 7-5.

"I can't play any better than I did today," said Miss Navratilova, a 20-year-old southpaw. "I'm playing so well I can hardly believe it myself." Miss Navratilova also combined with Rosie Casals to win the doubles title with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Virginia Ruzici of Romania and Mima Jausovec from Yugoslavia.

A Czechoslovakian defector, Miss Navratilova has already earned $72,900 in the first month of the tour, including the $20,000 winner's purse

ARCADIA - Outshined earlier in the day by New York's hottest young rider, Steve Cauthen, old pro Bill Shoemaker came on strong astride Royal Derby II to capture the featured $56,650 San Marcos Handicap at Santa Anita Sunday.

Bringing the highweighted 8-year-old from far back to run down front-running Anne's Pretender by three-quarters of a length, Shoemaker scored his sixth straight win of the meeting and notched his 693rd career victory in a stakes event.

Anne's Pretender, ridden by Angel Cordero, Jr. and carrying 123 pounds, lasted to be a head in front of Teddy's Courage, with Marco Castaneda up. Young Cauthen, who is still an apprentice, finished ninth on announcer in the field of 10 but won two earlier racers and finished second with his only other mount prior to the San Marcos.

Royal Derby, under 124 pounds, completed the mile and one-quarter on the turf in new stakes record time of 1:58 1/5, beating the prior mark by a fifth of a second. Favorite of the crowd of 44,143 E.E. "Buddy" Fogelson and trainer Charles Whittingham's winner paid $7.40, $4.20 and $3.40.

Anne's Pretender returned $5 and $4.80, and the show price on Teddy's Courage, who closed well under 116 pounds, was $10.40. Top crowd finished another three-quarters of a length back in fourth.

Cordero had Anne's Pretender in front steps from the break and maintained the lead throughout the race, until Royal Derby, a New Zealand-bred who won the Russell Handicap at Santa Anita's Oak Tree Meeting last fall, ran down the leaders in the center of the course. He earned $34,150 first money.

Cauthen ended the San Marcos with a slight mishap and had to "hitch" a ride back to weigh in. When announcer was leaving the turf course on the backstretch after the running of the race, he stumbled and pitched the woner apprentice over his head.

Both horse and rider were unhurt, and Cauthen rode back to the scales behind an outrider on a pick-up pony.

In the second race, his first ride on his second day's appearance at Santa Anita, he won with Highland Light, who paid $21.80 for a $2 win ticket. Next he was aboard Faliraki to take the sixth for a $13.20 Mutuel. In the seventh race, he was second on Life's Hope.

Kehoe Scores 2 In Penguin Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Rick Kehoe scored two goals and assisted on another and goalie Dennis Herron made some sensational saves as the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Boston Bruins 5-2 in the National Hockey League Sunday.

Kehoe's second goal came in the third period after the Bruins had rallied from a 3-0 deficit to score twice. Pittsburgh's Mike Corrigan scored an insurance goal three minutes later.

Herron was particularly sharp in the first period, when he stopped point-blank shots by Terry O'Reilly and Peter McNab, and in the third when he turned back a shot from the edge of the crease by Earl Anderson which would have tied the score.

Anderson Not Surprised At Red Salary Demands

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite the headiness of two consecutive world titles and the players' ensuing money demands, Manager Sparky Anderson says he does not foresee the Cincinnati Reds becoming like the strife-torn Boston Red Sox of 1976.

"The guys on our club have been stars for a while; you don't have a situation where a guy was nothing and can't handle it," Anderson said Sunday night, noting that Fred Lynn and Rick Burleson of the Red Sox were only in their second full seasons in the majors when they, along with teammate Carlton Fisk, played much of last year unsigned.

"Guys like Joe Morgan, Pete Rose, Johnny Bench, Dave Concepcion and Gary Nolan have been there before," Anderson said. "These guys have been in four World Series in the last seven years, so it's not a thing where they're awed by their success or anything like that."

Anderson was in town for the New York Baseball Writers' annual dinner at which he accepted an award for long and meritorious service for former Los Angeles Dodgers Manager Walter Alston, who was snowed out of his home in Dartmouth, Ohio.

Before the dinner, Anderson said he was not surprised by the financial demands of such Cincinnati stars as Concepcion, Rose, Morgan, George Foster, Ken Griffey and Rawly Eastwick.

"In the winter, especially any time you win, you have these things," he said. "But once you get close to spring training it's different."

However, Anderson, who insisted he was "not on either side" of the financial fence between players and owners, suggested it was time to "stop and take a good long look at everything in sports."

Anderson was joined on the dais by two members of his world champions - Morgan and Bench - and this time they took some verbal shots at the hometown New York Yankees, whom they swept in four games in the 1976 World Series.

Flyers Struggle To Tie Caps

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - A goal by Rick MacLeish, Philadelphia's second power-play goal of the third period, enabled the Flyers to come from behind for the fourth time and tie the Washington Capitals 5-5 in a National Hockey League game Sunday.

The Caps, who have never beaten Philadelphia during their three years of existence, had taken a 5-4 lead at 13:35 on a power play goal by Gerry Meehan, but MacLeish tied it at 16:24.

Washington, which had won four of its previous five games including three in a row for only the second time ever, was outshot 35-19 but forced the Flyers to rally repeatedly.

Guy Charron and Bob Sirois scored first-period goals for the Caps and Don Sleski scored for the Flyers. Bob Kelley tallied twice in the second period for a 3-2 Philadelphia lead, but Washington again tied it on a goal by Ron Lalonde.

EVER STRIVING FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The Blessings of Title IX

That there is a government-backed and taxpayer-funded campaign being pushed to eliminate differentiation between the sexes, and that the threat of loss of federal funds is being used as a club to force compliance, can no longer be doubted. This was made quite clear by Jo Jacobs, Title IX co-ordinator for the Michigan Department of Education, when she spoke at the Jackson (Mich.) Community College forum in mid-November. "Title IX" is the commonly used euphemism for federal regulations which prohibit so-called sex discrimination in education.

As reported by Sharon D. Wenzler, education writer for the Jackson Citizen Patriot, Ms. Jacobs warned that failure to comply with rules set forth under Title IX could lead to loss of federal funds.

Among other things prohibited by Title IX, Ms. Jacobs pointed out, are all-girl pom poms and all male glee clubs. Permitted under that title, she emphasized, are "pom pom persons" and "bass-tenor glee clubs."

With respect to pom poms, the Title IX co-ordinator explained, schools will have to begin advertising for pom pom persons, rather than just women. Radical actions, she continued, might be to change pom pom uniforms so men could be included and to make sure men are aware that they are eligible to audition.

Moreover, Ms. Jacobs laid it down, "If the band, cheerleaders, and pom pom persons go to men's games, they should also be taken to the women's." "Men's games," permitted under Title IX, she explained, are those involving such contact sports as boxing, wrestling, rugby, football, basketball and ice hockey, in which only men participate. However, she insisted, there must be comparable programs for women. "Separate but equal," long ago outlawed with respect to schools, is permissible with respect to rough contact sports, you see. And "equal," Ms. Jacobs pointed out, means that if women are provided hairdryers in their dressing rooms, men must be likewise provided for.

Having gotten the matter of pom poms, glee clubs and sports out of the way, Ms. Jacobs went on to other fields. Under Title IX, she reminded her audience, for example:

-No reference to gender may be made in school tests and illustrations used in classes. For instance, a textbook in a nursing program referring to a nurse as "she" or some other feminine reference is prohibited.

-Course titles like "bachelor cooking" or "powder puff mechanics," are likewise prohibited because they restrict class enrollment by gender.

-In hiring, pre-employment inquiry of marital status is forbidden. Maiden names or titles like Mrs. or Miss may no longer be requested.

And finally, Title IX prohibits schools from accepting scholarships from outside groups that are earmarked for males or females, except in the area of athletics. Schools are prohibited from accepting aid or assistance from outside groups that discriminate on the basis of sex.

With respect to that last, one is inclined to wonder how Title IX, as interpreted by Ms. Jacobs, would react to funds contributed by someone for the benefit of unwed mothers? With "separate but equal" provisions for unwed fathers, no doubt.

The Question Box

Question No. 2408: A legislative committee in Sacramento has been holding hearings on why Dow Chemical Co. decided not to build a $500 million plant in the Sacramento River Delta area. Labor union officials and some legislators have been accusing Governor Brown and his appointed bureaucrats for the loss of this plum and thousands of jobs in California. Who is at fault - the governor, the bureaucracy or the legislature?

Answer: We would say that a member of the legislature who had not opposed at virtually every step of the way the establishment of the bureaucracy which has the people in its control is on rather shaky grounds to criticize the bureaucracy and the Brown administration's use of the bureaucracy the legislature created. The same goes for the labor union officials who many times seem to favor more and larger government with its attendant growth of bureaucracy.

In the Dow case, which had been left hanging for two years, it was reported that the company was faced with a requirement of getting 65 permits from 19 government agencies. In announcing it was indefinitely delaying the project, the company representatives said they were able to obtain only four of the permits in the two years.

It should be no surprise to anyone that the business climate in California is not favorable. Not only the multiplicity of regulatory agencies, from city and county planners to state environmental regulators, but high labor costs and even restrictive state laws have made the state far less favorable to those who would invest their money in providing job opportunities.

Some union officials are beginning to see the harm that big government is doing them and their members. This is evidenced by union workers opposing the sometimes irresponsible actions of the Coastal Commission, and by their alarm over the Dow case, in which an estimated 1,000 construction jobs have been lost in the next five years, plus possibly 1,000 factory jobs lasting far longer.

But the fault lies in the laws, creating the bureaucratic monstrosity. And in most cases the legislature passed the laws, now being used by the bureaucrats and the governor.

What About Berlin?

By ALLAN C. BROWNFIELD

WASHINGTON - Early in January, the government of East Germany showed exactly what it thought of the so-called "Spirit of Helsinki" and of the 1971 Four Power Agreement on Berlin.

What the East Germans did was (1) unilaterally declare that the Four Power agreement does not apply to East Berlin; (2) require, since Jan. 1, that all foreign visitors entering East Berlin from West Berlin must obtain a visa if they plan to stay 24 hours or longer; (3) close the control points it previously had on East Berlin's city limits where travelers cross into other East German areas.

The U.S., British and French have objected to this unilateral move, stating that it "further restricts freedom of movement in greater Berlin." The Allied statement challenges the rights of the East German government and the Soviet Union to make unilateral changes in the status of Berlin, even in the Communist eastern sector of that city. All of Berlin, according to the relevant international agreements, continues to come under the jurisdiction of all Four Powers - the U.S., Britain, France, and the Soviet Union - and only those powers acting jointly can change things.

The Allied statement says that it is clear that the purpose of the East German measures "was to give the impression that the German Democratic Republic could, by unilateral action, change the status of greater Berlin, in violation of the quadripartite agreement of Sept. 3, 1971, which applies to the whole of Berlin."

A key provision of the 1971 agreement says that all four governments agree, regardless of the differences in legal views, that the situation that has developed in Berlin "shall not be changed unilaterally." It is that provision that the Allies and the West Germans claim has been violated.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, speaking in the Parliament, declared that, "It must be made clear to the German Democratic Republic that the control measures are a serious provocation and are contrary to the spirit of detente. The latest steps of the GDR are chicanery. At the same time, they show a lack of self-confidence in the Communist Party leadership. Relations with the GDR have deteriorated."

By any standard, the action by the East Germans in clear connivance with the Soviet Union is a challenge to the Western position that all of Berlin is still under the joint sovereignty of the Four Allies of World War II.

More important, in the long run, is that the action of the East Germans and the Soviet Union with regard to Berlin is similar to actions in a variety of other areas - all of which show beyond any doubt that "detente" is simply a rhetorical device aimed at the West, but has little to do with the "human rights" mentioned in the Helsinki Agreement for the men and women who live under Communist regimes.

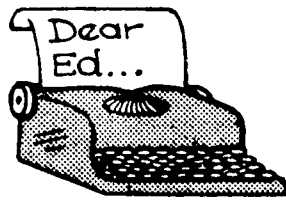

The Helsinki signatories agreed to respect "human rights and fundamental freedoms, including freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief." The recent arrest of dissidents in Czechoslovakia is one indication of how little these agreements mean. In the Soviet Union itself the story is precisely the same. Consider this example: four months after Helsinki, biologist Sergei Kovalev went on trial for "subverting" the Soviet government. What was his crime? It was supporting the stand of Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov against government infringement of civil liberties, and circulating accounts of the treatment of dissidents. Defending himself, Kovalev argued that he was only seeking to further the cause of basic freedoms guaranteed by the Soviet constitution. Replied the prosecutor: "Our state forbids acts which are foreign to its nature." Kovalev was sentenced to seven years hard labor and three years "internal exile." Sakharov noted that, "After Helsinki, the authorities plainly wanted to demonstrate their firmness and their power, which permits them to ignore even their own laws."

The fact is that the Soviet Union has not implemented the Helsinki accords in any area concerning human rights and the West, to its discredit, has remained silent about this violation. Leonard H. Marks, chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, declares that, "Soviet policy has been marked by tactics designed to minimize Russian compliance. Even more discouraging, the West has been reluctant to take strong initiatives. . . What we need is a positive policy backed up by concrete action, to challenge the U.S.S.R. on the real issue, the opening of all borders to more human and informational contacts."

Unfortunately, the Nixon-Ford-Kissinger period was a strange era in which the U.S. entered into agreements and then refused to utter a word of criticism when the other side violated the agreements. What was in the minds of our policy-makers is difficult to understand. We can only hope that the new administration will turn its back upon such an approach. Objecting to the latest Soviet and East German violations of the law with regard to East Berlin is a good place to begin.

TV Cover-Up

I am enclosing a copy of the December 1976 Washington Report of the American Security Council, Washington, D.C. It relates the story of the fairness doctrine complaint recently filed with the Federal Communications Commission against CBS by the American Security Council Education Foundation. The complaint charges CBS with "massive and continuing violations of the Fairness Doctrine in reporting national security viewpoints."

In that connection, a compelling and even astonishing admission has been made by Walter Cronkite as follows: "There are always groups in Washington expressing views of alarm over the state of our defenses. The story is that there are those who want to cut defense spending." That attitude is no news to anyone who has listened to CBS-TV News during the past few years. But, the principal support for the complaint is a study by Dr. Ernest W. Lefever, then a senior fellow in foreign policy studies at the Brookings Institution, of CBS-TV News for a 37-month period.

As might be expected, CBS denies all, calls it an attempt to invoke the coercive powers of government against it, and vows to resist the complaint "fully and completely" in behalf of its "integrity" and (get this!) "indeed, of all journalism."

The ASC report reproduces editorials and news stories from some 17 newspapers across the country from the Washington Post to the Xenia, Ohio Gazette.

This may well be the news-business news story of 1976-77. Why (Oh, why) is CBS' coverage of national defense, especially its present shortcomings, so sparse and one-sided? Is CBS TV-News a propaganda wing of the current American Fifth Column? Why is CBS trying so desperately to acquire control of Vanderbilt University's videotapes of its news telecasts since 1968 and on which Dr. Lefever's studies were based? Would that be a "cover-up" la Watergate, which CBS condemned so self-righteously? Will CBS gain the support, it so cunningly seeks, of the nation's news media for its arrogant Cronkite doctrine?

The story should be of continuing interest to the Register staff (and all other newsmen concerned about the integrity of their profession) and to Register readers who are concerned about that important matter, the vital national security issues, and the simple David-Goliath aspect of the contest. I certainly hope the Register will follow up and publicize this story as it develops.

Your Tax Dollars

This column has reported on the burgeoning Food Stamp Program, which is estimated to cost $6.6 billion this year and to serve over 19 million Americans. The reports of fraud and maladministration are legion.

Here is one more aspect of Washington's business expertise. Eighteen vendors of these food stamps were unable to account for $8.7 million in food stamp money.

The law requires that these vendors deposit all money in Federal Reserve banks on a daily basis. And yet 1,100 vendors have been getting interest-free use of this money for weeks, and even months, with apparent disinterest on the part of Washington.

Two Swan Songs: Kissinger's And Ford's

By LEE EDWARDS

WASHINGTON - Two of Washington's most famous personages bid ostensible farewells to public life a fortnight ago, and their cacophonous swan songs tell us a good deal about them and our nation as we enter our third century.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, once described as the most powerful man in the world, selected the National Press Club as the recital hall for his farewell. The locale was fitting for it was the news media that transformed Kissinger from a Harvard professor into "Super K."

It was the media which allowed itself to be hypnotized by Kissinger's erudition, his awesome energy, his accent, his fondness for Hollywood beauties, his ego, which is monumental, and, in the opinion of some former aides, monstrous.

The secretary gave a brilliant performance, beginning as any good speaker does with humor. In fact, Kissinger has become the Jack Benny of American diplomacy, making jokes about his egomania as Benny used to do about his stinginess:

"I have been called indispensable and a miracle worker. I know because I remember every word I say." There was loud and long laughter.

There is one important difference to keep in mind. Jack Benny was kidding. Henry Kissinger is not.

The secretary quickly became serious, reiterating two themes which have guided his approach to diplomacy over the last eight years: (1) the U.S. no longer dominates the world as it did in the 1950s and 1960s and therefore compromise with our adversaries is necessary, and (2) we have only two choices - negotiation or nuclear war.

"Never before," he said, "has (foreign policy) been conducted in the knowledge that miscalculation could mean the end of civilized life."

Kissinger argues that he is being realistic. His critics (including this writer) argue that he is unduly pessimistic and that his devout pessimism has led to a Spenglerian conviction among some in this country and the non-communist world that the West will inevitably decline and fall.

Thus, in Vietnam, it was "obvious" the Communists were going to win. Best, therefore, to get Americans out and not worry too much about the fate of the South Vietnamese.

In the field of strategic capability, the Soviet Union was clearly outpacing the U.S., whose people would not agree to more defense expenditures. Best, therefore, to sign a SALT I and press for a SALT II.

To give Kissinger his due, he did perform a minor miracle in the Middle East, where an uneasy truce prevails. But Israel and its friends in the U.S. are asking more and more loudly, What price peace? And if Sadat is ever replaced as Egypt's head of government, the major restraint on Arab extremists will be gone.

In the question-and-answer period, at the National Press Club, Kissinger was asked bluntly, "Have you put the Soviet Union into a position to achieve world nuclear supremacy?"

His response was pure Kissinger. First, he implied that the question betrayed irrationality - "I think it is time that we conduct a rational debate on the issue of nuclear strategy" - and then he said:

"I do not believe that any American administration would permit a situation to arise in which the Soviet Union could achieve strategic superiority over the United States."

Whatever Henry Kissinger believes, it was clear from President Gerald Ford's final State of the Union message to the Congress that he was deeply concerned about just such a possibility.

Leaving aside the expected rhetoric about what his administration had done for the nation in the preceding 30 months, the central theme of Ford's address was: The Soviets are arming themselves to the teeth - we had better do likewise.

He called for development of the Trident submarine missile, the B-1 bomber and a more advanced ICBM. He urged a military capability to deal with more conventional challenges and crises, "particularly in Europe."

While Henry Kissinger reflected his native European pessimism, telling the Washington press corps that the U.S. should adjust to a new reality in which it is no longer Number One, Jerry Ford displayed his basic American optimism and can-do-spirit, asserting the U.S. can still come out on top.

But, said the outgoing president, "We must have the wisdom, the stamina and the courage to prepare today for the perils of tomorrow."

It was the most important speech a retiring president has made since the much-quoted address of Dwight Eisenhower 15 years ago. Then, like spoke to a too powerful U.S. military-industrial complex. Now, Jerry Ford warned of an ominously expanding Soviet military-industrial complex.

The future of the nation and the world depends in large measure on whose vision of the future - Ford's or Kissinger's - prevails.

And I Quote

"Are the Beatles getting together again? It's not beyond the bounds of possibility, but we'd have to want to do it for the music's sake first. . . John (Lennon) and Paul (McCartney) had written songs for so long, they automatically thought theirs should be the priority. . . I'd always have to wait through 10 of their songs before they'd even listen to one of mine."

- George Harrison, former Beatle, in a recent interview in "Crawdaddy" magazine.

Cracked Myth

A myth perpetrated in America for a good many years is that it is every citizen's patriotic duty to pay his taxes. The story goes: If we are to continue to live in a free country, we must bear the burden of its costs.

Well, up to a point that may be correct, and from the founding of this nation we Americans have paid billions in taxes, but when those taxes get out of hand and begin to create a hardship on the individual and curtail his ability to live a well-earned, reasonably comfortable life — then there must come a citizens' rebellion to the farce. A stopping place must be reached.

Government at all levels has gone much too far. The burden on all Americans of the stabilizing middle class is beginning to take its toll.

An example of this overwhelming problem is the property tax. We have, here in California, a property tax rate that has gone off the scale, and California property owners are screaming for some relief.

This burdensome tax is forcing people out of their homes because they just can't meet the piper's demand. As the property owner feels the crunch, so does the renter, who is hit with additional increases that deal a blow to his monthly wages. And, come April 15, Uncle Sam steps in directly with his hand out for another big chunk for the income tax, which is a Marxist-imposed duty upon the wage-earner. It hits everybody in the nation who works for his living; everybody, that is, except those like the Rockefellers and other families in the multimillion-dollar class who can use their tax-free foundations as loopholes to get away scot-free. Another exempt group is, of course, the welfare class, which pays nothing.

Sales taxes, city taxes and county taxes also force the consumer to cough up additional funds. And let us not forget the State Income Taxes which are now beginning their climb to Federal Income Tax heights. Social Security taxes, Inheritance Taxes, taxes on taxes — as in gasoline! Taxes, taxes, taxes! When will it stop? It's the same in every state of this Union. Taxes of all kinds are being paid by Mr. and Mrs. Middle Class American to keep the welfare state alive and to enable the puny bureaucrats to live high on the hog, while we wallow in the hog pen.

The time is rapidly approaching when Americans will no longer stand for these impositions upon their wherewithal to live in a decent way.

Millions of Americans are refusing to pay their income taxes, on Constitutional grounds. More millions are withholding their property tax payments in protest of the high rate. Everywhere you go these days, shopping malls, banks, supermarkets, etc., you see ladies manning booths to have petitions signed to relieve themselves, and us, of this terrible tax problem.

We must get government at all levels out of competition with the free enterprise system. We must abolish unconstitutional government agencies like OSHA, EPA, and others too numerous to mention, that have forced individuals and businesses to their knees.

We must return our country to a sound money system, and eliminate the Federal Reserve Banking System which has debauched our currency. We must eliminate the federal control of the states, which emanates from the Federal Regional Councils put into operation by Executive Order 11647 in 1972.

As I have pointed out thousands of times in my speech on "Land Use and Regional Government": "When government subsidizes, government controls." That was made official in 1942, when the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision in the case of Wickard versus Filburn, and the Agricultural Adjustment Act: "It is hardly hard of due process for the federal government to regulate that which it subsidizes."

It's just plain common sense, it seems to me, that if we are to lower our taxes, we must lower government to a level where we can be the controllers — not the "controllees."

Don't Rate

If you must show pictures of the draft dodgers, at least make it in the back pages, for I don't think they rate front page. Oh, yes, I'm sure they stand on their rights as citizens to avoid service and run away, but why didn't they stay? If, in 1941, we had run to Canada or wherever, wouldn't Hitler have been happy?

I don't see any difference in a nazi or a communist having a new name for the same tyranny. But at least don't make heroes out of these people. Time will tell how much they'll do for the country.

Pardon Nonpayers, Also

In view of the fact that the President of the United States of America, on his first day in office gave to all draft evaders a total amnesty and unconditional pardon, I have a request to make on behalf of myself, and all American taxpayers.

I would appreciate having him decree to one and all, a blanket and unconditional pardon, as I have decided that in view of the fact that I don't like where my hard-earned money is going through taxes, I really would rather not pay taxes this year.

Getting A Handle On The National Budget

By JOAN BECK
Chicago Tribune

The federal government will cost us about $440 billion next fiscal year, unless President Carter decides to make it more. The sum is so enormous we don't even bother with the digits any more. We should. That's $440,000,000,000 of our money the government is talking about.

We need to look at that sum carefully — $440,000,000,000. It tends to numb the brain. It seems unreal, like play money. It's easier to lop off nine zeros and see the handy tables calling for $112.3 for defense and $2.3 for agriculture and assume it all is reasonable and necessary.

But that $440,000,000,000 is our money. Paying the federal government is the biggest item of expense most families have these days. And we should not brush off the federal budget without realizing just how much of our money the government is planning to take, how it intends to extract it from us, and what we are getting for our cash.

Divided equally among us all, the $440,000,000,000 the federal government plans to spend will cost each of us more than $2,000 next year. It comes to more than $8,000 for a family of four, almost as much as the government says will support a family of four completely in a low-budget kind of way. And it adds up to about $5,900 for every one of us 88 million wage-earning workers.

Stacked tightly in one dollar bills, the money to support the federal government for one fiscal year would make a pile more than 69,400 miles high, reaching about one third of the way to the moon. Laid end to end, that many dollar bills would stretch for 41,477,272 miles, or almost 15,000 times between New York City and Los Angeles.

The $440,000,000,000 would buy a four-year college education in a prestigious private university for at least 18,333,000 young people. Or a new medium-priced car for every household in the nation. It would cover the tab for all our food and much of our shelter. And it's 10 times more than the dividends all the corporations in the United States paid their stockholders last year.

There's no question that the $440,000,000,000 is our money, as the new federal budget makes perfectly clear.

The government itself cannot produce money. It can only spend what it extracts from individuals who earn it, or borrow it against future such extractions.

The biggest chunk of the new budget, $171.2 billion, is due to come from individual income taxes, mostly money we earn but never even see. The second largest sum, $126.1 billion, is Social Security tax payments, deducted in part from our wages and paid for in part in higher prices set to compensate for employers' share. Corporate income taxes will account for only about $58.9 billion of the new budget; but we pay most of this indirectly through higher prices and lower returns to stockholders, a substantial portion of which are now pension funds, cutting into our retirement income.

The rest will be nickled and dimed and dollored out of us in excise taxes, customs, and minor miscellany — except for a whopping $47 billion deficit we'll have to handle by borrowing. Never mind that the budget already requires $39.7 billion a year for interest on previous borrowing or that interest five years from now is projected at $47 billion a year.

The bigger the budget gets and the more areas of American life come under government domination, the more difficult it is to judge whether we're getting our money's worth. And the more difficult it becomes to cut back if we decide we're getting ripped off, or would rather spend our money ourselves. Already tax experts say about 97 per cent of the $150.4 billion share of the budget that goes to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is out of control.

But we can't stop asking the question as to whether we're getting our money's worth. Former President Ford predicts the federal tax take from us five years from now will come to $587.3 billion just to cover programs already in existence. President Carter has made several expensive promises which might make these figures too low.

But we must measure every proposal President Carter makes in terms of how much it will add to the national budget. Because we will have to pay for it. There isn't anyone else.

LIBERAL ARTS ASCENDANT

Let's Teach Students To Think Again

By JOSEPH D. COFFEE, JR.

The thinker or the tinker?

This may be a rather exaggerated set of alternatives, but it reflects the debate in higher education about how well our liberal arts colleges prepare students for the challenges they will find after graduation.

Vocationalism is in vogue and has put liberal arts program on the defensive. Moreover, within the liberal arts, the twin goals of flexibility and specialization have left students to shape their own curriculum without being exposed to each of the major academic areas — the humanities, social sciences and the natural sciences.

Student protests against fixed or distribution requirements in the 1960s led many institutions to relax their degree requirements.

College faculty members have too frequently handed over to the students responsibility for fashioning their higher education — despite the fact that they as educators surely have a greater competence to say what makes an educated man or woman than an 18 year old freshman or sophomore.

They may believe that a liberal arts education is the best if not the only way to produce the desired result — a thinking individual. Yet in recent years they have felt powerless to assert their expertise in defining a fundamental education for those who would become liberal-ly educated.

Of all of the problems we face in higher education, I think the one that demands greatest attention is what some people call the "smorgasbord" approach to curriculum. Pick your course and pray it works. We've lost ground, I'm afraid, when it comes to general education.

"Contemporary Civilization" courses started at Columbia University after World War I and similar programs were installed at other prestigious colleges during the 1920s. The end of World War II saw a resurgence of interest in general education and in 1945 Harvard published its famous "General Education in Free Society" which influenced many other institutions. Over the years, though, we have seen an erosion of general education as it yielded to the competing demands for early specialization in an increasingly technological society.

Today, we find some concerned observers looking at the deficiencies of the graduates of the past 20 years and searching for a new approach to provide that common intellectual experience which marks the educated person. This is not to suggest that we should go back to the 1920s or even the 1940s. Rather we must move forward to develop new programs for new demands, at least for the rest of the century.

What do students entering college want? Intellectual growth is seldom mentioned these days. More likely, the answer to the question will be "to get into medical school" or "I want to be a lawyer," or "I can't get a good job without a degree."

We shouldn't fault them. But we should recognize that they have been encouraged to think narrowly. Their parents, their teachers, and their counselors seem to have overlooked the basic need for a broader understanding of current society, understanding gained from a study of civilizations across the centuries.

This is the path to intellectual enrichment. Study in the liberal arts brings flexibility of thinking, a capacity to understand people — to see another's viewpoint, to understand why a person thinks the way he does. It is very important that we provide a better understanding of the people who live outside of the United States — through study of their literature, religions, economic backgrounds, politics; their several histories and aspirations. And, a very special focus ought to be on the non-Western world. These are some of the

Who Will Get Gary Gilmore's Hood?

By ROD MCKUEN

LOS ANGELES (NANA) — This is not about capital punishment or punishment in the capital. It's really an account of two circuses rivaling each other for attention.

Before the protest letters start arriving, I should make it clear that I am not comparing the elected president of the United States to the convicted killer in Utah — only the media's coverage of them both.

I guess you had to be there. Most of us were not, but through the magic of the media, last week's two biggest circuses were brought to us in living color on television and wide-column black and white in the press.

I speak, of course, of the inauguration of Jimmy Carter and the amount of attention in the world press, at a time when bridges collapsed, airplanes crashed, cold waves in country after country killed thousands, ships collided, ballets were cancelled, ballet stars shot themselves — well, you get the picture, it was not exactly a slow news week even though it would seem that only two rings, of a potential three-ring circus, were holding the audience's attention.

But what a cast! Paul Anka, Geraldo Rivera, the attorney general and the governor of Utah, Lawrence Schiller, Playboy magazine, secluded widows, a judge named Ritter, the American Civil Liberties Union, Chevy Chase, James Dickey, Linda Rondstat, Muhammad Ali, Bette Davis, Red Foxx, an unknown folk singer whose name escapes me but who nevertheless was on prime-time television, singing one of his own original songs that contained, among other lines, "My name is Gary Gilmore and I'm gonna take a six pack with me when I go." No kidding.

More. Paul Newman, the governors of 14 states, the mayor of San Francisco, Beverly Sills and Paul Simon (not necessarily together), Loretta Lynn, Shirley MacLaine and Nichols and May (back together)...last but not least, the entire state of Texas.

There were green and white fireworks the night before one event, ashes sprinkled over an entire state the day after the other. Both events had souvenir hunters and hawkers and tee-shirts with the heroes' names emblazoned upon them. Both events had well-wishers and protest marchers and special sections cordoned off for the press.

Mexican-Americans ran a full-page ad addressed to Mr. Carter (a New York restaurant owner ran a somewhat more dignified, smaller ad), civil libertarians sent out appeals on behalf of future Gilmores.

Both Mr. Carter and Mr. Gilmore conceded they felt good about their coming event. Between the commercials, you could catch the grandstands going up in Washington, D.C., and the chair being carried off in Utah. And commercials are already in evidence for similar events to star Mondale in eight years, again in Washington, and Jerry Lane Jurek in Huntsville in perhaps eight weeks.

Geraldo Rivera choked back emotion as he was the first to show us the blood-stained chair Mr. Gilmore had sat in. Photographers waited breathlessly to catch the president's first swivel in his new oval-office chair.

Certainly if there are many more weeks like this, there will not be enough cracker jacks or balloons to go around. Of course, I feel sorry for Paul Anka, an old friend and a fine songwriter, who lost out in his bid for the movie rights to Lawrence Schiller who got the works: the Playboy interview, the tape recordings, the movie rights and the front page of both Times on both coasts.

I don't know if Starksy or Hutch will play Gilmore in the movie, but it's probably a safe bet that Schiller will not ask Paul Anka to write the title song. Whether or not Motown of RCA puts out the recordings is, I'm sure, as yet undecided and only time will tell if Gilmore's Playboy interview will cause as much excitement as Mr. Carter's. The portion that has been released so far, while admitting murder and other very bad things, said nothing about lusting in his heart for a woman other than the one he had a suicide pact with (I understand it's virtually a tossup as to whether Faye Dunaway or Sandra Dee will get that role — no doubt it depends on the height of the actor).

imperatives for the new undergraduate curriculum.

We feel that our college, founded 10 years ago, provides a model for this. Our "World Studies" program was designed at a time when general education and specific distribution of requirements were rapidly disappearing from favor, but we persevered. And the risk was worth it. Our program survives, and we can demonstrate that such an approach works. Our research, using the undergraduates Record Examinations as a measure of general knowledge, shows that our students make significant percentile gains over four years and this is based on comparison with national norms.

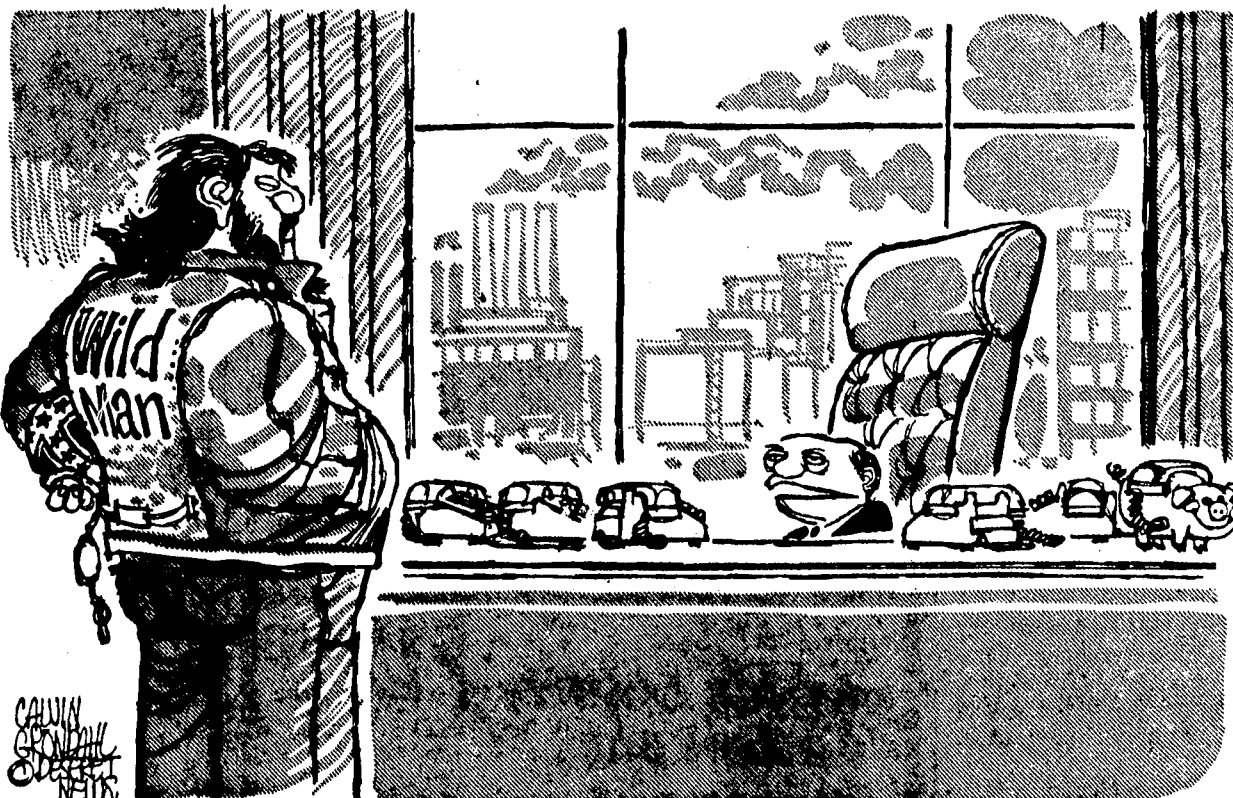

Once again, priorities in higher education are changing. The need to return to more structured requirements is again at the top of the agenda. Even Harvard is beginning to announce the result of soul-searching and planning for change. Does this mean a trend toward more requirements, team teaching and interdisciplinary education of the type our college has already developed?

Probably not. There is likely to be a lot of discussion, but change is not easy. Cost is one factor. Another is structure. Colleges will have to deal, among other things, with faculty reluctance to disrupt a life's work based on narrow disciplinary interests and their training as specialists.

Still, the traditional liberal arts dividend of a more rewarding personal life remains a strong positive force. Not only is human understanding the most important ingredient of education, it also is the important result of the education process. It's exciting and effective because people — students — deep down are more interested in people than anything else. And, we are really in the business of preparing people to work with one another, to be more productive citizens.

The liberal arts should be seen as the most practical form of higher education available to a young person preparing to live in the uncertain, but surely smaller world of tomorrow.

Practical? Yes, for it provides a base of understanding and a capacity for analysis and synthesis which will always be in demand in the changing career process of the typical college graduate. Currency Troubles Abound

Most of the economic reports and forecasts are either bullish or favorable regarding the U.S. economy of 1977. Some have hedged their bets, but few are concerned with the international situation.

The United States is not an island and what happens in other countries will have some effect in the country. The world worldwide currency problem has not abated. It has been quiet for a couple of weeks - but the problem remains.

The Canadian dollar is still under pressure - the Mexican peso has not stabilized - Britain still faces economic upheaval - Italy is a quagmire full of liras.

If the countries of South America with inflation and currency problems are added to the list of other less developed countries, the number of "problem" countries reaches alarming proportions.

The economic sickness around the world has been caused by politicians and those supporting the policy of printing-press currency. These persons believe that all that is needed is to print more currency and any economic woe can be solved.

Every political regime is analyzed constantly to see where they are going to lead the economy. This gives the impression that economics is a political thing. That the real world doesn't exist - that political actions can solve economic problems.

Program Support
Thus when a politician announces a new program, it is hailed by businessmen and workers alike. All hope that this will solve their particular problem.

This comes from an ignorance of economic reality and a lack of understanding of how markets work. It seems so complicated that individuals have given up trying to understand what is happening and revert to supporting various political schemes which they believe will help them personally - and to heck with other considerations.

Karl Marx's philosophy contains one tenet that supports this belief - economic determinism.

Economic determinism means that everything is shaped by economics. Politics, religion, art, life styles, families are all shaped by economics according to this philosophy.

The strange part of this is that many who would consider themselves staunch free enterprisers accept portions of this philosophy without consideration.

This philosophy denies "reality" in economics. It is all a creature of the "state," economic determinists claim.

"The state can do anything." Communist countries don't have inflation, Communists say. Red China is a Booth Resigns As UB Pres.

BOSTON (AP) - Wallace W. Booth has resigned as president of United Brands Co., it was announced Friday.

Booth will be succeeded by Seymour Milstein, who has been vice chairman of the board.

Unofficial sources said Booth resigned in a policy disagreement.

In announcing the election of Milstein, board chairman Max M. Fisher said Booth agreed to continue with United Brands as a consultant.

Fisher's statement said Booth "had brought the company through a difficult period during the past 20 months."

Booth succeeded Eli Black, who committed suicide in a jump from the Pan Am building in New York on Feb. 3, 1975.

Booth left his office Friday without returning a call.

A United Brands spokesman told The Associated Press "there were some policy differences."

"They were resolved amicably. He's parting on good terms," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said Booth had no immediate plans. The resignation was submitted Friday and was acted on immediately.

Booth was a senior officer of Rockwell International before joining United Brands on May 12, 1975.

shining example of the Communist state, others say. Capitalism has failed, is a resounding chorus around the world.

These bromides are repeated and believed by many. The thinking and reasoning individual says to himself, "I wonder if I am wrong. Everyone seems to be going in a different direction than I am!"

Little Light
What has happened is that there is a tremendous amount of noise, words and pictures supporting the failure of free enterprise and capitalism - and very little light shown of on the matter.

Let's take inflation in Communist countries. The state sets the price of goods. Therefore there can be no inflation of deflation because the state won't let the price be changed. By definition, there is no inflation - they say.

But look at the real situation. Take a pair of shoes. If Russia sets the price of shoes at let's say, 10 rubles. Assume this is a much cheaper price for shoes than in western countries. What happens?

First there are long lines in Russia to buy those shoes. You stand in line for hours to buy a pair. When you finally get to the purchase point you are told that they are all sold out. You will have to come back.

Now that pair of shoes you want is still quoted at the 10-ruble price - no inflation they say. But the hours you spend in line can be translated in rubles which should be added to the price you pay for the shoes.

When a product is not available, because the production was sold out due to the low price, more time will have to be spent before you can purchase them. Also, what does the price of an item mean when you cannot purchase the item itself.

Steak Prices
This reminds me of the joke about a butcher. "A customer went into a butcher shop and noticed the price of steak was $2.50 per pound. The customer complained to the butcher that his competitor down the street has the same steak for sale at $1.95 per pound.

The butcher said, "Why don't you go down the street and buy his steak?"

The customer replied, "He's sold all his steaks."

The butcher, retorted, "Come back to my shop when I have sold all my steaks and then I will let you buy them at $1.50 a pound."

There are "real" economic laws. You must produce to supply yourself and your family with the necessities of life and the luxuries you want.

True, force can be used to take away part of the production of the worker and give it to a non-producer. As long as the producers continues to produce in sufficient quantities, the non-producers can live off the producers.

But - at some point in time - the producer will refuse to produce - or reduce his production to a point of subsistence only not leaving no surplus for the non-producers.

This tack or revolution against those stealing his production are his alternatives.

The politician can impose force to enslave the producer as they have done in the Communist countries - but history has proved that the enslaved producer does not produce the quality and quantity that a free producer does.

Continental Ins. Gets 10% Of AIC

SINGAPORE (AP) - The Continental Insurance Co. of the United States announced Friday that it has acquired 10 per cent interest in Asia Insurance Co. of Hong Kong.

Asia Insurance Co., which is majority owned by Bangkok (Thailand) Bank, has a paid-up capital of $5.3 million.

It is associated with Asia Insurance Co. of Singapore and the Central Asia Insurance Co. of Indonesia, the statement said.

Continental, which recently opened a regional headquarters in Singapore, has placed $16.8 million in the Asian dollars market through its subsidiary, Firemen's Insurance Company of Newark, N.J., the statement added.

Continental has joint ventures in Malaysia, the Philippines, Taiwan and Japan.

British Interest Rates Dropping

LONDON (AP) - The trend toward lower British interest rates accelerated Friday as the Bank of England announced it was cutting its minimum lending rate (MLR) 1 point to 12 1/4 per cent, effective today.

The MLR now is at its lowest level since October. On Jan. 21, the bank lowered the MLR 3/4-point to 13 1/4 per cent.

Friday's reduction is expected to put pressure on major commercial banks to lower their base lending rates again next week. Barclays, Midland, National Westminster and Lloyds all cut their base rates - rates on loans to their best corporate customers - to 13 per cent from 14 per cent Tuesday. There was speculation that the banks soon would introduce a 12 1/2 per cent rate.

The MLR reduction is the largest since the central bank last October boosted the rate to a record high of 15 per cent. The 2-point rise at the time was seen by some as a near-panic measure to protect sterling, fund the government's deficit and slow the rate of growth in the money supply.

However, the situation in the last four months has changed radically.

This month, speculative funds have been flowing into sterling rather than out of it; the government's success in selling bonds has eliminated any worries over funding the British deficit, and the money supply in the past few weeks has been falling rather than rising.

Up until two weeks ago, the Bank of England had been able to pursue the government's state policy of slowing reducing interest rates. The MLR had been cut 1/2-point four times between late November and the start of 1977.

But then the flood of money, much of it from overseas, into government bonds caused authorities to decide that a faster drop in interest rates could be allowed.

The government has been able to place bonds worth more than $12 billion in the last four months.

Some financial advisers, however, are beginning to wonder how long the boom in British bonds will last.

A senior director of one merchant bank, with links both to New York and Europe, says he is telling clients to lock in their profits.

There is also some question of how much longer sterling will be a desired currency due to the sharp drop in British interest rates.

The Bank of England has been purchasing dollars this month both to build up reserves and to keep the pound from appreciating too greatly. However, foreign exchange dealers reported Friday that the bank had been forced to change positions, buying sterling to try to maintain the value of the British currency.

Canadian Paper Mills Shipment Declines 5.3%

MONTREAL (AP) - Canadian paper mills shipped 768,243 tons of newsprint during December, down 5.3 per cent from November, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said Thursday.

But the December total was far above the 365,068 tons shipped in December 1975, when many mills were idled by strikes.

Shipments to the United States in the latest month of 537,766 tons were down 6.4 per cent from November. Shipments in 1977 totaled 261,240 tons.

Canadian newsprint mills operated at 91 per cent of rated capacity in December, compared with 95 per cent the previous month and only 40 per cent a year earlier.

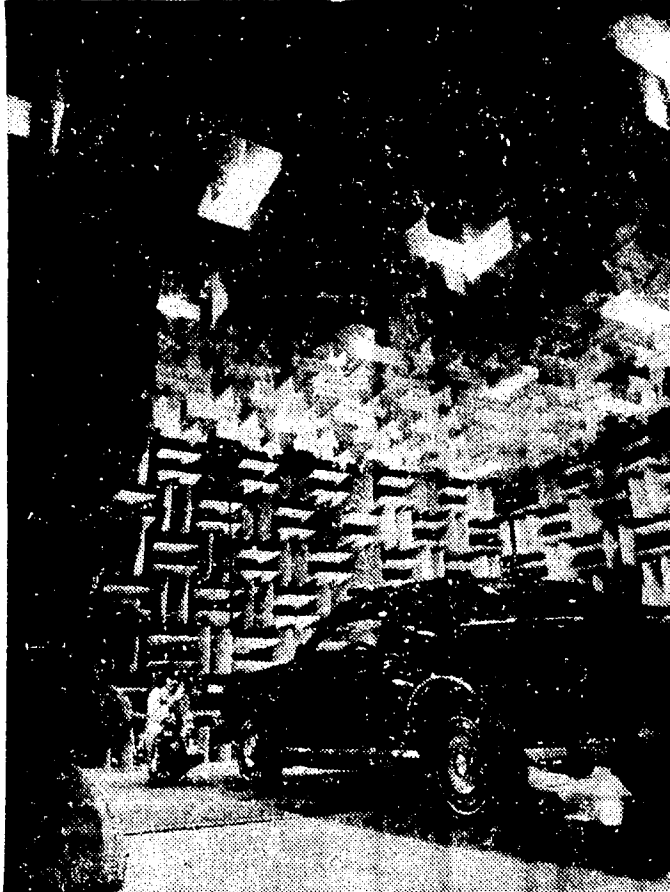

December production totaled 717,068 tons, down 9.6 per cent from November and up from the December 1975 total of 323,851 tons.

Fairchild Chairman Will Step Down

MONTAIN VIEW - (BW) - Roswell L. Gilpatric announced his intention to retire as chairman of the board of Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. after the annual shareholders meeting May 6.

He will continue as a director of the company.

The board said Gilpatric will be succeeded by Wilfred J. Corrigan, president and chief executive officer, who will retain his present title.

SEMI-ANECHOIC ROOM - General Tire & Rubber Co.'s semi-anechoic room was designed to test tire noise levels. The hundreds of pie-shaped fiberglass wedges - four feet in length form the walls and ceilings, were designed to screen out certain frequency ranges. This allows engineers to evaluate tire noise without picking up extraneous sound.

Yamani Predicting OPEC Meet Soon

NEW YORK (AP) - Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, believes discussions will begin soon with other oil-producing nations aimed at ending the two-tier price system in effect since December. The New York Times reported Friday.

In a dispatch from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, the newspaper said Yamani believes market forces will drive prices down from the current boost of 10 per cent and 5 per cent more in July that 11 OPEC members proclaimed last month.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, at the December meeting in Qatar of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, held their increases to 5 per cent.

In an interview with The Times, Yamani said the two-stage, 15 per cent hike is "far away from what we think is reasonable," adding at least one producer - Indonesia - already has cut its increase to 6 per cent.

Yamani said Indonesia's oil

U.S. Home To Acquire Homecraft

MIAMI (AP) - Officials of U.S. Home Corp. of Clearwater, Fla., the nation's largest home builder, say the firm has agreed in principle to acquire Homecraft Corp. and make Homecraft's president the chief executive of U.S. Home.

Homecraft President Guy Odom headed U.S. Home's Houston division until he started his own company in 1973.

If U.S. Home stockholders approve in June, the company will sell Odom 134,078 shares of stock for $1 million. The agreement is subject to an audit of Homecraft and to approval of both firms' bankers.

Privately held Homecraft, a Texas and Louisiana builder, expects earnings of $1.7 million on revenue of $48 million for the year ending Feb. 28, a spokesman said.

U.S. Home has been without a president since June when Benjamin Harrison resigned. He had favored expansion into non-construction fields but directors disagreed, a spokesman said.

No New England Refinery Planned

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) - If Shell Oil Co. strikes oil off New England, the firm will transport the crude to a mid-Atlantic refinery, either by pipeline or in tankers, a spokesman said Friday.

The oil company has no plans to build a refinery in New England, even if it finds large quantities of petroleum in the proposed drilling area on Georges Bank.

Samuel M. Paine, Shell's production manager, commented after addressing a meeting of the New England Daily Newspaper Association.

"Shell has refineries in New Jersey and Delaware," Paine said. "In the near term, we don't see a need for more refining capacity."

If necessary, he said, the other refineries could be enlarged.

minister is expected in the Saudi Arabian capital city of Riyadh in the next few days to discuss the situation, and predicted that other oil nations also would meet soon with the Saudis.

The oil minister told The Times that because oil consuming nations had built up large stockpiles in anticipation of the proclaimed increases, OPEC members' production is down and the new prices have not taken effect.

But the oil minister did not say what the current or predicted oil prices are.

Four years ago, Mrs. Dora Odom, 40, of Huntington Beach was on welfare. Twice divorced, she was the sole support of her five children. Her secretary's paycheck wouldn't stretch. Her credit was gone.

"I couldn't borrow a dime" is the way she described her plight.

Today she has a substantial net worth and is engaged in building projects that total hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"I did it all on real estate purchases," she said.

Her swift financial progress was verified by a brokerage involved in transactions to which she was a party.

Other than supporting her family, Mrs. Odom didn't really start out on a quest for wealth.

Her real passion was to help a number of emotionally disturbed patients with whom she had been working. She became involved in this field when she started to work in a state mental hospital as an offset to the welfare dollars she had been receiving. During this period, she studied and became a psychiatric technician.

One day she read in The Register that then Gov. Ronald Reagan was planning to shut down a number of state institutions for the mentally ill. She correctly forecast that non-dangerous patients would be housed in private homes. Her only resource was the rent money for her own home and the grocery money to feed her children. She decided on a gamble.

Her decision was to open a residence for schizophrenics. "It was a risk," she said. "I had to bet that I would get the residents and that I would get my rent money back in two weeks."

She won the bet. Her first residential-care project was in Anaheim. Eventually she opened five more - buying four of the properties.

CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

GM Seeks 8 Million Cars

By TOM KLEENE
Knight News Wire

DETROIT - General Motors Corp., looking for more than eight million vehicles whose owners have not responded to safety recall campaigns, is launching a computer-aided system aimed at reducing that number by half.

The computer, in response to a touch-telephone or teletypewriter inquiry from a GM dealership, will provide instant information on whether a particular GM vehicle is a recall no-show and, if so, will describe the repairs it needs.

The system, which is being offered to GM's 13,000 U.S. dealers at no charge, is intended for use on cars and trucks brought into a dealership for service or on new and used vehicles that are in inventory.

"The response to our campaigns has not been what we would like it to be," GM service director O. Robert Pansa told a news conference Thursday. "It is very difficult to locate each and every vehicle involved."

"This new computerized system is designed to help us identify vehicles on which safety recall campaign services have not been performed."

According to Pansa, the computerized program is the first of its kind in the automobile industry and will cover all recall campaigns initiated by GM after Oct. 1, 1970.

GM's eight million no-shows represent about 30 per cent of the approximately 28 million cars that it has recalled since the automobile industry began these campaigns under government mandate in 1966.

The automakers are required to notify the registered owner of each recalled vehicle by certified mail as well as to perform the necessary repairs at no cost to the owner.

"And in many cases, we have attempted to follow up on the certified letter when the owner has not responded," Pansa said. "But we have frequently had difficulty in tracking down an owner who may have moved to a new address, or a car when it has been sold to another owner." Even in the widely publicized Chevrolet motor mount campaign, which involved 6.8 million vehicles in 1970, he said, the response by owners was only 63.6 per cent.

Federal Mortgage Growth Rises 446%

By BARBARA TAYLOR
Register Real Estate Editor

The 446 per cent increase since 1968 in the government's involvement in mortgage market was cited Friday by the head of the federal Home Loan Bank Board as a "disturbing trend."

While government funds in the mortgage market skyrocketed, he said other lending institution involvement in the secondary market has increased to a much lesser extent and life insurance involvement in the field was off $12 billion or a 41 per cent decrease.

Marston cited several other impediments to extending the mortgage market base including the "mandatory" elimination of the due-on-sale clause, the pre-payment penalty, interest on escrows and underwriting criteria and foreclosure requirement procedures.

A stable mortgage market implies more participants, he said, adding he is against excessive regulations, laws and mortgage allocations.

"While their purpose may be good, they are costing people money. Is there a cost-benefit ratio," he asked.

Mrston, a Republican who expects to be replaced in the Carter administration said in 1977 he expects a five to six per cent rate of inflation. "We should be concerned about both the impact of the freeze in the East and the drought in the Rockies and the West," he said. "This well could impact the CPI" ("Consumer Price Index.) Despite the savings inflow into S&Ls and thrift institutions during 1976 and expected continuation of that trend, because of the weighted average of home prices, the "dollar relatively will not be more plentiful if figured on a per unit cost, he said.

He predicts 1.31 million single family home starts during 1977 and 470,000 multifamily units for a total of from 1.78 to 1.9 million.

As for Carter's program, Marston said the year should be good and there isn't much he can do to "mess it up, so if I were Carter I would come up with a whole flurry of high sounding programs and not fund one of them."

"In the words of a Georgia philosopher, 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it,' he said. He said he believes Carter should do all he can to control inflation.

South Korea Looks For Fishing Areas

SEOUL (AP) - South Korea, faced with serious setbacks in its fishing operations in the north pacific, plans to develop new fishing grounds around New Zealand, Australia and the Antarctic, the Office of Fisheries said today.

Because of 200-mile fishing zones proclaimed by the United States and the Soviet Union, South Korea fears that its deepsea fish catches will be drastically cut back in the North Pacific, the major Korean fishing area.

'Rags To Riches' In 4 Years

house them in one locality, she sold the houses with a lease-back provision and bought land on Warner Avenue.

The property happened to be in the vicinity of another construction site. The developer wanted to buy her out. Because of a zone change, her parcel could not be used as she envisioned, a place for housing her schizophrenic tenants.

So she gambled again. "No," she told the neighborhood developer, "I won't sell. I will develop the property myself."

With the help of a partner, she did. The project proved a financial success. It is providing the means by which she is negotiating for a site on which to construct other housing for her schizophrenic residents.

Schizophrenics, she said, are not dangerous per se. To be a schizophrenic is not the same as being a psychopath. The latter, she said, is a schizophrenic, but not all schizophrenics are psychopaths.

She voiced a need for a sheltered-work program. The schizophrenic personality is painted into an unemployment corner. Usually, a job application will ask about any history of emotional disturbance.

"If he tells the truth, he doesn't get the job," Mrs. Odom said. "If he tells a lie, he doesn't get the job." An employer check could reveal the emotional problem.

This type of personality, she explained, tends to be self-conscious about taking the pills that the afflicted must have to feel and behave normally. She advises them to answer, when asked, that they have a chemical disorder requiring medication. From her experience she is convinced the ailment arises from a deficiency.

"Like diabetes," she said. "At one time diabetes wasn't understood either."

She believes the stigma of schizophrenia will diminish when public understanding increases.

Real estate ventures were not Mrs. Odom's first experience as an enterprise. At one time she owned a successful take-out food stand. In one month she had two offers from substantial firms for backing on a chain. Marital difficulties sent that dream crashing and put her on the welfare rolls.

As a sideline, Mrs. Odom likes to offer encouragement to women who, like herself, are divorced.

"Often they feel they can't take care of themselves. I say, 'Who took care of you before you were married?' They say they've lost their skills. I say, 'Okay, there's school. Get some skills.' I take advantage of everything that is being offered. No limitations except what you set for yourself."

The last sentence is an inheritance from her father. She credits her own progress to the teaching of her father and the discipline of her mother.

"My father was philosophical type. He studied for the priesthood in Mexico, but left because priests were being killed. He worked as a waiter, gone most of the time. He taught me and my brothers and sisters, the only limit is the limit we put on ourselves."

"And that's what I tell my residents," she said. "I don't baby. I don't pamper. And I don't feel sorry for them."

"They say, 'You don't know what it is to get welfare. You don't know what it is to stand in the foodstamp line and have other people look at you.' I say, 'Look, I was there.'"

Born in El Paso in a Mexican culture, Mrs. Odom said she didn't know how to speak English until after she started to school. I remember crying in class because I couldn't talk. I don't even remember when I started speaking English."

Mrs. Odom has a personal goal. She expects to form her own development company.

Why venture on her own?

She explained: "If I have a partner, I don't really know how much I did. If I do something by myself, I know."

As to the possibility of mistakes?

"You're bound to make mistakes. That's what you learn from. Some think if you make a mistake, all you can expect are more mistakes. I made mistakes, but you learn fast when you have to."

As to risks? "All life is a risk. At times you have to take risks to get anywhere. If we never take a risk, we will always be where we're at."

Speaking before the Economic Club of Memphis, Meyer said that unfortunately the energy problem is still not perceived in this manner because it has not been expressed in those terms. "But there is, in fact, a very close relationship between energy and the economy," he said.

Meyer said in broad terms, the solution to the nation's energy problem can be characterized as consisting of "twin economic imperatives, one of providing sufficient additional energy to support economic growth and the other to develop new domestic energy supplies and thereby reduce our dependency on foreign sources."

"What we cannot do is to delay those near-term decisions on coal development, nuclear development, oil and gas development and conservation while we speculate on when solar or fusion will be available in significant quantities. If we don't develop our conventional resources in the near-term, we aren't going to be able to sustain a viable economy and standard of living," he said.

"The practical problem, of course, is that all of the required actions are basically distasteful to large segments of the populace and this is why I am concerned about the outcome," he said.

Both represent the results of a series of meetings held the past five weeks called by the Council of California Growers, California agriculture's public relations organization. Bill Williams, president, said the Council took the initiative because of its concern about maintaining agriculture's lines of communication.

Williams, of Newport Beach, points out that California agriculture is unusually diverse. Some 240 different commodities are produced by farmers and ranchers. Seldom are all affected by a single major issue. Most have policy-making boards of directors.

This diversity tends to divide California's agriculture. Harry Kubo, president of the Nisei Farmers League, who conducted the UCA organizational meeting, called a second meeting to respond to what he called requests from hundreds of California farmers for an action group.

Commonwealth Oil Refining Co. Inc. and Tesoro Petroleum Corp. announced Friday that they have initiated a program to bring in a new equity partner to provide additional capital to Commonwealth by acquiring a major equity interest in Commonwealth essentially equal to the interest of Tesoro, which currently owns approximately 37 per cent of Commonwealth's common stock.

The program is designed to assist in the resolution of two problems confronting Commonwealth, the need for additional working capital in the near future and the need for permanent capital to enable Commonwealth to reduce its outstanding long term indebtedness.

Commonwealth reported a loss of $24.2 million in 1975, and a loss of $13.6 million (unaudited) for the 11 months ended Nov. 30, including a loss of $8.2 million for the two months ended Nov. 30. Commonwealth expects operating losses and a resulting negative funds flow to continue for the near future.

The drilling tender is designed to operate in water depths of from 30 feet to 300 feet. It will be working in the South China Sea off the coast of Brunei. Delivery of the vessel, Marathon hull No. 118, is scheduled for December 1977.

The new unit is a sister ship to the drilling tender built at the Marathon Singapore yard in 1972.

The mint has announced it will produce 100-peso ($5) coins, each weighing 20 grams and containing 72 per cent silver mixed with nickel and zinc for durability and consistency. They are expected to go on sale in the spring.

It will be the largest denomination of any coin ever minted in Mexico. The mint issued the Juarez 25-peso piece in 1972 and another commemorative of the same denomination was struck to mark the 1968 Mexico Olympic Games.

The new silver piece was the idea of President Jose Lopez Portillo, who took office Dec. 1, following a sharp economic decline that saw a flight of money from the country.

The production of the coins revives a tradition dating back to 1535, when the mint began making "pieces of eight," the silver pesos prized by kings and pursued by pirates.

At that time, when Spain owned Mexico, both silver and gold coins were minted. The silver coins were in denominations of one, two, four and eight "reales." Silver coins of that era are worth $1,000 to $5,000 each today, according to coin dealer Santiago Ferrer Jimenez. There also was an eightescudo gold coin, which he says now is worth $5,000 or more.

The new silver coins will hardly make a dent in Mexico's supply of silver, which is mined in 18 of the countries 31 states.

Mexico is the world's leading silver producer, followed closely by Peru and Canada and then the United States. The Mexican silver mines accounted for 13 per cent of world production in 1975 — more than 2.8 million pounds worth about $168 million.

In the 4½ centuries since the Spanish conquest, Mexico has extracted more than 528 million pounds of silver, which at today's prices would be worth at least $30 billion.

During the silver age, a 250-year period after the conquest, New Spain, as Mexico was called then, shipped two-thirds of the world's supply through the port of Veracruz. One mine in the state of Guanajuato yielded a fifth of the world's silver production before the 19th century.

Miners in the state of Guanajuato are still digging silver out of veins first tapped more than 400 years ago.

The "La Valenciana" mine, which opened in the 18th century, is one of the big producers. Legend has it that its original owner placed a rug of pure silver from the mine entrance to the city cathedral on the day of his daughter's marriage.

Miners, bankers and jewelers agree there seems to be no end in sight of the rich veins flowing through the land.

"The potential of the mines is incalculable," said a recent edition of "Mineria," the official publication of the Mexican Mining Chamber.

"It is very difficult to know the amount still underground," said Lozano Gallo, a leading Mexico City silversmith. "There is no way to calculate reserves."

Jaime Mercado, editor of "Mineria," said Mexican production has been increasing since it regained world leadership in 1975 for the first time since 1967.

The latest chamber figures, those from 1975, indicate Mexico produced some 38 million troy ounces, which at $4.41 an ounce, was worth $168 million.

Bankers who deal in silver estimated last year's production was about 42 million troy ounces, but because the average price dropped to $4 an ounce, the silver earned about the same as in 1975.

About 80 per cent of Mexico's silver is exported to other countries, where photographic and chemical industries use most of it. The United States is a major importer of Mexican silver.

The rest is used by Mexican industries and Mexican silversmiths, who account for about 10 per cent.

The silversmiths are having a hard time right now, adjusting to a recently imposed 30 per cent luxury tax, the devaluation of the peso and a deflated international prices for silver. About 30 per cent of the country's silversmiths are unemployed.

Salvador de la Serna, who has spent decades in the business and has a shop in Mexico City, said there are about 10,000 Mexican silversmiths, operating out of some 300 shops concentrated in Mexico City, Taxco and the state of Guanajuato.

LOS ANGELES — William R. Pagen, president of Pauley Petroleum Inc., announced Edward J. Babineau, Jr. has been appointed vice president-treasurer of the company.

Babineau has been with the company since 1958. He will be succeeded as controller by Allan W. Stilley, former assistant controller.

LOS ANGELES — The River Runner Kayak Co. is a rarity among businesses — its factory comes to the customers.

River Runner's factory, complete with a huge oven for hardening the plastic boats, is contained in a 14-ton house trailer and pulled by a large truck across the country. The company is based in Morro Bay, Calif.

When a dealer puts in an order for kayaks, the factory pulls up to the showroom and makes as many boats as needed.

"The quality control is good because the factory is in my front yard," said boat dealer Gordon Sussman, who called the rig to Madison to turn out 25 kayaks.

"I can stand right there and watch them being made, and if I don't like one I can tell them I don't want it," Sussman said.

"From my point of view as a dealer, it's really nice."

Duke Best, 46, and Pierre Arcouette, 35, who quit their jobs with a California molding company in 1975 to start the kayak business, said their factory on wheels also avoids overhead and other costs involved in packaging, shipping and transportation delays or damage to merchandise.

Best, who handles sales, said the factory turns out a boat an hour with its three-man work force, converting a 28-pound bag of powder into a gleaming boat suitable for white water.

Best said enough business is lined up to keep the factory rolling for at least a year, with future stops scheduled in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington and Boston.

Marathon Shipyard Will Build Tender

HOUSTON — (BW) — Marathon Manufacturing Co.'s Republic of Singapore shipyard has been awarded a contract from Brunei Shell Petroleum Co. Ltd. to construct a 4,850 MDWT all weather, nonpropelled drilling tender.

The drilling tender is designed to operate in water depths of from 30 feet to 300 feet. It will be working in the South China Sea off the coast of Brunei. Delivery of the vessel, Marathon hull No. 118, is scheduled for December 1977.

The new unit is a sister ship to the drilling tender built at the Marathon Singapore yard in 1972.

The mint has announced it will produce 100-peso ($5) coins, each weighing 20 grams and containing 72 per cent silver mixed with nickel and zinc for durability and consistency. They are expected to go on sale in the spring.

It will be the largest denomination of any coin ever minted in Mexico. The mint issued the Juarez 25-peso piece in 1972 and another commemorative of the same denomination was struck to mark the 1968 Mexico Olympic Games.

The new silver piece was the idea of President Jose Lopez Portillo, who took office Dec. 1, following a sharp economic decline that saw a flight of money from the country.

The production of the coins revives a tradition dating back to 1535, when the mint began making "pieces of eight," the silver pesos prized by kings and pursued by pirates.

At that time, when Spain owned Mexico, both silver and gold coins were minted. The silver coins were in denominations of one, two, four and eight "reales." Silver coins of that era are worth $1,000 to $5,000 each today, according to coin dealer Santiago Ferrer Jimenez. There also was an eightescudo gold coin, which he says now is worth $5,000 or more.

The new silver coins will hardly make a dent in Mexico's supply of silver, which is mined in 18 of the countries 31 states.

Mexico is the world's leading silver producer, followed closely by Peru and Canada and then the United States. The Mexican silver mines accounted for 13 per cent of world production in 1975 — more than 2.8 million pounds worth about $168 million.

In the 4½ centuries since the Spanish conquest, Mexico has extracted more than 528 million pounds of silver, which at today's prices would be worth at least $30 billion.

During the silver age, a 250-year period after the conquest, New Spain, as Mexico was called then, shipped two-thirds of the world's supply through the port of Veracruz. One mine in the state of Guanajuato yielded a fifth of the world's silver production before the 19th century.

Miners in the state of Guanajuato are still digging silver out of veins first tapped more than 400 years ago.

The "La Valenciana" mine, which opened in the 18th century, is one of the big producers. Legend has it that its original owner placed a rug of pure silver from the mine entrance to the city cathedral on the day of his daughter's marriage.

Miners, bankers and jewelers agree there seems to be no end in sight of the rich veins flowing through the land.

"The potential of the mines is incalculable," said a recent edition of "Mineria," the official publication of the Mexican Mining Chamber.

"It is very difficult to know the amount still underground," said Lozano Gallo, a leading Mexico City silversmith. "There is no way to calculate reserves."

Jaime Mercado, editor of "Mineria," said Mexican production has been increasing since it regained world leadership in 1975 for the first time since 1967.

The latest chamber figures, those from 1975, indicate Mexico produced some 38 million troy ounces, which at $4.41 an ounce, was worth $168 million.

Bankers who deal in silver estimated last year's production was about 42 million troy ounces, but because the average price dropped to $4 an ounce, the silver earned about the same as in 1975.

About 80 per cent of Mexico's silver is exported to other countries, where photographic and chemical industries use most of it. The United States is a major importer of Mexican silver.

The rest is used by Mexican industries and Mexican silversmiths, who account for about 10 per cent.

The silversmiths are having a hard time right now, adjusting to a recently imposed 30 per cent luxury tax, the devaluation of the peso and a deflated international prices for silver. About 30 per cent of the country's silversmiths are unemployed.

Salvador de la Serna, who has spent decades in the business and has a shop in Mexico City, said there are about 10,000 Mexican silversmiths, operating out of some 300 shops concentrated in Mexico City, Taxco and the state of Guanajuato.

Gourmets Create Authentic Foreign Meal

By JO ANN MINER
Register Staff Writer

It is difficult to think of a social or recreational activity in American society which does not revolve around, or at least involve, eating and drinking. What fun is a ball game without a hot dog in one hand and a cold beer in the other? A movie without popcorn and a soft drink?

To host an elegant soiree without offering caviar and champagne would be utterly gauche. And what would a cocktail party be without cocktails and hors d'oeuvres? Or a barbecue without something to barbecue and something to sip.

To the gracious hostess, "entertaining" involves, foremost, not what to do but what to eat, what to drink.

Because each society and culture has foods and traditions distinct to its region or country, many people, from the suburban housewife to the amateur chef to the connoisseur of fine cuisine, have become increasingly curious about the culinary customs of other countries.

Thus, a novel style of dinner party has emerged, appropriately termed a "gourmet" dinner group which is aimed specifically for the sophisticated palate.

Perhaps the largest of such groups in the county to hold these formal parties with a potluck-style format is the Villa Park Gourmet Dinner Group which is comprised of Villa Park Women's Club members and their husbands and boasts approximately 100 participants.

Consuming and imbibing is not the only purpose it serves, however, according to Elsie Everett, chairman of the dinner group. The monthly event provides couples with an opportunity to become acquainted with each other. And most consider it to be a cultural as well as a social experience. It also gives everyone a chance to experiment with preparing and sampling regional foods from throughout the country and exotic dishes from all over the world - and at a nominal expense.

In order to accommodate the large group, yet provide intimate dinner parties, each month's theme is hosted in the homes of several members. To accomplish this, the chairman sets up a rotation system whereby couples are grouped differently each month.

Each aspect of the monthly event is an experience in itself, agreed many of the members. First, there is the extensive research on the background and customs of the region or country selected. Then comes the menu selection followed by the often difficult search for hard-to-locate specialty food items. Even the planning of a decor demands a flair of authenticity, with the end result being an elegant, all-evening dinner party.

The important thing, according to Elsie, is to experiment with typical foods of each area, not just the exotic.

However, noted Darlene Lundgren, if you're doing a country like Italy, for example, you try to choose unusual foods and get away from lasagna and spaghetti.

Or you might try something really far out - like the ancient-Rome theme Ginger Kleerup hosted.

"We researched what and how the ancient Romans ate and ended up with a dinner where we served only wine and offered no silverware."

Women's libbers would surely frown upon the format of that party. However, it was all done for the sake of authenticity.

While husbands reclined on chaise lounges, the wives rotated amongst the men fetching them food and drink.

"Each woman had one 'master' for each course," Ginger explained, "and the foods served were strictly finger foods - cornish game hens, shrimp and crab, ribs, fruit and cheese."

Sherry Zakowicz, founder and first president of Villa Park Women's Club, is responsible for the gourmet group's inception eight years ago when Villa Park was a relatively new city. She and her husband, Bill, moved to Villa Park from Massachusetts where they had participated in a similar group and found it to be an excellent way for people to get acquainted.

Sherry hosted one of January's Arme-

man dinners during which she explained a few of the rules: The seating arrangement is wife husband, alternately - but you can't sit next to your own spouse.

If you don't like the authentic wine selected by the hostess, you never ask for a California chablis or burgundy - to do so is considered to be quite "tacky." And if the beverage peering up at you from the demitasse appears a bit murky, you must quietly refrain from requesting coffee with cream and sugar.

In reference to the Slivovitz she selected as an after-dinner drink, Sherry admitted, "I have perfume that tastes better," and switched to an alternate pistachio liqueur.

To further enhance the foreign flavor of the evening, Cindy Lasof surprised guests with her rendition of an authentic belly dance.

Sherry recalled another time when a dozen live lobsters arrived at her home for a New England feast - they were the feast. One guest, however, was unable to eat the sea creatures - the one who brought them. She'd affectionately named them all.

Although the women do extensive research in preparation for each meal, on occasion they opt to reject traditional customs.

Like one gourmet dinner with an African theme.

"They truly do use pure blood from beef," winced Audrey Gustafson. "They have a mechanism to take blood from the jugular vein of cattle which they mix with meal."

But most culinary customs aren't quite so distasteful.

"Sometimes we do get a little timid," Audrey conceded, "but the way I feel, if it isn't good, we won't starve. I'd rather take the risk and try having something different."

Describing the type of individuals who enjoy a gourmet dinner group, Ginger said, "We are people who like to eat and who like to do a little more in the way of cooking."

"One couple belong," she said, "because the husband insists his wife learn to cook."

Prepare To Pare Pounds With Pears

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Fresh fruit is the former fatty's friend. But too many of Mother Nature's sweets are fair-weather friends, abandoning the marketplace when we need winter solace most. Ah blueberries, peaches, juicy nectarines...where are you now?

But not the reliable pear. Midwinter is the best time to enjoy this succulent sweet...a bargain at only 100 calories! There's nothing more delightful than a pear at its moment of perfection.

Trouble is, a pear's "moment" of perfection is just that - lasting a day or so, no more. Pears are often rock-hard and unsweet when purchased. They must wait awhile, a few days perhaps, before reaching that gently-resistant state that signals perfect ripeness. Eat at once; pears quickly turn mealy-textured.

To use pears imaginatively, consider them as a replacement for apples in any favorite fruit combination.

How about a Pear Waldorf Salad with low-cal mayonnaise? Or make homemade chunky "pear sauce," no sugar needed!

Or try these:

CRANBERRY PEAR COMPOTE
1 cup whole cranberry sauce
OPTIONAL - 1 tablespoon honey or equivalent sugar substitute
pinch of cinnamon, ginger, allspice
3 pears, pared, cored, quartered
3 sweet eating oranges, peeled and cut in large chunks Combine in baking dish. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Serve warm or cold. Eight servings, 120 calories each.

BLUSHING POACHED PEARS

8 fresh pears
1 cup Port, Red Sangria or Concord grape wine
1 cup cold water
5 whole cloves
1 tablespoon arrowroot
optional - sugar substitute to equal one-half cup (checklabel)
Cut pears in half lengthwise; don't peel. Remove cores. Put cut-side up in a shallow frying pan and pour on the wine and one-half cup water. Add clove and cinnamon. Cover and simmer gently until just tender, about 8 to 10 minutes. Remove pears with a slotted spoon. Stir arrowroot and remaining cold water together and stir into liquid in the skillet, cook and stir until thick. Remove from heat and stir in sugar substitute to taste. Pour over pears, serve warm or chilled. Each half, plus "syrup" about 60 calories.

FRUITED POACHED PEARS - substitute unsweetened fruit juice (orange, pineapple, apple, apricot, grape) for the wine. For extra natural sweetness, add a small box of golden raisins (1 and one-half ounces) to the poaching liquid.

MINTED POACHED PEARS - substitute one-quarter cup green cream de menthe and three-quarters cup water for the wine. Garnish with springs of fresh mint, if you wish.

QUICK PEAR SALAD - 1 unpeeled cored fresh pear, diced; 1 cup diced

celery, one-half cup low-calorie blue cheese dressing. Combine and serve on lettuce. Serves four, 53 calories each.

What's the calorie count of your favorite cake mix? Some are bargains, others aren't! For calories by brand name, and recipes for decolorizing popular desserts, send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET MIX TRICKS, in care of The Register, Sparta, N.J. 0787.

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

Plants Adapt To Indoor Life From Many Areas

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Have you often wondered where your houseplants originally came from? The ability plants have to adjust to growing conditions in our homes is a true miracle. Plants suitable for indoor growing may be divided into three groups:

TROPICAL PLANTS - They grow naturally in the hot steamy tropics of Central and South America, Africa and Indonesia, where the light is often filtered through higher layers of foliage, the temperature and humidity are high and relatively steady and the soil often consists of a thin layer of spongy, partially decayed vegetation.

SUB-TROPICAL PLANTS - From countries such as India, China, Japan, the shores of the Mediterranean, the South African veld, Australia and our own Southern states. Regions where there is considerably more difference between the seasons, where summer days are warm and sunny and winter is comparatively short with the lowest temperature about 40 degrees, and where there is fairly high humidity and reasonable rainfall, more or less evenly distributed throughout the year.

DESERT PLANTS - Native to the deserts of the Southwestern United States, Mexico, South America, Africa, the Middle East and Australia, where there is intense sunlight every day, it seldom rains and the humidity is low. The temperature is high by day and often drops sharply at night. The plants do their very best for us, so we certainly owe our best in caring for them. We can also see how evolved plants are and, through them, realize our potential for change and growth. Happy growing!

(Now available, the Mother Earth Plantasia album of warm earth music for plants. Send checks or money orders for $5.50, including postage and handling, to Western International Premiums, in care of The Register, P.O. Box 80817, Los Angeles, Calif. 90080. Allow four weeks for delivery. California residents add 6 per cent sales tax.)

Divorce Among The Middle-Aged: A Modern Day Malady

By KIKI LEVATHES
New York News

NEW YORK - Dr. Spock did it. Not to mention Rollo May, Martha Mitchell, Nelson Rockefeller, Eugene McCarthy, Gov. Marvin Mandel, and Sens. Lowell Weicker and Herman Talmadge.

God help us, even columnist Ann Landers, the lady with all the answers, confessed she didn't have the answer to this one - and she did it, too.

Splitting late in life. It seems to be happening to more people, more often and with hardly a raised eyebrow. It's almost expected among a certain group of well-to-do, mobile middle-aged people. Almost chic.

"Why, everyone in Great Neck in their 40s is getting divorced," said an attractive 45-year-old divorcee "Why not? It's so much more interesting than staying married."

The National Center for Health Statistics reported 2,126,000 marriages in the country last year, 1,026,000 divorces, and a divorce rate of 4.8 per 1,000 population. That compares with 1,800,000 marriages, 479,000 divorces, and a divorce rate of 2.5 in 1965. Psychiatrists and family therapists are talking about a "divorce virus" or a "divorce epidemic," and, with the dramatic increase in divorce among all ages, Dr. Philip Guerin, director of the Center for Family Learning in New Rochelle, believes there is a substantial jump, particularly in the 40-60 age group.

"Some couples are so frightened by the number of divorces in their neighborhoods, that they come to us just to talk about what they can do to prevent divorce," he said. The center, which is internationally recognized for its work in family therapy, counsels about 150 families a week.

Lawyers also testify to this increase in the late-in-life divorce.

"About 50 per cent of my clients are in their 40s and 50s - that's double what it was 10 years ago," said New York matrimonial lawyer Burton I. Monasch.

"For the first time I even had a few clients recently in their 70s.

"One of my 70-year-old clients had a stroke. The fact that he didn't get along with his wife of 40 years, he believed, was the reason he had the stroke. While he was in the hospital, he gave instructions to the staff that he didn't want his wife to visit him. When he left, he moved into the home of his girl friend who was in her 50s and he never saw his wife again."

In her autobiography, "Private Faces: Public Places," Abigail McCarthy, wife of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, wrote candidly about her husband's 1968 presidential campaign and the havoc it brought to their 24-year-marriage.

"A political wife's career is that of her husband. He needs her. If she has another career she can be of little help to him, but she has nothing when he leaves or is rejected in political life. Inevitably, inexorably, unless the wife becomes her husband's actual office aide ..., the congressional husband and wife begin to live separate lives....

"Gene left our home in August of 1969. He had long since come to the conclusion that the concept of life-long fidelity and shared life come what may 'for richer, for poorer,' etc. - for which we agreed in church - was no longer valid."

What goes wrong after 20 or 30 years of married life? And what does the future hold for these middle-aged singles? To answer these questions we talked to a dozen psychiatrists, family therapists, marriage counselors, and lawyers. There was (surprisingly, perhaps, for any group of specialists), general agreement about the reasons for the rise in the divorce rate among 40-and-50-year-olds, which are outlined below.

GENERAL ACCEPTANCE OF DIVORCE. The stigma against divorce has faded: "Older middle-aged couples grew up in a time when social prohibitions against divorce were strong and people stayed together regardless," said Dr. Henry Grayson, executive director of the Institute for Psychotherapy here. "Now, they look around and say, 'It's OK for the Joneses. It's OK for me.'"

THE EMPTY NEST. The kids leave. It's one on one again. Sometimes couples face each other and they don't know who the other is. They're grown apart. They're strangers. Or, long-buried or ignored grievances come to the surface.

END OF THE ROAD IN SIGHT. The late 40s and early 50s tend to be a stressful time in general for both men and women and take a toll in the best of marriages, according to Dr. Tom Fogarty, a family specialist with Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

While women are coping with menopausal changes and looking for new purposes in life now that the child-rearing function is over, men are peaking in their careers and discovering that long-sought-after goals, once attained, really weren't worth it after all.

SEX, LOST YOUTH. "The typical situation used to be that the man picked up after 25 years and went off with his 19-year-old secretary," said Mara Gleckel, co-director of the Womens Counseling Service of New York. "Now, it's the woman who is taking off. In her late 30s or early 40s she is at the peak of her sexual cycle."

"Both men and women go for the icing - and forget the cake, and sometimes, they suffer greatly. After the fun is over, most miss a long term relationship and commitment."

WOMEN'S LIB. The women's movement of the last 10 years, certainly encouraged women to develop a sense of self and expect more out of life. It opened their eyes to new options and life styles in addition to home and family. "No doubt the movement gave external support to unhappily married women to face the loneliness outside of marriage," said Dr. Jessie Turberg of the Nathan Ackerman Institute. "She knew it wouldn't be a bed of roses, but she would try it."

Elderly Group Advised To Fight Prejudice Against Aged

By STAN WULFF
Register Staff Writer
People over 65 years should take up a useful occupation.

organize as a political force,
and follow their social inclinations, Dr. Alex Comfort told a large crowd of elderly persons filling the auditorium of the South Coast Community Hospital in South Laguna.

Dr. Comfort, author of the books "A Good Age" and
"The Joy of Sex," told the oldesters that "sexual performance does not change with age; the male may respond slower but he gets more miles to the gallon."

Urging the audience to fight
a widespread "prejudice against the old," he told them to "write your congressman

so that the Institute of Aging gets as well funded as any South American dictator."

Research now underway into experimental gerontology could help to substantially slow the process of aging, said
the London-born physician who moved to Santa Barbara in 1974, where he is a Fellow at the Institute for Higher Studies.

A short term goal for research would be to slow aging so that a 70-year-old would have the body of a person 10 years younger, said Dr.
Comfort.

Long term research would require human biology experiments that would last a lifetime of 80 years, he said.

Meanwhile, old people are subject to prejudice as bad as that directed against ethnic groups and other minorities, said the doctor.

The only difference is, he said, that we eventually all join the minority of the old.

People say that the old are
"unemployable, asexual, and go crazy easily," he said. The truth is, he added, that fewer old people are crazy than younger groups.

If an old person goes insane,
it is because of some disease or curable dysfunction, or because "we drive him crazy,"
said Dr. Comfort. Another reason may be "over-medication."

He related a case of a patient who was taking 41 different kinds of medicine from three different doctors, plus a couple borrowed from a friend. "No wonder, he got zoned," he said.

To remain in good health a person needs work, enough money, a home, and somebody who cares, he said.

"Work is th biggest preservation of all." But it should be useful, paid work.

Older people need to stay in their own homes where they can maintain a measure of independence while receiving
"minimal" assistance and be much happier than in a nursing home, he said.

It is a myth that all old people have special needs, he said. "The needs are not that different; a wheel chair may be used just as much by a young person as an old."

Of all persons in the over-65
group, only 15 per cent receive welfare, food stamps, and similar support. The other 85 per cent live on their savings, pensions and investments.

And only four to five per cent live in institutions. It is a minority among the old that require most of the medical attention, he said, while 75 per cent will stay well until their last illness.

"You can be a very strong political force," he told the audience, predicting that the next generation (of older people) will become much more demanding.

Remember The Miniskirt? It's Making Slow Comeback

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The miniskirt. You remember, that merest suggestion of a coverup, that excuse for a dress that glorified ankle, calf, knee, thigh — and frequently a bit more.

It was the stuff of which bad jokes were made. It made an industry of pantyhose and an historical marker of the office drinking fountain.

Well, after seven years of banishment by the fashion arbiters, the miniskirt is making a comeback. Not too fast. Not too short. Not for everyday. Not for everybody.

But a comeback. Of course, here and there — what with holdouts like Mary Hartman around — the mini, like the beehive hairdo, never went out of style.

Some Paris designers, like Pierre Cardin and Kenzo, are showing minis strictly for playwear, at the beach, on the cruise ship or at the resort. And there are some shorter cocktail dresses. It remains to be seen whether women will approve. There surely won't be a mini revolution and, fashion experts say, few women would shuck their wardrobe of longer, comfortable skirts for frivolous frocks.

After all, some suspect the mini had a greater and more zealous following among men than among women who found it a chilly concession to vanity.

"The miniskirt or mid-thigh tunic looks sensational for playwear. It's great for the young and those with great legs," says Helen Saltzman, fashion director at Saks Fifth Avenue. "I don't believe women will be dictated to any longer, and I don't think there ever again will be one length or one style."

"Variety makes sense," Ann Jones, fashion coordinator for Macy's of New York, says. "I don't think we'll see them except in the contemporary department, maybe in juniors, and then just a few for spring and summer."

"I don't think minis are very saleable. They're just not comfortable. The fashion customer wants longer skirts, and we have a hard time selling them if they're not long enough."

And at Gimbels, another fashion expert says: "Most department stores don't want to confuse customers with skirt lengths at the moment. We're not pushing it, and I don't think the American woman is going to jump for it."

"Of course, young customers will go for anything new and exciting. You'll see plenty of minis at beaches and at parties, but not running around the city — unless women never got out of them like Mary Hartman."

Rita Perna, national fashion coordinator for Montgomery Ward, says the mini is "certainly one of the options on the fashion horizon. But I don't think we should get all excited and think it will replace pants, longer dresses or gauchos."

When confronted by the mini issue, men are predictably enthusiastic, often reminiscing about the magnetic minis they trailed on busy streets, up the escalator and to the filing cabinet.

But in fashion departments around the country, the sentiments are about the same: Yes, minis will be about. But not in abundance. And there won't be a stampede.

And they won't be the hard little linoleum-like dresses of the 60s. They'll be longer, soft and flowing.

"We'll have mini tunics, but we think of it only for summer. It's a resort look, not intended for the office and really intended for the young," says Sonja Caproni, fashion director for I. Magnin in San Francisco.

She also sees the full skirted, above-the-knees dress for late day, saying: "I think women who have nice legs like to show them."

In Dallas, Marsha Barrett, fashion coordinator for Nieman-Marcus says they will be offered for sale. She adds: "Overall, I feel most women will continue to wear skirts just under the knee."

"And the new minis won't be like the old 1965 English micro-minis. Here in Texas we still see a few of those. No, these will be sundresses, cool, loose and light."

And the last word on minis comes from the Daisy boutique in Fargo, N.D. where the skirtlets are about as common as bustles and dirndles: "Not in North Dakota!" says manager Meg Bierbach. "We're too conservative."

Polly's Pointers Handy-dandy hints for household chores

By Polly Cramer

DEAR READERS: Around the house repairs have always been an ordeal for many people. Here are a few hints gathered over the years that simplify many chores.

DEAR POLLY — When I could not find a yardstick, I hit on the idea of thumbtacking my tape measure to the broom handle. This worked well, since I wanted to measure from the ceiling down. With the extra length provided by the broom, I did not have to stand on anything to reach the ceiling.

DEAR POLLY — Those who doubt their carpentry skill can use an old comb to hold small nails in position, instead of getting their fingers in the way of the hammer.

DEAR POLLY — To save time, bruised fingers or even an uneven rod, when starting to hammer a curtain rod bracket on to a window frame, use clear tape on it first. Drive in the nails and remove the tape. The bracket does not slip and it is just where you want it to be.

DEAR POLLY — Put several soft paper towels by the telephone before starting a painting project. If you have to answer the telephone while working, pick up a towel and then the phone.

DEAR POLLY — Before storing a hot water bottle, blow lightly in it (after draining) and quickly screw on the top. The air inside will hold the sides apart.

DEAR POLLY — Before driving nails for large picture hooks in the wall, first look and see where the nails for the baseboards were driven in. Nails for baseboards are put in the studs which give support that plaster alone will not provide.

DEAR POLLY — To keep pictures hanging straight on the wall, put a round corn pad on each bottom corner of the back of the frame.

DEAR POLLY — When you write names and addresses in your address book, write the names with ink but the addresses in pencil. Addresses so often change, so you will have a neater book if you follow this Pointer.

DEAR POLLY — When someone borrows a book from me, I remove the paper jacket and write the borrower's name in pencil on it. I keep this. If the book is not returned in a reasonable time, I know where it is and can drop a gentle hint to the borrower.

DEAR POLLY — With five children, sorting laundry and then putting it away used to be a taxing chore. I finally put up a long shelf in the laundry room with the children's names taped on at intervals. Cup hooks were put underneath the shelf to hold coat hangers. Now I just put the clean clothes on the shelf. Each child knows which section is his and they put away their own clothes.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of The Register, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana 92711.

GOLD TOUCHES DAYTIME WEAR

Brights And Whites Color Spring Fashion Scene

BY KARI GRANVILLE
Register Staff Writer

Sportswear featuring lots and lots of brilliant, bold color and a total lack thereof — simple unadorned white — is what May Co. department stores will be offering the active fashion-conscious buyer this spring and summer.

Not only women, but men, too, will be decked in a rainbow of colors — red, green and yellow primarily — as the sexes' sporty styles begin to more closely parallel each other.

And, if the department store's seventh annual preview of spring and summer fashions held Friday at the Los Angeles Hilton is any indication, those bright stripes, solids and layered separates will top or accent neutral shades, most often white.

Completing the sportswear scene this spring will be the drawstring look, blouson tops, kangaroo pockets and hooded jackets.

Perhaps the most noticeable trend to come this spring will be a touch of gold for daytime wear. Sparkling gold metallic is being shown in hooded jackets and accessories such as handbags, belts and shoes, again mostly worn with casual white clothes.

Fashion executives for the May Co. have spotted four other up-and-coming trends outside the dazzling sportswear look.

One they have termed "colonial." And, as with sportswear, men's and women's safari-looking fashions lumped under this category closely will relate to each in style and fashion.

Basic khaki completes the adventuresome colonial look. Safari jackets and shirts, shorts, long pants with kangaroo pockets, and split skirts will be worn with heavy boots or work shoes.

Naturals is another spring trend, this one featuring slightly below-the-knee dresses and three-piece suits of cotton or linen. Also included in this category are tops and accents made of dish-rag textured fabric, a new addition to fashion.

The spring ethnic look, moving from darker prints, will have a bright, South Seas tropical look, focusing on oversized floral prints.

Basic styles in this trade dress trend will lean toward lots of skin peeking through. Sarongs and strapless dresses will be popular. Tube tops, halters and strapless blouson tops will top tiered and full skirts.

Childlike innocence is captured in the spring and summer trend toward romantic dressing in long and short sundresses. Light and airy, these fashions will feature soft small prints and stark whites trimmed in delicate embroidery, lace and ribbons.

Late summer fashions will focus on black and white color combinations for women.

Next Steps For Women Traced

"Next Steps for Women" will be the 9:30 a.m. Thursday meeting of Laguna Beach Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) in Laguna Beach Congregational Church, Glennyre and St. Ann's Drive.

Dr. Lucille Allen of Laguna Beach is chairing the gathering in which various prospects for women will be presented by three speakers.

Lynn M. Osen, instructor in women's studies at UC Irvine, will discuss the new roles of women in present-day society as well as the problems and potentials of the contemporary woman.

Among other honors, Ms. Osen received the Civilian Service Award from the Navy Department for her original work in systems analysis. She is the author of "Women in Mathematics."

Gloria Sklansky who heads the Speakers Bureau of the Women's Opportunities Center at UCI will give some hints on getting a job.

She is an industrial consultant as well as a marriage, family and child counselor and has conducted workshops on goal planning and assertion training for counselors of women.

Attorney Elaine Weinberg will describe some of her legal work in the realm of family law and domestic relations.

She serves on the county Status of Women Commission, is vice president of the Individual Rights section of the California Bar and is on the board of directors of Orange County Trial Lawyers.

Interested women may attend.

PLACENTIA — YORBA LINDA

"Our Ecological Future" will be the topic for Placentia-Yorba Linda AAUW at 7:45 p.m. Thursday, in the meeting room of Placentia-Linda Community Hospital, 1301 N. Rose Drive, Placentia.

Ms. Rudi Carol Berkelhamer of Irvine, recipient of the AAUW 1976-77 Menlo-Atherton Branch fellowship, will be guest speaker.

Officer Flees Moving Car As Bullets Strike

ANAHEIM — An Anaheim police officer narrowly escaped death this morning when he leaped from his still-moving patrol car and took cover behind a tree after two bullets shattered his windshield.

An 18-year-old man was later tear-gassed and arrested by the Anaheim TAC team and booked on suspicion of assault with intent to murder a police officer, authorities said.

Officer Gregory Salazar was responding shortly before 3 a.m. to a call of a man threatening suicide with a rifle on the front porch of 1660 S. Ivanhoe St. As Salazar approached the address four to five shots were fired at his car, police reported.

Two of the bullets shattered the windshield, spraying his face with broken glass, but failed to actually penetrate the glass. Salazar, his face covered with cuts, leaped from the slow-moving car and took cover.

The patrol car continued about 300 feet down the street before coming to a halt in a front yard.

Other officers and the department's TAC team (a specially trained SWAT-type unit) quickly surrounded the residence and evacuated persons from adjacent homes.

Falling Crane Knocks Down Power Lines

PLACENTIA — Two Long Beach men suffered minor injuries this morning when a mobile crane collapsed, knocking down a block of high-voltage power lines.

The 9 a.m. accident occurred on Van Buren Street near Cherry Street when the 68,000-pound crane hit the power lines and toppled. The power lines electrified a fence in the area, police said.

Early reports indicated the two men, Robert DuJardin, 30, and Derek Moore, 20, were working on the crane at the time of the accident. The rig is owned by the Texaco Oil Co.

A third victim described by hospital personnel as "suffering an anxiety reaction" also was taken to Canyon General Hospital. All three were reported in stable condition and were expected to be released after treatment.

Longet Gets 30-Day Jail Term, 2 Years Probation

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet was sentenced today to 30 days in the Pitkin County Jail for the shooting death of her lover last March.

State District Court Judge E. Lohr also put the 36-year-old French-born entertainer on two years' probation, saying he feared that if no jail term were ordered, it "may undermine the law."

Singer Andy Williams showed no emotion as his former wife and the mother of his three children was sentenced on her conviction for criminally negligent homicide in the accidental shooting of champion skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

Defense attorney Charles V. Weedman said he expected a motion for a new trial to be filed in February. He had previously said that if Miss Longet was given any type of jail term an appeal would be sought.

Miss Longet made a dramatic plea before the court not to send her to jail, if for nothing else because of her children.

Outside court, Miss Longet blamed her sentence on "a district attorney more concerned with his own ambitions than with justice."

"It's been a very long ordeal, and obviously it's not

Power Failure Closes School

MISSION VIEJO — Classes at Mission Viejo High School were cancelled today because of a massive underground power failure on the campus.

The power failure occurred at about 1:45 p.m. Sunday, said high school principal John Daywalt.

Classes are expected to resume Tuesday morning.

Gov. Brown Orders 'Diamonds' Opened

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. has ordered the controversial diamond lanes on the San Diego Freeway opened to all traffic beginning today.

California Highway Patrol Officer John Johnson said the order from the governor, who spent the weekend in Los Angeles, was conveyed by CHP Southern Division Cmdr. Michael O'Leary.

The governor's order ends the restriction imposed by the California Department of over," she said, fighting back tears.

Lohr granted a stay of execution until a motion for a new trial is filed, meaning Miss Longet will remain free.

In her appeal in court, she said of her children: "They firmly believe in my innocence."

They might be filled with resentment, she said, "knowing that the system had sent their mother to jail. They are beautiful. They are open. They are gentle and, with all my heart, I would like them to stay that way."

Miss Longet could have been sentenced to up to two years in prison and fined $5,000 on the misdemeanor conviction. Lohr had a choice of sending her to state prison, a reformatory or the county jail.

Sabich died March 21, 1976, of a single bullet wound in the stomach from a .22 caliber pistol. Miss Longet said the gun went off accidentally while she was learning to use it.

Carter Submits Jobs-Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent to Congress his $31.2-billion jobs and tax-cut program featuring a $50 tax rebate for most Americans. He declared that the two-year proposal "will set the stage for substantial growth in the years ahead."

The program embodies his campaign pledge to try to put new zip in the economy by cutting unemployment while tending off inflation.

The tax rebate and reduction portions would put $11.4 billion into taxpayers' hands this year and would save individuals and business an added $10.6 billion over the next two years.

The jobs part of his two-year program includes $4 billion for additional emergency public works, 415,000 public service jobs, and various training programs including ones targeted at youth and Vietnam war veterans.

Carter said in a statement that "our program only promises what can realistically be done."

In an apparent allusion to calls from unions and other groups for more spending for jobs, Carter said, "We are proposing major expansions of existing programs within a short period of time. To force more money, faster, into the system would risk poor administration."

He said he was guided by five principles in creating the program: Continuity and consistency; speed; fairness; effectiveness; and limitation on permanent budget cost.

"Because we wanted to target the benefits of this program to those most in need," he said, "the bulk of the reduction in personal income taxes will go to lower and middle-income taxpayers."

He said the program, together with previously anticipated economic growth, should reduce unemployment by almost one million persons

Millions Frozen Out Of Work, Classrooms

Bitter Cold Jeopardizes Fuel Supplies

By The Associated Press

Millions of children and adults stayed home today in the East and Midwest — maybe the only place many of them could find warmth as a severe winter chill cut deep into the supply of natural gas. At least 54 persons have died from weather-related causes.

Strict orders for lowering the consumption of gas have done some good, the Federal Power Commission said, but that brought layoffs of at least 1.5 million and closed thousands of businesses and schools.

At least 11 states instituted emergency plans to deal with the fuel shortage and that apparently lessened the chance that fuel problems would lead to outbacks in home heating. Four major natural gas pipelines said Sunday their supplies were beginning to increase.

But to preserve what natural gas was available in the Northeast and Midwest, states ordered nonessential businesses closed. More than one million persons were laid off in Ohio alone.

New York and Pennsylvania were among states that closed some schools.

The natural gas shortage resulted from the brutally cold winter that increased demand. The winter has been so cold that in Detroit, for example, the temperature hasn't been above freezing since Christmas Day — when it was 35.

Many of the victims whose deaths were related to the severe weather of recent days were found in stalled autos and others died of exposure while trying to reach safety.

One woman, Sally Shelton, 37, of Pataskala, Ohio, died after she apparently walked out the front door of her home in her sleep, and four deaths in Georgia were attributed to drownings through thin ice. A man in Fort Wayne, Ind., plunged into a snow bank and suffocated as his wife tried to dig him out.

The Buffalo, N.Y., area has been hardest hit in the nation.

Buffalo Battles Blizzard Crisis

BUFFALO (AP) — Fierce winds with gusts up to 46 miles an hour belted snow-weary western New York again today, clogging roads with snow and forcing a virtual business and industrial shutdown.

The known death toll since the blizzard began last Friday rose to 12. Among the victims were a father and daughter who died of asphyxiation and a motorist killed while trying to dig out his car.

"Generally, the outer city is in bad shape," Erie County Sheriff Kenneth Braun said.

Sheriffs in Wyoming and Genesee counties said traffic movement was impossible. In Niagara Falls, city manager Donald J. O'Hara lifted a state of emergency at 7 a.m. and reimposed it less than two hours later. The rest of Niagara County remained in a state of emergency.

There were reports of price-gouging in Niagara Falls. Police said one grocer reportedly charged $2.50 for a half-gallon of milk and some tow-truck operators overcharged motorists stuck in the snow.

Some food stores reported they had run out of milk and eggs. Farmers were unable to bring the goods to market.

Although exact figures were unavailable, it was believed that approximately 200,000 persons were off the job in western New York.

Many industries had ordered plant closings to conserve natural gas supplies. Others decided over the weekend to shut down because employees were unable to get to work. All downtown Buffalo retail stores and many in the suburbs closed. All schools were closed.

Abandoned cars littered highways, hindering emergency vehicles carrying food and fuel. Private contractors, National Guardsmen and Buffalo city workers made a massive effort to clear snow from

Lower Those Thermostats To 50—Carter

WASHINGTON (AP)

Wearing a sweater and long underwear, President Carter toured a chilly, partially shut-down factory near Pittsburgh Sunday to emphasize the nation's deep-freeze energy crisis. He called upon Americans to make even greater sacrifices to ease the fuel shortage.

Carter urged persons with fireplaces to burn logs, turn their thermostats as low as 50 degrees and follow his long-underwear-and-sweater example. He called on businesses and institutions to switch to a four-day work week of 10 hours each day, saying it's more energy efficient.

At the Pennsylvania turbine plant and in a wide-ranging conversation with reporters on his return trip to Washington, Carter said he wants authority to take natural gas away from industries that employ few persons and make non-crucial products and allocate it to industries that employ many persons and make more essential goods.

Carter flew by helicopter to Pittsburgh shortly after breakfast and rode by car to the East Pittsburgh Westinghouse plant, which manufactures turbines for electrical power plants. He spent nearly an hour at the plant talking to about two dozen workers.

Carter chose a helicopter for the 170-mile surprise trip to Pittsburgh because it uses less fuel than Air Force One.

The plant, chosen for Carter's visit because of its energy-saving record, canceled its last two shifts Friday. It will continue operating with reduced shifts, but on Sunday the cavernous factory was quiet.

Carter told the knot of workers: "I'm wearing heavy underwear." There was a chuckle. "The White House is cold inside," the President said.

He said his wife "shed a few

Massacre Figure Reported Seized

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization here would neither confirm nor deny today a report that guerrilla leader Abu Daoud, focus of an international controversy, was arrested by Syrian authorities.

But a PLO source acknowledged that the Palestinian leadership was "in contact with Syrian authorities on this subject."

The report was published in Rabat, Morocco, by the newspaper L'Opinion, which cited a "well-informed source." The newspaper said it did not know why the Palestinian would have been arrested.

Daoud, suspected of plotting the 1972 massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic Games, was arrested in Paris earlier this month but was quickly released by a French judge who rejected West German and Israeli requests that he be held for possible extradition.

Warnke New SALT Negotiator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul C. Warnke, a former Defense Department official, will be named the chief American negotiator for nuclear weapons limitations and head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, State Department officials said today.

The announcement was expected during a news conference by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who is also expected to name former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford as a U.S. negotiator to help settle the Greek-Turkish conflict over Cyprus.

Known as a moderate on defense policy, Warnke will be responsible for heading up American efforts to sign a new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union. As head of the arms control agency, he also will be in charge of most American efforts to reduce arms levels in all areas as well as nuclear weaponry.

Thailand Seals Cambodia Border

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand has sealed its border with Cambodia and will use "drastic measures" to repel future Cambodian cross-border raids like the weekend massacre of 30 Thai civilians. Deputy Prime Minister Boonchai Bammrungphong said today.

Officials said 8 men, 11 women and 11 children were killed last Friday and Saturday when 200 well-armed Cambodians raided four Thai villages in the border region about 140 miles east of here. Survivors said the Cambodians slashed the throats of some children and stabbed others.

Ex-Congressman Gets Prison Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. James F. Hastings of New York was sentenced today to serve 20 months to five years in prison for accepting salary kickbacks from two men on his congressional payroll.

Hastings, a New York Republican who resigned a year ago to become president of a trade association, was given a week to clean up his affairs before reporting to prison.

Where he will serve his term will be decided by the Bureau of Prisons in the next few days.

FV Man Dies Scuba Diving

HUNTINGTON BEACH — William L. Vaughn, 36, of 11808 Zircon Ct., Fountain Valley, Sunday, was pronounced dead on arrival at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital here after suffering a heart attack during a scuba-diving outing, the coroner reported.

A harbor department spokesman said Vaughn was on the surface off Sunset Beach near an oil island when he suffered the attack. Efforts by companions, a passing boatman, a harbor patrol crew and paramedics were of no avail, officials said.

Driver Of Stolen Car Critical

SANTA ANA — A driver suffered critical injuries here Sunday morning when the westbound stolen vehicle crashed through a guard rail and sailed off the McPadden Avenue bridge onto the Santa Ana River bottom, police reported.

Officers identified the driver as Frederick Charles Oelkers, 18, of 1230 S. King St., Santa Ana, and said he was given emergency treatment at Fountain Valley Community Hospital for a fractured skull, a compound fracture of a thigh, a broken right arm and a mangled hand. He later was transferred, police said, to the jail ward at UCI Medical Center.

The car was a total loss, police said.

Redford Wins NY Critics' Award

Miss Taylor, who has gone into semi-retirement since her marriage to former Secretary of the Navy John Warner, told Redford, "I can't go back to Washington unless I get your autograph for my daughters, my secretary, John's daughters and John's secretary."

Other winners of the Film Critics' award who attended the dinner at Sardi's included Jason Robards, Jr., best supporting actor for "All the President's Men"; Robert DeNiro, best actor for "Taxi Driver," and Paddy Chayefsky, best writer for "Network."

GI Exposed To Nerve Gas Better

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A soldier who accidentally inhaled a nerve gas at Dugway Proving Ground was reported in much better condition Sunday night and "no longer hallucinating," a nursing supervisor said.

Spec. 5 Ronald Mutchko's condition was upgraded by doctors to fair from serious, but he remained in the hospital's intensive care unit, said Ann Johnson, night supervisor at the University of Utah Medical Center.

Mutchko was hospitalized on Thursday after being exposed to the chemical warfare agent BZ at the Army base southeast of Salt Lake City.

Three Killed In Oregon Fire

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — A prominent Medford businessman, his son and another youth died early Sunday when fire swept through their home.

His wife and the couple's other three children escaped. Killed in the blaze were C.A. "Chuck" Boiler, 49; his son, Joseph, 13, and his son's friend, Alex Steiner, 13, who was spending the night at the Boiler's home.

The fire was reported at 2:20 a.m. Boiler's body was found in the kitchen. Investigators said he apparently had been attempting to rescue the two 13-year-olds when he was overcome by smoke.

Boiler, an insurance agent, was president of the Rogue Valley Country Club and was active in many civic and charitable organizations.

Police Cadet Jailed For Joyride

SAN RAFAEL (AP) — A young San Francisco police cadet was jailed here after a car assigned to chief Charles Gain's staff was commandeered from a police parking garage, then wrecked in an apparent oceanfront joy ride, authorities said.

The 17-year-old cadet, part of a program for aspirants to police work who are too young for the police academy, was booked at the Marin County juvenile bureau on an auto theft charge.

As late would have it, the cadet's latest assignment was the auto theft detail.

His two companions, aged 16 and 17, were booked for auto theft and released following the Friday incident.

BEST URBAN TRANSPORT — Jim Harrington, a lawyer, finds his cross-country skis provide the best way to get around as he makes his way on a downtown street in Buffalo Sunday. Because of sub-zero temperatures, blowing snow and a shortage of natural gas, most businesses were closed today.

East Coast Oil Spillage Target Of Fire Assault

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — The Coast Guard was prepared today to bombard a 100,000-gallon oil spill with chemicals and set it afire before the smear reaches Cape Cod's sandy beaches.

The oil leaked Friday night from an ice-locked barge that grounded on a sandy ledge in Buzzards Bay. Several slicks of oil, each about 100 yards long, drifted today about four miles off West Falmouth.

The Coast Guard planned to drop flammable material on the water-borne oil from a helicopter. Army ordnance experts agreed to help with the operation.

"We're expecting there's a chance it will burn," said a Coast Guard spokesman.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard said it would resume pumping oil off the punctured barge which had been towed to Boston.

The Coast Guard hoped to be able to burn off the oil before the fuel kills sea life or reaches nearby beaches.

Buffalo Battles

streets and highways, but near-blighted conditions made the going slow.

Among the victims of the storm were Gregory Parker, 32, and his daughter Diana, 6, of Parma. Monroe County deputy sheriffs said that Parker started a snow blower in a closed garage and that the fumes killed him there and his daughter in her bedroom.

While Alexander Barron, 23, attempted to free his car from a drift in Wyoming County on Sunday, a truck hit the auto. The car ran over Barron, killing him, police said.

And at least two women who were unable to reach hospitals had babies at home, although without undue problems, police reported.

More blowing, drifting snow was predicted for Buffalo tonight. More than 157 inches of snow has fallen already this winter, compared to a normal 44 inches.

One fuel oil distributor said 25 of his 3,000 residential customers were without fuel Sunday night and predicted the number could jump to 500 by tonight, unless driving conditions improved dramatically.

Local contractors with "quickie contracts" arranged by officials with the federal Disaster Assistance Administration were reported doing most of the cleanup work today. An estimated 250 National Guardsmen, city work crews and teams of the state and federal transportation departments helped.

Thomas Casey, regional administrator of the Disaster Assistance Administration, was given near-dictatorial powers to help preserve life and property under a declaration issued Saturday by President Carter. The designation empowered Casey to order federal troops to help remove snow and to contract with private firms, with federal taxpayers footing the bill.

Slowdown Hit By Bad Weather

BREEZEWOOD, Pa. (AP) — The weather that has blocked roads throughout the eastern half of the nation has forced postponement in many states of a truckers' slowdown to protest the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit.

Freeze Forces Millions To Stay Home

At least 12 persons have died as result of the blizzard that struck there Friday morning. And 59 persons were arrested there Sunday on charges of looting stores during the crippling storm.

The forecast for much of the nation called for continued cold for at least the next two days. A storm brought snow and sleet to the South, from central Texas to Georgia, Sunday and early today. Heavy snow fell in Texas and Louisiana.

Snowmobiles were about the only things moving in Canada's Niagara region, police said. They reported snowsqualls and high winds through the night, and the provincial transport ministry advised against road travel anywhere in Ontario province.

Dwindling natural gas supplies and falling pressure in Pennsylvania forced distributors to stop servicing hundreds of businesses, and about 90,000 workers have been laid off. All state schools have been closed since Thursday, keeping more than 2.6 million pupils at home.

But a Civil Defense spokesman said Sunday night in Harrisburg that a residential cutoff no longer was imminent.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp decided today to keep schools heated by natural gas closed, while allowing other schools to open Tuesday if fuel supplies are adequate.

In New York, which like Pennsylvania has been declared eligible for federal disaster relief, at least half a million schoolchildren will be off all this week. Gov. Hugh Carey closed every school heated by natural gas — 1,309 tax-supported schools and an unknown number of private schools.

A spokesman for the State Public Service Commission said that temperatures slightly above predictions had eased the supply shortage, but about 200,000 upstate New Yorkers were out of work because of an almost total ban imposed by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. on the use of natural gas for industry.

The utility said the restrictions might last all week. In the lower Hudson Valley, Orange & Rockland Utilities ordered grocery stores heated by gas to open today only from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. All gas-heated restaurants must close by 9 p.m.

Thermostats

tears" when he ordered that White House thermostats be lowered to 65 degrees — in keeping with his request last week that all American households set their thermostats at that setting. Now, Carter said, his family is used to it.

Referring to his need for authority to allocate natural gas among industries, Carter said control over 3 to 5 per cent of the nation's gas supply would be enough. "I wouldn't want to disrupt free enterprise," he added.

Without this authority, he said, "there's no way the President of the United States can direct the closing down of plants." Carter said he would use the authority only after making certain a plant's production is not vital and the need for its gas at other plants is vital.

The suspect, John Richard Limon of 2102 Crestwood Lane, Anaheim, came out through the rear door and surrendered after about three minutes, police said. A rifle was found in the house.

Anaheim officers did not fire any shots, police said. Sajazar — the only one injured in the incident — was treated at a clinic and released.

Job-Tax Bill

by the end of 1977, with further significant reductions in 1978. There are now 7.5 million Americans out of work.

Here are the elements of the tax portion of Carter's proposal:

— A $50 rebate of 1976 taxes for each taxpayer and dependent up to the limit of the taxpayer's liability. This will cost $8.2 billion.

— A special $1.4-billion provision which will give many working low-income families the full $50 per person even if that exceeds their total tax liability.

— A $50 payment to every recipient of Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, or Railroad Retirement. This will cost $1.8 billion.

— A permanent increase in the standard deduction on income tax calculations which would mean that 3.7 million low-income taxpayers and their families would no longer have to pay tax. The standard deduction now ranges from $2,100 to $2,800 for couples and from $1,700 to $2,400 for single persons. Carter would change this to a flat $2,800 for couples and $2,400 for singles.

Once phased in, this proposal would cost about $4 billion per year.

— An alternate tax break for business of either: a tax credit equal to four per cent of Social Security payroll taxes paid by the employer or an additional two per cent credit for new investment in machinery or equipment. This would save business $900 million this year and $2.7 billion in fiscal 1978.

Here are the job and training programs the President is asking for:

— Additional emergency public works spending of $2 billion this year and $2 billion next year.

— An increase in federally funded government jobs from the present 310,000 to 600,000 by Sept. 30 and 725,000 in the next fiscal year. This would give the unemployed jobs in hospitals, mental institutions, city rehabilitation, national park improvement, recreation and such energy-saving activities as insulating homes and government buildings. This would cost $4.1 billion, mostly next year.

— Expand youth-oriented programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act from 422,000 slots to 598,000.

— Create 92,000 jobs for Vietnam-era veterans, focusing first on the disabled. The government would pay private firms a varying amount, depending on the person's job, for employment and training up to one year.

— Add slots in other programs to boost apprenticeship training and in-job training for migrants and Indians.

The various training programs would cost just under $2 billion.

Carter also proposed expansion of the special, anti-recession, revenue-sharing program which makes more funds available to state and local government when the national unemployment rate exceeds six per cent. His change in the formula would make available an additional $500 million in 1977 and $600 million in 1978.

Carter said that, at the current 7.5 per cent unemployment rate, this portion of revenue sharing would distribute $2.25 billion annually compared to $1.25 billion under the present formula.

Vance To Assail Russia Injustice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance vowed today to "speak frankly about injustice" in the Soviet Union and other countries and said he is convinced it will not harm U.S. foreign policy objectives.

"We don't intend to be strident or polemical, and we will not comment on each and every issue," Vance told his first news conference after nearly two weeks on the job.

But, he emphasized, he fully subscribes to the State Department's affirmation of support for embattled Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov even though he did not authorize last Thursday's implicit warning to Moscow. Vance said he does not believe "it will have a negative impact" on his projected trip next month to try to advance nuclear weapons negotiations.

British-run negotiations for a transition to black rule have broken down, and Smith has said he would proceed to work out a settlement with moderate Rhodesian blacks. At the same time, South African Prime Minister John Vorster pledged his government would not succumb to external pressures to push Rhodesia into accepting the British plan pressed by envoy Ivor Richard.

Vote Expected This Week On Parks Fund Bill

A major urban areas parks and recreation funding bill earmarking $1.5 million for Orange County is expected to be voted on by the Assembly early this week.

The measure, SB 45 by Sen. David Roberti, D-Hollywood, already has been approved by the full Senate and was passed out of the Assembly resources committee Friday.

If approved by the full Assembly and signed by Gov. Brown, the measure would make $25 million available statewide for park and recreational facilities acquisition.

The Orange County appropriation was included, said Assemblyman Chester Wray, D-Westminster, the only continuation on the resources committee, because it is the second fastest growing urban area in the state.

Monies in the bill are from the state's general fund tax revenues, and the Orange County appropriation would go to the following:

— County government: $713,366; Anaheim $116,775; Santa Ana, $110,086; Huntington Beach, $81,374; Fullerton, $60,340; Garden Grove, $54,837; Orange, $54,288, and Costa Mesa Park and Recreation District, $50,980.

— Buena Park, $44,663; Westminster, $42,016; Newport Beach, $34,681; La Habra, $29,017; Cypress Park and Recreation District, $25,039; Fountain Valley, $22,376, and Seal Beach, $17,151.

— Placentia, $15,042; Tustin, $14,861; Brea, $12,945; Stanton, $12,763; Yorba Linda, $8,320; Los Alamitos, $7,962; La Palma, $6,740, and Villa Park, $1,911.

on Main Street and escaped with an undetermined amount of money, diamonds, watches and other jewelry, police said.

Drug stores, bakeries, a camera store and a car dealership were other targets reported on the police radio.

"We've had so many cars and trucks hit, we are not even keeping count any more," one officer said.

"They got a truckload of cigarettes, a liquor truck, dozens of Citizens Band radios, stereos, whatever was in the vehicles," he said.

Even the fire department was hit. Looters entered Squad 8's stalled station wagon and made off with medical supplies and other items, officials said.

"They hit so many houses I can't even add them all up," one policeman said.

Struck By Car, Injuries Fatal For Woman, 76

EL TORO — A 76-year-old woman died at Saddleback Community Hospital Sunday afternoon, 3 1/2 hours after she was struck by a car while attempting to cross El Toro Road on foot, the highway patrol reported.

Investigators said Anna Mary Maguire of 648-C Avenida Sevilla, Laguna Hills, died at Saddleback Community Hospital following the noon accident north of Rockfield Boulevard.

CHP officers said she was attempting to cross westbound when she was struck by a car driven by an 18-year-old Mission Viejo girl. The girl was not held.

Blaze Kills 22 In Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Twenty-two persons died in a fire that burned out two houses, a rice mill and two vehicles in Baloi, in the southern Philippines, the Times Journal reported today.

Military authorities in the town 500 miles south of Manila said the fire was started before dawn Sunday by the explosion of a gasoline tank in the rice mill.

Mondale Reassures Japan Leaders

TOKYO (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale promised Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda today that the Carter administration will consult with the Japanese government fully on issues that concern both nations.

Mondale also pledged that the new administration will make no sudden changes of policy that might embarrass Japan, like President Nixon's decision in 1972, to end the ing the Japanese ample warning, to improve relations with Communist China.

The vice president and the prime minister met for more than an hour. Mondale said it was a "very long and productive and useful" session, and he relayed to Fukuda the "strong desire of our government to have the closest possible cooperative relationship with the leaders of Japan."

Freddie Prinze's Funeral Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As co-star Jack Albertson and best friend Tony Orlando composed eulogies for Freddie Prinze's funeral service today, the coroner revealed that the 2-year-old comic had no chance for survival from the moment he shot himself in the head.

A small funeral service was scheduled for 12:30 p.m. today at the Old North Church at Forest Lawn in Hollywood Hills for the young star of NBC-TV's "Chico and the Man."

A spokesman for Forest Lawn said pallbearers would include songwriter Paul Williams and business agent Marvin Snyder. A Prinze spokesman said entertainer

Bob Hope would be an honorary pallbearer.

Prinze, who left a note saying he couldn't "take it anymore," died Saturday afternoon, 33 hours after he pulled a .32-caliber automatic from his apartment sofa and fired a bullet through his temple as Snyder watched. He had just hung up the telephone from speaking to his estranged wife, Kathy, mother of his 10-month-old son Freddie Jr.

As doctors at UCLA Medical Center performed surgery and used life-sustaining equipment in an effort to save him, the hospital was flooded with telephone calls from fans. The family and a few close friends, including singer Orlando, held a vigil.

Doctors at first refused to comment on Prinze's chances for survival, but the Los Angeles County coroner's office said Sunday that his injuries were so serious that he could not have lived.

"All that charm, all that love, all that marvelous talent and all that niceness," said James Komack, producer and creator of the "Chico" series. "He couldn't do that offstage. Offstage the world was still uncomfortable for him."

Prinze was faced with the breakup of his marriage, the problems of trying to free himself from a contract with a former manager who signed him as a teen-ager and the concern over an impending trial on charges of driving under the influence of drugs.

Johnny Carson, host of the "Tonight" show where Komack spotted Prinze, said the young actor "had tremendous talent. The sadness is always magnified when someone so young finds the pressures intolerable."

Said one friend, who asked not to be identified: "People don't seem to be able to understand that you can be talented, good-looking, healthy, that you could have fame and fortune and still have a problem."

State Demos Find New Chief In Old Guard

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Bert Coffey, who describes himself as "perhaps an old New Dealer," was elected chairman of the California Democratic party Sunday, defeating San Francisco attorney Fred Furth.

Coffey, who campaigned on a record of having worked for candidates from Presidents Franklin Roosevelt to Jimmy Carter, immediately created controversy with references in his acceptance speech to the party's Chicano Caucus as "Mexicans" and conservative Republicans as "expletives."

Coffey, a 60-year-old Richmond public relations and advertising executive, defeated the 41-year-old Furth 705-503 in balloting at the annual state convention to win a two-year term succeeding Los Angeles attorney Charles Manatt, who stepped down as party chief.

The delegates also elected Mary Warren of Oakland as state vice-chairperson and Alice Travis of Los Angeles as women's chairperson.

On Saturday, liberal-backed Los Angeles theater owner Bruce Corwin defeated millionaire Orange County developer Richard O'Neill for Southern California chairperson. Nancy Pelosi of San Francisco was unopposed for Northern California chairperson.

O'Neill, who was seeking reelection, had become controversial because of his role in financing an Orange County politician machine with Dr. Louis Cella, who was convicted last year of tax evasion, forgery and grand theft.

O'Neill's defeat diminished chances that he could mount a campaign for state chairman in two years, when party rules require that the post be turned over to a Southern Californian.

Coffey emphasized his ties with party leaders of past years. But both Coffey and Furth dismissed as "irrelevant" suggestions that the election marked a resurgence of Old Guard influence in the state party.

Coffey was interrupted by Chicano Caucus members in his acceptance speech when he used the term "Mexicans." He said he later met privately with the caucus to apologize and explain that his remarks were a joke with one of his supporters, Assemblyman Richard Alatorre of Los Angeles, which had been misunderstood.

Climbers Try To Scale SF Office Building

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The three brave souls set out to conquer the 48-story Transamerica pyramid because it was "so beautiful — so climbable," but after six hours hard climbing they were only partly successful.

Police halted their unusual ascent up the outside of the peaked, downtown office building and issued trespassing citations.

For experienced mountain climbers Edwin Drummond, 31, his wife Grace, 21, and Jeff Long, 25, the sudden end to their assault of the structure was a downer.

After all, they only had reached the seventh floor. Building management later decided to forego charges against the three adventurers because the structure was not damaged, and the citations were dropped.

Mrs. Drummond, who gave up the effort shortly before police stepped in, said the mission was not impossible, but not a snap either. "It was hard work," she admitted. "I overestimated my ability."

She said the scheme was 18 months in planning, with a "feasible route" developed in the past three months.

BARBRA STREISAND HUGS PRODUCER JON PETERS AFTER WINNING 3 AWARDS Received Golden Globes For Role, Song Writing, Producing 'A Star'

'A Star,' 'Network,' 'Rocky' Win Golden Globe Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbra Streisand, in a possible preview of the Academy Awards Oscar show, is the winner of three of this season's Golden Globe awards for "A Star Is Born."

And tears were shed when the award for best actor in a dramatic role was presented posthumously Saturday night to Peter Finch for his portrayal of a mad newscaster in "Network."

SA Investigator Accidentally Kills Himself

BREA — Veteran Santa Ana police investigator Leroy L. (Skip) Lynn, was fatally wounded in the abdomen at his home here Sunday in what appeared to be an accidental discharge of his service revolver, the coroner said.

Officials said Lynn's wife heard a shot and rushed to the garage where she found him lying on the floor with the weapon nearby. On an adjacent bench, the coroner said, were the holster for the .38 caliber weapon, and materials used in cleaning the weapon, including a brush and rags.

A Santa Ana police spokesman said Lynn had been with the department for about 10 years and his latest assignment had been with the juvenile division.

season's first major movie awards.

Miss Streisand's "Star" honors included one as coproducer, along with her boyfriend Jon Peters. The movie was named best comedy or musical film. Along with lyricist Paul Williams, Miss Streisand collected an award for the best song, and she was named best actress in a comedy or musical for her starring role. Her costar, Kris Kristofferson, was named best actor in the same category.

But the film lost the best dramatic picture prize to the low-budget "Rocky," made by newcomer Sylvester Stallone.

Miss Streisand said her movie was "the most painful, the most difficult, and yet the most rewarding film experience I've had."

Finch's award was accepted by actor Michael Murphy, who thanked the foreign press for "singling out one of the greatest actors of all time." British-born Finch died of a heart attack two weeks ago.

Faye Dunaway was named best actress in a drama for her role as a power-hungry rising executive in "Network." The movie also won awards for best screenplay by Paddy Chayefsky and best direction by Sidney Lumet.

The best supporting actor award went to Laurence Olivier for his part in "Marathon Man," and Katharine Ross collected best supporting actress honors for "Voyage of the Damned."

Jessica Lange, for the "King Kong" remake, and Arnold Schwarzenegger for "Stay Hungry," were named best new actors.

Television awards included:

— Best comedy or musical series, "Barney Miller."

— Best dramatic series, "Rich Man, Poor Man" Book I.

— Best dramatic stars, Richard Jordan, "The Captains and the Kings;" Susan Blakely, "Rich Man, Poor Man" Book I.

— Best television stars in comedy or musical series, Henry Winkler, "Happy Days;" Carol Burnett, "The Carol Burnett Show."

Drummer Gets The Beat On Rare Blood Ailment

BOSTON (AP) — Professional drummer Joseph Cochrane is back at work at weddings, tapping out the beat for waltzes and polkas. Doctors won a six-year medical battle to keep him alive.

The tall, burly musician at 53 is the sole known survivor of a blood condition thought to have affected only four others in the world.

Beginning in 1971, the Boston native was admitted to Massachusetts General Hospital 17 times when his blood pressure dipped so low it sent his body into shock. His illness baffled researchers for years.

"The only way to live with something like this is to be optimistic," said Cochrane in an interview. "I just kept hoping something would eventually be done for me."

Doctors at Massachusetts General said in this month's issue of MGH News they have pinpointed the cause of the mysterious ailment that left Cochrane bedridden for months at a time. And they said they have a treatment for the sickness.

Dr. Newton E. Hyslop, immunologist in charge of Cochrane's case, said the drummer goes into shock — a condition that often follows crushing injuries or major surgery — when his blood's serum content leaks out of capillaries and into muscle tissue.

Triggered by an unusually high degree of clotting ability, the condition causes vessels to collapse and blood pressure to fall, they said. Circulation is cut off to vital organs, a prelude to death.

Hyslop prescribed an oral blood thinner for Cochrane in August 1975 that has returned the patient's clotting level to normal and almost stopped his attacks. He suffered only two minor episodes in 1976.

Cochrane, who has played with some of the best jazz and Dixieland bands, hardly noticed his first attack. He thought he had a bad virus cold until one day he felt so weak he couldn't get out of bed.

Twinges and aches followed and he soon lost consciousness. His wife, Mary, called an ambulance that rushed him to the hospital.

"One doctor pronounced me dead for eight minutes," said Cochrane, who now stays within an hour of the hospital. "It's just like a feeling of being out of your body, like being in a dark place."

Doctors listed his illness as "pneumonia with complications" but wondered why he

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Large crowds at the first anti-government rallies in 19 months raised the election hopes of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's foes today.

The Janata (People's) coalition of four non-Communist parties formed two weeks ago opened its campaign Sunday for the March parliamentary elections in New Delhi, Jaipur and Patna.

Mrs. Gandhi was criticized at public meetings for the first time since she put India under a state of emergency on June 26, 1975, suspended civil liberties, jailed most opposition leaders and ordered press censorship.

Now freed from jail, opposition leaders told the crowds at the rallies the election gives the Indian people a crucial choice between democracy and dictatorship.

The rally in New Delhi drew the biggest crowd, more than 50,000, despite almost no publicity.

"It shows that the spirit of the people is still alive," said Morarji Desai, the 80-year-old Janata chairman.

"Even during the British era we did not witness the atmosphere of fear we are witnessing today," Desai told the crowd. "The people have to come out of this shell of fear or else they will be slaves of the present regime."

He said Mrs. Gandhi and her ruling Congress party "bulldozed the constitution and vasectomized democracy. The issues in the elections are very clear — whether the people want dictatorship or the rule of law."

He pledged that if the Janata party comes to power it will repeal "black laws" passed by the Congress-dominated Parliament since the emergency. He cited the internal security act empowering the government to detain persons for two years without trial, a constitutional amendment increasing the powers of the executive and reducing the power of the judiciary, and a press bill barring publication of items the government considers objectionable.

Jayaprakash Narayan, the 74-year-old disciple of independence leader Mohandas Gandhi, told the rally in Patna that the elections would decide the fate of India for the next 25 years.

Narayan, whose threat of a passive resistance movement was a major factor in Mrs. Gandhi's decision to invoke emergency powers, led the crowd of tens of thousands in a pledge that "no sacrifice is too great to defend fundamental rights and civil liberties."

The Congress party, which has ruled India since independence in 1947, has not opened its campaign yet, but Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son, Sanjay, is making speaking tours attacking his mother's opponents.

Speaking Sunday in Orissa state, he said the opposition parties were pursuing "a one-point program — to tell lies."

Draft Resisters Plan D.C. Protest

TORONTO (AP) — Draft resisters and deserters unhappy with President Carter's refusal to give a blanket pardon to deserters from the Vietnam war and those who got less than honorable discharges plan to begin a 10-day vigil and fast in Washington Tuesday.

"We see ourselves as a positive and active moral force in America," said a statement approved at a weekend meeting in Toronto of more than 300 draft evaders and deserters from Canada and Europe.

Tom Nagel, an Army deserter from Stockton, Ill., and an organizer of the Toronto meeting, said it "proves there is universal support for full amnesty. We'll force Carter to give it to us."

President Carter's pardon was extended only to draft evaders, not deserters. Nor did it cover soldiers with less than honorable discharges.

Young Takes Oath As U.N. Ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Andrew Young, a Democratic congressman from Georgia and a leader of the civil rights movement in the 1960s, took the oath of office Sunday as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

President Carter called him the best public servant he has ever known.

Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, whom Young first met when his fifth-grade civics teacher took him to hear Marshall plead a case as a lawyer in New Orleans, administered the oath. The ceremony, in the East Room of the White House, was attended by at least as many blacks as whites.

Among the guests were tennis star Arthur Ashe; Coretta Scott King, widow of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King; Calvin Hill. There was sustained applause when Young and his wife entered, prompting Carter to say: "I may have made the wrong choice. This is the first Cabinet officer who has gotten more applause than the President."

Becoming serious, the President praised Young as a "very rare combination of inner-strength and quiet self-assurance ... Of all the people I've ever known in public service, Andy Young is the best."

Then, six months later, the drummer had his worst episode. His heart stopped 12 times and he went into cardiac and respiratory arrest.

Doctors and nurses took turns applying manual pressure to his chest throughout the night to keep his heart beating.

"One nurse kept beating me until her wrists grew sore," he said. "They broke all the ribs in my thorax trying to keep me alive."

Cochrane, connected to a respirator, hovered between life and death for months while researchers analyzed his blood, looking in vain for tumors, allergies or glandular disorder.

The drummer became a devout Catholic during his years of waiting. "You can't lose hope. Reading the Bible helped me accept sickness and suffering."

"If the doctors had given up, I wouldn't be here today. But I'm feeling better now than I have for years," Cochrane said as he tapped out a lively beat. "Someone was on my side."

There was a vacuum cleaner

"There are 30,000 military deserters still subject to arrest and some 792,000 Vietnam veterans who received less than honorable discharges that prevent them from getting jobs, veteran benefits, loans or insurance," said Steve Grossman, a former Chicagoan who publishes Amex-Canada, a periodical for war resisters.

"It's time to stick together and continue to fight for unconditional amnesty for all war resisters," deserter Jack Calhoun, formerly from Philadelphia, told the Toronto meeting. "The job of this conference is to organize for our continuing struggle."

No conference statement attacked Carter's plans to have the Pentagon review less than honorable discharges to see if some could be upgraded. "This is like making the prosecutor the judge and the jury," it said.

A statement sent to the conference from expatriates still in France and Sweden called Carter a "selective redeemer" whose administration "looks very much like a recycled version of the war governments."

Peru Signs Russian Arms Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Peru has completed a new arms deal with Russia, opening the way for an increase in the number of Soviet military advisers in that Latin American country, U.S. intelligence sources report.

Gen. Victor Velasquez, a high-ranking Peruvian officer, is said to have worked out an agreement in Moscow recently for purchase of Soviet air defense missiles and radar and six helicopters.

Velasquez also buttressed details of an earlier agreement under which Russia will deliver 36 advanced SU22 fighter-bombers to Peru, according to U.S. intelligence reports.

U.S. sources said there are now about 75 Russian military advisers in Peru and that additional Soviet technicians are expected to help the Peruvian armed forces learn to handle the new Soviet equipment.

Some Peruvian military personnel, including artillerymen, have been trained in Russia in recent years.

REVEREND HAS ANSWERS FOR NO-CHURCH EXCUSES

TOLLAND, Conn. (AP) — The Rev. Bob Talbot had heard enough of the flimsy excuses people use to avoid going to church. So with tongue slightly in cheek he had an ambulance standing by and a couple of hard hats available at "No Excuse" services Sunday.

They were for those who had warned him of heart attacks or a falling roof if they ventured out to church.

And there was more — objects laid out near the pulpit at the First Baptist Church symbolizing other often-used excuses. It looked almost like a rummage sale — parishioners contributed the items.

There was a vacuum cleaner

for the women who work all week then say they can't go to church because they have to clean the house. For the Sunday shoppers, there was a bag of groceries. There were fishing poles for those who enjoy ice fishing, hockey sticks and golf clubs. An alarm clock for the late riser.

The all-time excuse was a bed for the late sleepers.

He said attendance was up to 20 per cent and included 25 persons who are not regular parishioners.

The ambulance gimmick paid off for one person. It got the driver to church. He conceded he hadn't attended services in a year.

Appeals Court Overturns Award in Age Bias Case

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal appeals court, reversing a $550,000 judgment against Exxon Corp., says employers guilty of age discrimination cannot be punished for the emotional distress they cause.

The court said if older workers knew they could get huge awards from sympathetic juries, they wouldn't bother using administrative procedures designed by Congress to settle grievances out of court.

The ruling was made public Sunday by attorneys in the case tried in February 1975 in federal court here. The reversal was issued last week by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

The decision voided a $550,000 award to the estate of Dilworth T. Rogers, a Summit, N.J., scientist who accused his superiors at Exxon of hounding him into early retirement at the age 60 to replace him with a younger, lower salaried worker.

The suit was filed in 1971, but Rogers died in 1973, two years before the case came to trial. His wife Gladys was named as the plaintiff on behalf of his estate.

At a 13-day trial, witnesses said Rogers was forced out of the company by being given jobs requiring him to stand for hours.

Testimony revealed one Exxon executive had said, "The budget is tight and therefore in order to get some of the money we need we're going to take it out of the hides of the older employees."

After deliberating for a brief time, the jury awarded Mrs. Rogers $750,000.

U.S. District Judge Herbert J. Stern cut the award to $550,000 several weeks later. The appeals court said he should have abolished it entirely.

"In this case, the jury's award for pain and suffering is more a condemnation of defendant's activity than a measure of the actual distress attributable to treatment by the company," the court said.

The court said the 1967 age discrimination law specified complaints should be first taken to the Labor Department and state civil rights agencies.

Aspin Says House Plans Effort To Establish Intelligence Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - With a watchdog panel already functioning in the Senate, a fresh effort is scheduled to be made today to give the House a role in overseeing U.S. government intelligence operations.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said

he would introduce a resolution to create a permanent intelligence committee as a counterpart to the Senate committee established last spring.

A similar proposal in the House last year failed after a special House committee, investigating abuses by the CIA and other intelligence-gathering agencies, suffered severe embarrassment because of unauthorized disclosures of its findings.

Aspin, a sponsor of last year's bill, took note of criticism that a permanent intelligence committee might only increase the likelihood of government secrets being leaked. However, he said such fears have been dispelled by the Senate panel's success in avoiding such problems.

The extent of House support for a permanent committee is unclear, but there appears to be little enthusiasm anywhere on Capitol Hill for a joint committee, sometimes suggested as a possible alternative to having separate panels with largely duplicated responsibilities in each house.

The joint committee concept is preferred by many intelligence officials, who argue that it would limit the number of individuals with access to sensitive or classified data, and would require less time to be spent giving briefings or testifying in hearings.

Aspin said he felt that with a lessening of the furor over the abuses exposed last year, the time has come for "systematic oversight" of the intelligence community.

"With a fulltime committee and staff keeping watch over the intelligence flock, it is less likely that the kinds of abuses exposed will recur," he said.

As is the case with the Senate committee, Aspin's proposed House panel could not declassify information over the President's objections, but would be empowered to refer disputes over declassification to the full House, which would have final say.

Neither would it be able to approve or reject covert operations, but as in the case of the Senate, agency heads would be expected to keep the panel "fully and currently informed" about continuing and anticipated operations.

The House committee would authorize appropriations for all intelligence agencies and the intelligence-gathering functions of other agencies, with exclusive jurisdiction over the CIA.

WHIPLASH AND SPORT - LASH OFTEN HAVE DELAYED EFFECTS

Symptoms and Their Meanings With...

Dr. A.N. Burpee, D.C.

Q: Doctor, I never believed in a whiplash until I had one. Now, I'm wondering, will I ever get over it?

A: This is so often the case. A person who does not believe in the dynamics of a whiplash-type injury will often take a light view of his problems following an accident. This attitude can postpone proper examination and treatment allowing the condition to set up problems they are seemingly impossible to overcome.

Q: I was examined by one Doctor and he said I wasn't injured while another Doctor examined me and said I had a whiplash - why the difference?

A: Many doctors are interested only in bone fractures, contusions and lacerations - actually, those things that demand immediate attention. The underlying "unseen" damage of a whiplash injury may not be their concern due to their limited emergency room practice or their lack of treating facilities that such injuries require. The Doctor of Chiropractic is the best suited specialist in treating this type of injury.

Q: After an accident, how long should one wait to be examined by a good Chiropractor?

A: Our suggestion is that you make an appointment for examination and Spinal Stress X-rays at least within 48 hours after an accident. Sometimes even more immediate attention is suggested. At any rate, this is a problem that should not be put off for two reasons: 1. The first six weeks following a whiplash is considered the "Golden Age of Treatment" and prevents the greatest amount of permanent damage. 2. Whiplash injuries are often deceptive and do not create immediate symptoms. Sometimes it is weeks, months or years before the full problems appear.

Q: Can I get a whiplash-type injury in any other way besides an auto accident?

A: You most certainly can. Here are a few ways: Falls, hitting the head on overhead structures, near falls, assaults, skiing or water skiing, wrestling, etc. Any of these injuries bear checking out because so often, much damage takes place and accumulates before a vicious health problem long before the pain is pronounced. DO YOU HAVE A QUESTION? Call the Chiropractic Care and Information Bureau, 836-1190, and ask to speak to a Doctor of Chiropractic. Treated daily at Burpee Chiropractic Offices are injuries resulting from home, work, auto or sports accidents and spinal related health problems as headaches, neck, shoulder and arm pains, chest and stomach pain, and low back, hip and leg pains and sciatica. GOP To Work On Rebuilding Local Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Republicans lose a presidential election, GOP leaders talk about rebuilding the party. New GOP chairman Bill Brock says this time the Republicans mean it. The effort will begin by “restoring and rebuilding our basic organizational structure in the 50 states and their individual districts and communities,” he said.

“That’s where we start,” he said. “That’s our most important priority right now. That’s where we’re going to start because we have allowed that base to erode in the last few years to the point where we simply must rebuild it.”

Brock said it is essential to elect state legislators, sheriffs and mayors, aldermen and commissioners. Even a strong losing effort will develop experience for candidates and party workers, he said.

Many local offices have fallen to the Democrats in recent years, Brock noted in an interview. Unless GOP candidates win local office, he said, the party cannot build “the candidate pool from which we draw candidates for governor, for House and senate seats.”

“We must have candidates in these legislative districts,” Brock said. “Some of them won’t win, but the experience they gain will be enormous. The volunteers they attract will be vital to our broader efforts.”

Brock perhaps understands the problem better than most. An ex-senator from Tennessee and once a symbol of the Republican revival in the South, he lost his job last fall to James Sasser, a Democrat making his first race.

Brock said he hopes to spend $1.7 million a year training and deploying professional organizers to the states.

In addition to the presidency, Democrats hold 240-1 majorities in Congress and 38 of the 50 governorships. They also dominate many state legislatures, city halls and county courthouses.

Brock said he also hopes to find leadership posts for blacks, women, ethnic minorities and others who he says may feel lost or neglected in the Democratic party.

“I have and will continue to have very strong black advice, to be very sure that their needs are encompassed in the program,” he said.

“We’re going to try to create in the community an understanding of the tremendous contribution that blacks can make to this party,” Brock said.

“We’re going to try to do the same thing for people who work — the hourly workers, the blue-collar workers,” he said. “We’re going to try to do the same for women, for the ethnic voters, Hispanics or Cubans or Poles or whatever, by setting our machinery here and our field program up in such a fashion as to encourage the community organizations that we support to reach out and bring people in.”

Grandmother From Long Beach Wins Mrs. America Contest

MRS. JAMES JOHNSON

A Long Beach housewife and grandmother is the new Mrs. America. MRS. JAMES B. JOHNSON, 47, was selected by a panel of judges that included BARRON HILTON of the Hilton Hotels Corp., DR. JOYCE BROTHERS, former Olympic great JESSE OWENS and CHRYSTIE JENNER, wife of 1976 Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner. Mrs. Johnson is the mother of three children and has one grandchild. The contest was conducted under rules similar to those used in the Miss America pageant, but the contestants representing the 50 states also had to demonstrate their homemaking ability.

OTIS SIMMONS, the Alabama derelict who won a court fight Jan. 10 to prevent amputation of his gangrene-infected feet, was reported Sunday in stable condition. "We are treating him aggressively with antibiotics," said a spokesman for Roosevelt Hospital in New York. Doctors, however, continue to believe the infected parts of his feet will drop off, as three of his fingers did after a similar experience in Detroit in 1968.

NICOLE BARRETT, the 20-year-old girl friend of executed killer Gary Gilmore, has been released from the house and playing with his children until he was freed at 21. The rancher treated the slave "like his own son," Smith recalled.

English revolutionary ROSE DUGDALE and EDDIE GALLAGHER, imprisoned in Ireland, want to get married, officials say in Dublin. Officials declined comment Sunday on the request, but, said one, "The applications are being studied." Dr. Dugdale, 36, is serving nine years in Utah State Hospital, a spokesman said this weekend. Mrs. Barrett, divorced and the mother of two, was committed to the mental institution Dec. 3 by her mother. That was two weeks after she had taken an overdose of drugs in her apartment, the same day Gilmore was taken from the Utah State Prison to University of Utah Medical Center because of an overdose of drugs.

CHARLIE SMITH experienced events portrayed last week in the television series based on Alex Haley's book "Roots." Smith, 134, was 12, living in an African port when he was shipped to New Orleans and sold to a Texas rancher named Charles Smith. "I knows what it was like 'cause I was there," Smith said in Barton, Fla. He said he remained with the Texas rancher, living in his Limerick prison for masterminding an art robbery and hijacking a helicopter for outlawed Irish Republican Army. Gallagher, 28, was sentenced to 20 years in Portlaoise prison for kidnapping a Dutch industrialist as ransom for Dr. Dugdale's release. Dr. Dugdale bore Gallagher's son in Limerick two years ago. He has never seen the youngster.

Canadian ballet star KAREN KAIN and FRANK AUGUSTYN left for home Sunday after a three-week tour of four Soviet cities. The two told reporters before leaving they got a standing ovation from over 1,000 fans after their final performance Friday in Kiev. Miss Kain and Augustyn, leading dancers of the Canadian National Ballet, performed Giselle at Moscow's Bolshoi Theater, and with the local companies in Tallinn, Volnius and Kiev.

Let Us Help

...A father discovers his adolescent daughter is experimenting with drugs. He doesn't know what to do.
...A lonely wife sobs into a pillow. Her marriage is breaking up. Her elderly parents have become a burden. She can't cope.
...A middle-aged man with a good job shakes uncontrollably as he reaches for a bottle of booze. He tried to stop drinking, but failed.

These scenes are common everyday experiences. All of us have problems and we search for their solutions. Sometimes we succeed. Other times we can't. Then we need professional help. Where to find this help can become a problem. PROBLEM TALK SHOP helps people find answers to their problems.

PROBLEM TALK SHOPS are free counseling and referral services located in Orange County.

PROBLEM TALK SHOPS are here to offer you help through counseling and referral. There is no charge for our service to you. We refer to both public and private agencies in Orange County. Facilities to care for individuals are available on a 24-hour basis. That means we can help you whenever you need help. Appointments are not necessary. If you prefer to make an appointment, day and evening hours are available. (Office hours: 8:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. In extreme emergencies, a counselor can be reached after 5:00 p.m., and on weekends.)

Let Us Help With:

Crisis Intervention - When a problem is so big or complex that you are unable to see alternatives, talking with a professional may help.

Marital Discord - A counselor helps establish a starting point and guidance for husband and wife.

Adolescent Problems - The years 14 through 18 are trying for the young person as well as his parents, learning to communicate is one of the basic steps a counselor can help bring about.

Single Parent Problems - The single parent may often feel ignored in a couple-oriented society. Trying to be two people, mother and father, can be too difficult for one person to handle.

Geriatric Problems - Sometimes a senior citizen parent needs tender loving care away from the family, specialized nursing care, or a place to live with others near his or her own age, and the children who make these decisions must learn how to cope with their feelings of guilt.

Alcohol and Drug Problems - More and more people are becoming dependent on alcohol and other drugs. Specialized medical care and a treatment program are needed.

Individual Psychiatric Problems - Sometimes we feel that our world is caving in on us. Tension, anxiety, and fear may keep us from coping effectively with everyday life. Psychiatric help may be your first step toward healthy living.

Austerity Curtails Italian Living Scale

ROME (AP) — The Italian love for fast cars, good food and holidays is slowly adjusting to economic reality under the six-month-old austerity government of Premier Giulio Andreotti. 8

Italy's problems are not small ones. In 1976 it had an inflation rate of 22 per cent, a foreign trade deficit of almost $5 billion, unemployment estimated at 7 per cent in a work force of 20 million, industrial stagnation and a slide of almost one-third in the value of the lira.

When he visited Rome last week, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said he was encouraged by the progress being made in dealing with the country's economic crisis.

His visit coincided with a breakthrough agreement between industrialists and Italy's powerful labor unions to reduce the cost of labor, a prime condition set by the International Monetary Fund for granting Italy a $500 million loan. The labor pact was hammered out after weeks of bargaining and government pressure.

Andreotti's minority Christian Democrat government remains in power only through the tacit cooperation of the Communists and other leftists. The left's only major criticism has been that not everyone is being asked to sacrifice and that perhaps austerity is not yet severe enough.

But the belt-tightening being asked of the people is beginning to take its toll on daily life in subtle yet significant ways.

The car owner has been hit hardest by austerity, putting the brakes on a love affair that has transformed a motorbike society of 20 years ago into one in which there is a car for every four people.

Gas prices were hiked 25 per cent in October to 500 lire per liter — to $2.16 from $1.73 a gallon. This is expected to raise $1.1 billion for the hard-pressed national treasury and cut down on expensive oil imports by discouraging consumption.

Casoline use dropped 7 per cent in November and again in December, showing that at least some Italians gave up their cherished Sunday drives into the country and dependence on the family car to go to and from work.

To discourage luxury car sales yearly road taxes were cut for small cars but raised for bigger models. The tax for a Mercedes 300D, for example, quintupled to $640. Government officials are talking about further curbs on the car owner, including gasoline rationing and partial bans on Sunday and holiday driving.

Italian eating habits are also under pressure, and that's a real blow in a country where everything stops for three hours at midday to allow time for a two-plate meal and trimmings.

The Italian Chamber of Commerce estimates that the economic squeeze has already forced families to cut back by as much as 20 per cent on the amount they spend on food.

Because beef is the second biggest import item next to oil, the government is looking for ways to cut down meat consumption. Tentative plans have been announced to buy 40,000 tons of frozen beef from other Common Market countries and to ban the sale of fresh meat one week each month.

But the Italian palate is accustomed to fresh meat and vegetables bought the day they are cooked, and many Italian households don't have freezers.

Working habits are also changing. The unions reluctantly agreed to work seven holidays this year, breaking up the 17-day holiday feast that is the biggest in the industrialized world. Thousands of workers habitually "bridged" their midweek holidays to the weekend, creating mini-vacations.

In the heat of the economic crisis last fall, the government managed to divert cost-of-living wage hikes into government bonds for those making more than $9,200 a year.

But the unions are determined to avoid a repetition of that, and last week they won a promise from Andreotti not to touch the cost-of-living mechanism again. The unions reciprocated with a break for industrialists — pensions and separation pay will no longer be covered by the automatic cost-of-living hikes. This will save industry an estimated 5 per cent on labor costs this year.

Postal, electric, railroad and telephone rates have been increased to help those services pay for themselves.

In a newspaper interview this week, Andreotti returned to the theme he sounds every chance he gets to address the Italian people:

"Families are being called on to limit their consumption, to keep their spending within their means.... Everybody must unite in the effort, accepting his own share of sacrifices."

In Rocket Age, Ballooning Across U.S. An Adventure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In an age of rockets to the moon, a trip across the United States in a hot air balloon might not seem like much of an adventure. And there is a routine side to it, says Karl Thomas.

"I'll go up and let the wind take me east for about 10 or 12 hours, then I'll come down and refuel and go up again," said the 28-year-old adventurer.

But Thomas knows the journey is potentially dangerous, and that's why he's going to have a crew of 18 following on the ground; why he's taking along a parachute; why he'll wear arctic clothing for sub-zero temperatures, and why he plans to enjoy the entire trip immensely.

The Ford Motor Co. is sponsoring the 2,600-mile cross-country trip, as Thomas, from Flint, Mich., tries to set a record of better than 41 days. Ford's sponsorship doesn't insure success, he said.

Asked Thomas: "If it was easy, why hasn't it been done by more people? Why are balloons considered so dangerous?"

Thomas should know better than to try something foolhardy. He has a master's degree in clinical psychology and was a practicing psychologist for five months, "until I realized that I hated the patients. I found only one difference between patients and psychologists: sometimes the patients get well."

So he opted for a life in the air. He already was a pilot, so he bought a small airport, business boomed, and "I grossed $4 million one year." Then he formed an adventurers club and decided to try something that hadn't been done: cross the Atlantic on a balloon.

The try nearly ended in tragedy.

"On the morning of the second day, I noticed a storm ahead. Lots of lightning. I took the balloon down to try to get under it, but it was no use. I had to make a decision: stay with the balloon or ditch. Thunderstorms will rip up a balloon, but before I could decide what to do, the gondola flipped and most of my gear went into the ocean.

"So I jumped." Four days later, weak, hungry, with three broken ribs and a punctured lung, he was rescued from his life raft by a Russian freighter.

"Was it worth it?" he repeated a question. "Absolutely! It was an experience I wouldn't want to go through again, but I wouldn't trade it for anything. I've always felt I had the ability to survive anything, and this gave me a chance to prove myself to myself."

Publisher Malcolm Forbes set the record of 41 days from coast to coast in a hot-air balloon, but Thomas said he can make it in as few as 12 days, no more than 18. Organization is the key, he said.

"My crew is gearing up to follow me wherever the balloon goes," he said. "If I come down on top of a mountain, I want them there, so I'm not stuck in a tree for a couple of days."

The balloon lifts off Monday evening from Santa Anita race track and will cover a zig-zag course, avoiding mountains, over Phoenix, Rosewell, N.M., Dallas, Jackson, Miss., and he'll wind up in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Italian Offers Lottery To Cut Workers' Absenteeism

SANT'ILARIO D'ENZA, Italy (AP) — The owner of a local firm has set up a lottery among his workers in an effort to reduce absenteeism, a major plague of Italian industry. So far, he says, it has cut work days lost by more than 50 per cent.

Giuseppe Rocchi, owner of the Icca container plant here, announced the plan last April, saying everyone who missed no more than one day of work during the rest of the year would be eligible for a year-end drawing for $1,200.

Rosaria Varesi, a 50-year-old widow and mother of a grown son, won the prize in the drawing earlier this month.

She was one of 30 employees eligible.

The lottery drew bitter criticisms by union officials. They called it "paternalistic and discriminatory." Even the local manufacturers association called it an example not to be followed.

Rocchi remains enthusiastic about his idea and plans to continue the lottery once a year, perhaps with higher bonuses to be split among several "good" workers. He said absenteeism had been running 18-20 per cent of the work force but has dropped to 8-9 per cent since the lottery was begun.

"Certainly the lottery is not our only effort for reducing absenteeism in our firm. We are also pursuing prevention of labor accidents and labor diseases. However, the lottery is helping us a lot and is the antiabsenteeism measure which has worked best," Rocchi said.

Mrs. Varesi had lost several working days because of sickness prior to the lottery. She said, however, it was not her bad will but bad luck and bad health.

The lottery was open to all the 180 white and blue collar employees of Icca in this town near Reggio Emilia.

"No doubt the lottery was successful," one local union official said. "In current times of austerity, one million lire ($1,200) are useful to everybody. But the employers, and the workers, must understand the causes and solutions for absenteeism are different."

"It was an Italian-style solution in absence of stiffer laws against absenteeism. It is the traditional Italian art of getting along. But it is not a solution of the problem, which must be political," an official of the Milan manufacturers association said.

Absenteeism has risen as high as 25 per cent daily in the big Italian industrial companies during recent years, chiefly because a law prevents physical checks for workers staying home.

FDA May Require Bubble Bath Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of injuries associated with bubble baths, the Food and Drug Administration has proposed requiring consumer warning labels on the soap.

Sherwin Gardner, acting FDA commissioner, said the number of adverse reactions to bubble baths remains high, despite a 1971 FDA request that manufacturers remove all harsh ingredients.

"The Food and Drug Administration has received many complaints from consumers and physicians about adverse reactions from bubble baths," Gardner said. "The reactions range from rashes and itching to injuries to the urinary tract, bladder and kidney, and genital disorders, particularly in girls."

"Other reports are of eye irritation and respiratory disorders," he continued. "Many of these reactions required medical attention."

In a 1974 survey, FDA said it found the rate of adverse reactions to bubble baths was 14 per 10,000 product uses, compared with a 6.9 rate for all cosmetics.

Consumers spent $41.2 million on bubble baths in 1973, up

42 per cent from 1971 figures, the agency said.

The FDA proposes that each bubble bath product carry this statement:

"Caution — use only as directed. Excessive use or prolonged exposure may cause irritation to skin and urinary tract. Discontinue use if rash, redness or itching occur. Consult your physician if irritation persists. Keep out of reach of children."

For powdered bubble bath, the FDA proposes adding an additional cautionary statement, saying: "Avoid inhalation of dust to prevent respiratory discomfort."

"The cautionary label we are proposing will alert consumers to the potential for these reactions," Gardner said. "We hope this caution label will reduce misuse of bubble baths and lower the number of injuries to consumers."

Chimp Won't Let Scientist Lie, Especially When It Involves Food

ATLANTA (AP) — Honesty is always the best policy — especially when you're dealing with a "talking" chimpanzee.

Lana, 6, is part of a language project at Emory University's Yerkes Primate Center. Scientists have taught her to "converse" with humans through a computer.

In a recent experiment, researcher Tim Gill tried to lie to the chimp.

He substituted cabbage for Lana's favorite monkey chow in the machine that rewards her when she punches out a request for food on the computer keyboard.

"Chow in machine," she asked Gill on the computer. (In the computerized language she punches, the question mark comes before the sentence.)

"Yes," Gill lied.

"No chow in machine," said Lana.

"What in machine," Gill asked.

"Cabbage in machine," Lana said. "You move cabbage out of machine."

"Yes," said Gill, removing the cabbage and replacing it with monkey chow.

"Please machine give piece of chow," Lana instructed the machine repeatedly until she had all the chow.

Gill, a Georgia State University doctoral student who has worked on the language project for several years, says he and others "talk" to Lana with the help of a computerized language system, using a kind of talk named "Yerkish" after the primate center.

Since chimps lack the vocal chord structure to speak, Lana presses large keys on the machine to indicate certain words and phrases.

"These experiments clearly demonstrate that Lana is operating in a domain once held exclusive to man, that of language," Gill said of the experiment which was begun in 1972 by Dr. Duane M.umbaugh, a Georgia State psychologist.

Gill said Lana also has performed other things during the experiment which she had not done before. In one case she asked that an unwanted item be removed from a dispenser that gives her food and other items.

Another time, Gill said, he put water in her milk dispenser and "she indicated in Yerkish and in a number of other ways (facial expressions) that she didn't like it."

Waldheim Fears New Mideast War In 2 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Sunday that he feared war would break out in the Middle East within two years unless there was a negotiating breakthrough with the Arabs and Israelis this year.

Waldheim was interviewed on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program one day before starting a two-week trip to Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Israel aimed at reviving the 1973 Geneva Peace Conference.

He said both the Arabs and Israelis showed readiness to resume negotiations and both were interested in getting a lasting settlement.

"I have the firm impression that the Arab governments are ready to accept the existence of Israel and, in an overall settlement, to recognize Israel," he added.

Among diplomats at the United Nations, Arab refusal to grant Israel formal diplomatic recognition has been considered one obstacle to a settlement, like Israel's reluctance to give up all or nearly all the territory of Egypt, Jordan and Syria occupied in Arab-Israeli wars.

"I'm afraid that if we are unable to achieve a breakthrough in the negotiating process this year, then we will have war in the Middle East in two years' time," Waldheim said.

He noted that there was talk of setting up a Palestinian state in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Israel has declined to accept any Palestinian state not linked with Jordan, but Jordan has agreed with other Arabs that the PLO should have an independent state.

Waldheim conferred in Washington on Friday with U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who will visit the Middle East after him.

Waldheim also commented on Rhodesia and Cyprus during the television program.

Pope Defends His Stand Against Women Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI defended on Sunday his stand against the ordination of women Sunday, telling Roman Catholic women they can still occupy first place in charity and social fields.

He told a crowd of several thousand in St. Peter's square there must continue to be a division of functions within the Catholic church.

Woman was exhorted "to carry out, with a new conscience and increased strength her mission of piety, wisdom and virtue of love that made herself, like Mary, teacher and queen."

Pope Paul's comments were an apparent answer to critics of a document issued Thursday by the Vatican Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith reaffirming the ban on priestly ordination of women. The document was issued on the Pope's orders.

The world leader of Roman Catholicism said the woman priest has been made "unduly fastidious by some forms of unmoderate feminism."

"The true reason (for the ban)," the 79-year-old pontiff said, "is that Christ, by giving the church its fundamental constitution, its theological anthropology — always followed by the tradition of the church itself — has established" the rule.

"In a choir of human voices," the Pope said, "there are the tenor and the soprano. It is not a preference for one and a wrongdoing for the other but an order based on the essence of the person who makes it (the choir)."

The document of the Congregation of the Faith, the Pope said, has given "a negative solution to the question which has become pressing in these last years, regarding the admission of women to priesthood."

This document, the Pope said, "deserves to be known even if it does not say anything new."

The 6,000-word declaration noted that Christ was and remains a man and his apostles, all men, chose other men as their successors. Quoting St. Thomas Aquinas, it said a priest must bear a "natural resemblance" to Christ.

"Modern seminism, even that healthy and religious (kind) to which goes our respect and favor," the Pope said, "insistently demands an explanation for this inequality between man and woman."

"Why only men and not also women can be invested with priesthood? We can reply quickly: the disparity of functions does not mean a diversity of dignity in the objective order of grace and, as a result, a reduction in the hierarchy of charity, where woman — and Mary is an example — can occupy a first active place in the exercise of so many virtues...such as in the charity and social fields."

"Let us invite women, even in untying this knot made unduly fastidious by some forms of unmoderate feminism, to understand how the church does not intend to emarginate her precious function in the integral design of God's kingdom and even in the temporal kingdom," the Pope said.

Dead Horse, Alaska, Gets Mail — Finally

DEAD HORSE, Alaska (AP) — The mail must get through even for the 40 residents of Dead Horse, Alaska, the U.S. Postal Service has decided.

The townspeople complained that packages and mail heavier than 13 ounces had been marked "Return to sender" for some months. The packages, including Christmas gifts bearing first-class postage, were returned without explanation by Alaska National Bank of the North, the postal contractor for Dead Horse.

"We can't even order our groceries," said Mrs. James Childs. Dead Horse has no store and groceries are ordered by mail using a two-pound catalogue, she said.

"I contacted postal officials in Fairbanks and they couldn't give an answer. I even called the postmaster in Washington, D.C., but I could get no explanation," she said.

The problem was caused by a misunderstanding on the part of the Dead Horse mail contractor, officials said.

The Post Office contract with the Dead Horse agent requires the delivery of all "priority mail" and that can weigh up to 70 pounds, said Bill Kobis, director of customer service in Anchorage.

The National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse tells us that child abuse is now epidemic not only in the United States, but throughout the world. Last year, approximately one million American children were abused, and two thousand died painful deaths from beatings, burns, immersion in scalding water, etc.

Neglect (failure to provide a child with the basic necessities of life: food, clothing, shelter or medical care) is also child abuse. So is using a child for sexual gratification.

Child abuse can leave permanent physical scars—a crippled limb, impaired vision, a hearing loss and even brain damage. It causes antisocial behavior, failure in school, juvenile delinquency and emotional problems.

Parents who abuse their children need the kind of help that is now available through Parents Anonymous. It was founded by parents who had abused their children and had the courage to organize and seek solutions to their problem. They are headquartered at 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, Calif. 90278.

There are now 450 chapters in more than 300 cities. You can reach them toll free. In California dial 1-800-352-0386. Outside California, dial 1-800-421-1353.

Some questions:

Do you sometimes physically hurt your child because you're angry with yourself?

Were you mistreated as a child and now find yourself repeating your past?

Do you feel inadequate as a parent? Depressed? Unable to cope?

After punishing your child severely are you heartsick, ashamed and disgusted with yourself to the point of prayers and tears?

Have you ever injured your child, and then lied about it? ("He fell down the stairs"—or "out of bed"?)

If you can see yourself in any of the above situations, don't be ashamed. You are not alone. Call P.A.

Here are some questions and answers that might be helpful:

Who may report a case of child abuse? Anybody can.

Do I have any legal protection when I report a suspected case of child abuse? Yes. Persons who report in good faith are granted immunity from civil and criminal court action, even if the report proves to be erroneous.

How sure must I be before I report? There is no rule. If there is serious doubt, resolve the doubt in favor of the child, and report.

Must I identify myself when I report? No, but it would be better if you did.

Is hitting "child abuse"? It depends on the age of the child, what part of the body was hit, what was used to inflict the punishment and how serious the injuries are.

Do abusive parents hate their children? No. Most parents love their children, but in times of anger, they strike out at whoever is closest.

Do abusive parents ever learn to cope with their problems, and can the children be safely returned home? Yes. If parents receive the right kind of support and treatment, they can learn to handle their anger, and their children can be left safely in their care.

Does jailing abusive parents help solve the problem? No. It only satisfies society's need for retribution and protects the child only temporarily. Imprisonment does not provide treatment and counseling, which is what the abusive parent desperately needs.

There are more than a dozen government, private, volunteer and specialized programs dealing with the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Parents Anonymous is a good place to start if one wants to know more about the problem.

If you think you need help, call P.A. now. If you suspect that a child you know is being abused, please, please report it. All reports will be strictly confidential, and your name will be withheld.

Children should be seen—and not hurt.

Vatican Priest Gives Up Faith, Weds Girl, 26

TURIN, Italy (AP) — A prelate and Vatican diplomat has resigned from the papal diplomatic corps and married a Colombian woman in a civil wedding because he says "I no longer believe in this church."

The priest, Bernardo Arduino, disclosed the rare defection from the specially trained Vatican diplomatic corps in an interview appearing in Turin's daily La Stampa. Arduino, 41, until recently was secretary to the papal nuncio or envoy in Bogota, Colombia.

"For personal and family reasons, after long reflection, I notify you with my irrevocable renunciation of the diplomatic service and to any other post in the employment of the Holy See," Arduino said he told Pope Paul VI's secretariat in a letter Jan. 13.

He said he sent the letter shortly after being informed he was about to be transferred to the politically sensitive post of Lisbon, Portugal.

As to his status as a priest, Arduino said he would not seek the church's permission to be reduced to a lay state and lifted of the moral obligations deriving from the chastity vow he took when he was ordained 15 years ago.

"I already told my bishop I need nothing from the church because I no longer believe in the church," Arduino said. "It is up to the church to do whatever they deem necessary."

Arduino was interviewed in his native town of Laigueglia, a seaside resort on the Italian Riviera halfway between Genoa and the French border. He settled in a small apartment there recently with his wife, 26-year-old Ilda. Arduino said they were married in a civil rite in Panama early in December.

Without going into detail, Arduino said he lost his Roman Catholic faith "owing to circumstances I lived through abroad."

"I stopped believing in the values of the church and therefore in my conscience I could no longer be part of it," he said.

Steelworker Claims Union Weakened

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers rebel Edward Sadowski renewed his attack Sunday on the union's no-strike agreement, charging it has weakened the USW's bargaining clout with the steel industry.

Sadowski appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" with his opponent, Lloyd McBride. The two men are waging a heated battle to succeed retiring USW president I.W. Abel when the union's 1.4 million members vote Feb. 8.

The no-strike pact — known as the Experimental Negotiating Agreement (ENA) — was signed in 1973. It prohibits a nationwide steel strike and requires all unresolved contract items to be settled by binding arbitration.

"I am bitterly opposed to the concept of ENA, both from a philosophical and practical aspect," said Sadowski, of Chicago.

"We've seen our bargaining posture diminish behind the autoworkers, rubber workers and coal miners and we have not kept abreast of profits in the steel industry."

McBride was not asked about ENA but has said previously that although he supports the concept he would abandon it if it becomes disadvantageous to the union.

ENA covers about one-third of the union's membership. Regardless who wins the election, ENA will govern this year's steel negotiations which begin one week after the Feb. 8 balloting. However, it remains to be decided if ENA will be used again in 1980.

The campaign bitterness and the legal maneuvers by each candidate have raised fears that the election outcome may be challenged, thereby affecting the start of contract talks.

Abel has already said that if Sadowski wins he will quit

Carters Discover Exercise Machines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has given some glimpses into life at the White House. He said he uses President Dwight D. Eisenhower's exercise bicycle and that Mrs. Carter exercises on a treadmill.

Carter also said he goes without any breakfast other than orange juice, and drinks a cup of coffee when he arrives at the Oval Office. He has only a sandwich for lunch to save even more room for a big dinner at night with his family.

"That way there's no weight problem, and I can eat all I want at the evening meal," Carter said.

The President spoke with reporters on Sunday.

Carter said his son, Chip, found Ike's exercise bike in a warehouse the White House uses to store memorabilia, spare equipment and other items. Carter said Chip also found the treadmill.

The President said he keeps the exercise bicycle in his study. "It has an electric motor that's strong and fast," Carter said. "When you've been on that thing for 20 minutes you've really had a workout."

He said his wife, Rosalynn, uses the treadmill in her private quarters.

A ripe banana is 75 per cent water. It contains more sugar, 21 per cent, than any other fruit.

He described the warehouse as "really something."

Whenever the White House staff redecorates with new draperies or re-upholsters furniture, they save all odds and ends from the material and store them, Carter said.

Moderate Arab leaders are banking on Carter to influence Israel and turn their peace offensive into tangible progress during 1977, a mammoth task in this volatile region.

Outright failure would ignite bitter disappointment among those who played the American card, risking a new oil crisis and possibly another round of Arab-Israeli war.

"If nothing happens, I am very afraid," said the Rev. Elia Khoury, a moderate Palestinian on the ruling executive committee of Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.

The stakes are high because the leaders of Egypt, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia have put their credentials as backers if the Arab and Palestinian cause on the line. In some cases, the future of their regimes could be riding on the outcome.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt already is blaming the recent riots in Egyptian cities on political agents trying to sidetrack his efforts to reconvene the Geneva peace conference.

Radical Palestinians in Beirut are claiming that failure at Geneva will create an "explosive" situation for Sadat and other Arab leaders pushing for negotiations now.

Arab officials here and in other capitals thus feel they have gone as far as they can to build a momentum toward peace. They cite:

- President Hafez Assad's use of the Syrian army to crush Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon and his campaign to force the PLO leadership into a more moderate negotiating stand.
- Saudi Arabia's costly battle to keep oil price increases down to a level that American and European economies can afford.
- King Hussein's new willingness to deal with the Palestinian leadership — Jordan's enemies in a 1970 war — and open the way for cooperation on the fate of the occupied West Bank.
- Sadat's conciliatory statements to journalists and visiting American dignitaries designed to parade a flexible attitude before American public opinion.

These steps will be high on the agenda of Arab leaders when they receive U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance during his Middle East tour, scheduled to begin in two weeks, shortly after a swing through the area by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

In return, diplomats and Arab officials say, the leaders will be asking Vance and Waldheim to use their leverage on Israel to get Geneva started and make it a success. Given the U.N. record with Israel, the real hopes will be pinned on Vance. "If the high-level foreign visitors who fly through the Middle East do not see flexibility as a two-way process, they should not waste their time or money on purposeless voyages," wrote the Jordan Times in an editorial reflecting official thinking.

But some Arab and diplomatic analysts doubt Vance can deliver on all that the Arabs want from an Israeli government forced by elections in May to stay close to popular Israeli opinion.

King Hussein, whose traditional warm relations with the West have given him a good vantage point, is warning his fellow Arab leaders against overoptimism in the push toward Geneva.

"They have an overestimation of the U.S. position and a continuing overestimation of what the United States is prepared to make Israel do," said a Western diplomat here.

Many foreign and Arab observers predict that to keep up a head of steam during 1977, Arabs will have to settle for ceremonial reconvening of the Geneva peace talks — but postponement of attempts at a real solution on the ground.

Waldheim has spoken of the possibility of gathering for an inaugural meeting at Geneva and then splitting up into work groups to tackle issues one by one.

"The expectation is not for substance but for something that could take the place of substance," a diplomat commented.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1

Your birthday today: Subjectivity rules your coming year: life is what you make of it. You can enjoy a modest situation as if on cloud nine, or you can weep and worry when you have it all made. Your wits show you ways to adjust income upwards if really needed. Relationships run strong but require care. Today's natives are ambitious, magnetic, gifted in the arts, have ready answers on any topic. Those born this year have less ambition, prefer individuality to worldly status.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Personally centered emotions dominate decisions. Group ventures are a matter of belonging rather than making a profit. Your achievements attract good notice.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: However brief or local, all travel runs into difficulty. Far-flung places are appealing; enjoy life right where you are. Improvisation is a fine art.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Interruptions, plus distraction of a wandering mind, intrude on the scene. Stick to the subject. Don't bicker over money. Evening is better socially.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Keep your indecision less visible, and you can persuade people to go along with your schemes or at least stay out of the way. Speculation is out; don't!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Charity begins at home, helps to clear work space. Convert unwanted articles to cash, or take a tax deduction by donating them to organizations for the needy.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Everyone has ideas for your money; don't let loose! In a strange situation, like a new job, ask how things are supposed to be done, then create your version.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: The impact of people's idiosyncrasies spoils usual co-operation, forces you into self-sufficiency. Tonight is the end of a long mood-cycle: celebrate!

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Promises you make are dug up, your memory refreshed, so don't be vague about commitments. Early news is incomplete, later items change the story's meaning.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Discontent drives you to intelligent planning or to harebrained action, depending on how you manage your energy. Don't launch a critical verbal barrage.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Take a day off if opportunity offers, symbolically if you can't escape. Your program has little chance to advance until neglected details are updated.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You have less leverage in getting your way on policy. Let others learn reasons from hard experience. Live easier with fewer self-assumed responsibilities.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Wishful thinking distorts financial pictures. Be sure you want what you dig into reserves to buy. Guidance in your crowd is nil. Use your intuitive system.

West Bank Arabs Cool To Hussein

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Jordan's renewed interest in taking control of the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River after a Mideast peace agreement has created a stir in Israel. But Palestinians living in the occupied area give the idea only grudging acceptance.

"The average farmer in my town does not like Jordan's King Hussein," said Mohammed Hassan Mulheim, mayor of Halhul, a vineyard town 15 miles south of Jerusalem. "But many recognize him as our hope for an end to occupation."

The West Bank once was part of Palestine. It was annexed by Jordan in 1950 and seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

An ardent desire for an end to Israel's 10-year occupation of the West Bank was the most widespread opinion encountered in a tour of the area and in interviews with mayors, students and others.

The Palestinian Arabs welcome the current drive to get Mideast peace talks started this year. They are less happy with King Hussein's effort to re-establish himself as spokesman for the West Bank, at the expense of the weakened Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Hussein met in mid-January with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and agreed that Jordan would participate in a Geneva peace conference. Interviewed by a Beirut newspaper last week, Hussein said West Bank Palestinians should vote on their own future, and he would accept the result whether they chose independence or a link with Jordan.

Meanwhile, Jordan has increased its aid to the West Bank in the past two weeks. A number of mayors and other West Bank notables have visited or plan to visit Hussein in Amman, the Jordanian capital.

Israel has always refused to negotiate with the PLO over the West Bank and thus is happy with Hussein's re-emergence.

Nor was there any indication of a change in Jordan's demand that Israel withdraw from all territories occupied since the 1967 war, including Egypt's Sinai Peninsula and Syria's Golan Heights. Israel refuses this demand, offering at most a territorial compromise with Jordan on the West Bank so that Israel would have more secure borders.

Israel also rejects the idea of an independent Palestinian state on the West Bank and Gaza Strip, saying it would once again become a base for attacks in Israel.

Some U.S. Attorneys Hope To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Republican U.S. Attorneys may stay in office despite their politics because of the Carter administration's promise to choose prosecutors on the basis of merit.

Justice Department officials say that most of the 94 U.S. attorneys across the nation are postponing job decisions until they see how Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell plans to carry out the merit selection policy.

The federal prosecutors are presidential appointees subject to Senate confirmation. Traditionally, they have been chosen by the senators and other political leaders in their states, with a president simply agreeing to the choices. The selection was often based on an individual's work for the party in power.

That tradition has waned in recent years, and Carter and Bell have promised to go even further toward ending it.

Before taking office, Bell asked department officials to poll the U.S. attorneys to determine which ones want to keep their jobs.

"That doesn't mean they will be retained but they'll have an opportunity to be considered for retention on a merit system," Bell told the Senate Judiciary Committee during his confirmation hearings.

to be digging in his heels to keep the job.

"The ones I have talked to have expressed two kinds of desires — either they would like to finish their term to see through major cases or projects, or they would like to stay long enough to help in the transition."

The Ladies Are Leading The Headache League

Recently the magazine section of the Sunday paper included an item stating that daily chores, "actually, women are more frequent victims of headache than men, vertebrae in the neck. And our clinical history shows that Dr. Carl Remelin, D.C., of outstanding cause of The Remelin headaches.

"Quite frankly, I agree," states Dr. Remelin, D.C. "It's certainly our experience that feminine headaches are more common than their male counterparts. "And," he adds, "when you examine the causes of headache, one can readily understand why.

"First of all," Dr. Remelin, D.C. says, "78% of all headaches involve irritation of the nerves in the neck or muscles in the neck."

Dr. Remelin, D.C. then points to the typical housewife in her daily chores. In her housework — cooking, washing dishes, sewing, cleaning, scrubbing — she is constantly bending forward, stooping, stretching, etc., thus straining the neck and developing a neck posture that irritates nerves. "These numerous daily chores," he says, "actually cause displacement of vertebrae in the neck. And our clinical history shows that such displacements are the cause of The Remelin headaches.

"Incidentally," Dr. Remelin, D.C. notes "many women sleep on their abdomen and of this too, as surprising as it sounds, can contribute to frequent headaches. In this position the head must be turned to one side to breathe, changing the contour of the neck several hours a day and eventually causing a misalignment of vertebrae.

It goes without saying, that the Modern Doctor is thought to be best equipped to deal with vertebral displacement and its corresponding nerve irritation and muscle tension.

"This is a competitive world," Dr. Remelin, D.C. notes. "However, I'm sure headache is not something in which the ladies wish to excel. As a matter of fact," he adds, "I would think they would try to reduce their advantage by immediate and effective treatment."

Syrian Troop Moves In Southern Lebanon Draw Israeli Warnings

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel is maintaining diplomatic contacts "attended by appropriate security alertness" to get Syria to withdraw the troops it sent to within eight miles of the Israeli border in South Lebanon, the government said Sunday.

The strongly worded communique followed the weekly meeting of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's cabinet and came a few hours after Defense Minister Shimon Peres described the Syrian troop movements as a "misunderstanding" that he hoped could be solved by diplomacy.

"Israel objects to this unilateral and unagreed move which is tantamount to a change in the Syrian force deployment in the South Lebanese region," the communique said, adding:

"Israel sees no justification" in the move and "rejects the shifting" of Syrian troops to the south.

A unit of 600 Syrians, part of the Lebanese peacekeeping force, moved into Nabatiyeh more than a week ago, with the announced purpose of collecting heavy weapons from Palestinian units. The Lebanese government was reported Saturday trying to put together some units from its disbanded regular army to replace the Syrians in the south and thereby avoid confrontation with Israel.

Carter Raps Action By State Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Sunday the State Department spoke in support of Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov last week without checking with him first. But the statement "reflected my attitude," the President said.

The statement, issued Thursday by a State Department spokesman, cautioned against attempts by the Soviet government "to intimidate" or silence Sakharov. Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin has told the Carter administration the Kremlin is bound to resent support for the dissident.

Speaking to reporters on his helicopter trip to inspect the impact of winter and the energy crisis on Pennsylvania, the President said the State Department should have obtained his prior concurrence before speaking out.

Carter agreed the statement would give Sakharov and other dissidents in Russia "a lift." But he said, "There might have been more lift" had he made the statement personally.

The President said American support for human rights will have more impact in Russia as the relationship between himself and Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev develops.

Some Wonder If Carter's $50 Rebate Can Stimulate Economy

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — A virtual certainty for most Americans this year, but what isn't certain in the minds of some is whether the rebate plan will achieve President Carter's goal of stimulating sustained economic growth. Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., and other lawmakers last week wondered aloud why the Carter administration thought its stimulus plan would work any better to promote solid economic growth than past programs, such as the 1975 tax rebate plan. The purpose of the 1975 rebate and of Carter's plan is to put more spending money in the hands of consumers. Hopefully, this will initiate a self-sustaining cycle of greater production, more employment, more consumption and, eventually, new investment by business and industry to expand production capacity. Economists blame poor investment activity last year as a reason for the slowdown in economic growth. Two years ago, Congress and then-president Gerald R. Ford worked out a similar tax rebate, whose purpose also was to get the economy moving. That rebate provided for a 10 per cent refund on a taxpayer's tax bill, up to a maximum rebate of $200. A total of $8.2 billion was paid out, with an average rebate per taxpayer of $125. Carter's proposal is for rebate payments of $50 per dependent for each taxpayer, with additional $50 payments for Social Security recipients and low-income persons who already obtain the earned income credit. Under the Carter plan, a family of six, for example, would receive a rebate of $300, since each dependent is entitled to $50. The total amount of the Carter rebate would be $11.4 billion. If Congress goes along with Carter's plan, as expected, rebate checks will be in the mail to most Americans beginning in April, with everybody being paid by June at the latest. Carter officials claim rebates will reach 96 per cent of Americans, while the 1975 rebate reached 89 per cent of the population. Some four million poor Americans, who don't have children or who don't file a tax return or who don't receive Social Security payments, will be excluded. Carter administration economists are optimistic the Carter rebate will work to stimulate the economy. As evidence, they cite the 1975 rebate. Charles L. Schultze, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, said the 1975 rebate "did work" in helping to halt the recession and to start economic recovery. He said the U.S. Gross National Product increased 7.3

per cent in the 12 months after the rebate while personal consumption of Americans jumped 6 per cent in that period. "People did spend, not immediately, but over a period of the first, second and third quarters," he said. "The problem was, it didn't last long enough," Schultze said. As Schultze sees it, the 1975 rebate wasn't followed up by anything else, so after Americans spent their rebate, ev-everything went flat again. Carter aims to solve that problem by having other measures ready to take over when the impact of the rebate wears off. Schultze said. These include a permanent tax cut later this year.

Oswald: "This helps you to plan your play in accordance with 'How can I make this contract?'"

Jim: "East overtook his partner's king of spades with the ace and led the suit back. South's jack lost to West's queen and West continued with the 10 of spades which South ruffed."

Oswald: "South reviewed the bidding in his own mind. East had passed his partner's one-spade opening and had shown up with the ace of spades. There was no way he could also hold the king of hearts. In addition West had made a vulnerable opening bid. He needed the king of hearts for it."

Jim: "Both signs told South that his only chance to make his contract would be to find West with that king and no guard for it. He laid down his ace of hearts, dropped the king and was home."

Gilmore Cost Utah Taxpayers Over $60,000

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It cost Utah more than $60,000 to try executed killer Gary Gilmore and keep him alive through two suicide attempts, a newspaper says.

The Salt Lake Tribune said Sunday its figure was obtained through a survey conducted between Nov. 1 and Gilmore's execution Jan. 17.

It did not include the cost of clothing and feeding Gilmore.

Utah County Atty. Noall Wootton said Gilmore's three-day trial cost between $15,000 and $20,000. Sheriff Mack Holley said additional costs included pay for five extra officers during the trial.

Combined with the 14 deputies called in for duty on the two occasions Gilmore was returned to District Court for resentencing, the cost to the sheriff's office was $3,000, Holley said.

During the 102 days Gilmore spent in the Utah State Prison, taxpayers spent $18,330, including the tab from the University of Utah Medical Center where Gilmore was hospitalized twice for taking drug overdoses.

Another $725 was paid to the six-man firing squad.

More than 200 of the prison's total staff of 320 were called in at 3 a.m. on the day Gilmore died.

Atty. Gen. Robert B. Hansen estimated it cost $19,000 for the extra work of his deputies and secretaries. It cost the state $513 for an airplane flight to Denver where a last-minute stay of execution was overturned by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals.

THE TROUBLE SHOOTER

The Trouble Shooter cannot accept phone calls. Please communicate by mail to address below.

GOOD MECHANIC?
Dear Trouble Shooter
My problem is my car. I have run the gamut from annoyed to disgusted, trying to get someone to figure out what is wrong with it. It started a couple of months ago when I noticed it making a strange noise and dripping. I took it back to the dealer. They said it was the smog pump and replaced it. As I drove out, the noise was exactly the same and the dripping was still going on. I returned it to the same place. This time they said the power steering fluid had been overfilled (dripping) and that the belts were cold (noise). I didn't buy that, but what could I do? I had taken it back to the dealer figuring if they didn't know the car, who would?

Two days later, I was coming home from work and noticed the temperature rising. I couldn't pull off the road immediately because I was not familiar with the area and couldn't see any service stations. I drove about a mile. By then the car was overheated. (I know that one should not drive an overheated car, but I also know the hazards of a woman alone on a dark road.)

After the car stopped steaming and whistling, I located a station and drove it there. They replaced the water pump. The next day, I picked the car up. It was leaking again, so I returned it to the same service station. He tightened a bolt he said he had missed. A few days later, I noticed fresh coolant on the driveway and returned it again. This time, they replaced the radiator cap.

So, here I am, coolant still dripping and I wait not too impatiently for my next exciting breakdown. The car has developed an occasional heavy vibration which the dealer won't acknowledge. I don't know anything about cars except that when it sounds strange, leaks and vibrates that something is going to happen.

All I want is a mechanic who is honest, reasonably priced and who works hours that will accommodate a Los Angeles commuter. Can your readers recommend one?

B.H. Fullerton
Doesn't do any harm to ask, does it? The Trouble Shooter will forward all recommendations.

The Trouble Shooter receives more complaints about car problems, and finds them harder to solve, than anything else, Ma'am. In fact, he's had some frustrating experiences of his own.

There's a new group called "autocap" organizing across the country to deal with problems like yours. "Autocap" stands for "Automotive Consumer Action Panel," and chances are this group soon will be able to eliminate at least some of the frustrations that buyers of new and used cars run into.

In the Parade Magazine section of The Register on Jan. 16, there was a story about Autocap (How To Settle an Argument With Your Car Dealer), but the story's writer mistakenly reported that there was already an Autocap group in the Los Angeles area.

To date, there is no Autocap in Southern California, according to folks at the National Automobile Dealers Association, but there soon should be.

In other sections of the country, cases like yours are brought before an Autocap "jury" for trial. The jury panel is generally made up of six members, three consumer representatives and three dealers. If a car owner's complaint is a fair and honest one, he can expect a fair shake.

SWAP MEET

The Santa Ana Uptown Lions Club will hold its fourth annual Antique and Collectible swap meet Feb. 27. We have more than 450 display booths for sale. With the usual support of your readers, we expect to fill each and every one of them pronto.

Last year, more than 4100 people attended our swap meet held at Santa Ana College. This meant not only a good day for those selling, but a good day for the Orange County charities we help with proceeds of the event. Topping the recipient list then, and now, is Orange County

Services for the Blind, Inc. Contributions from the Santa Ana Uptown Lions Club for the last two years have helped to finance the comprehensive training of one little girl who attends the Service's Development Center. She was blind and crippled. Through a miraculous effort, she is now learning to walk! What a heart-warming thing those readers of yours have done in supporting our swap meet!

People interested in booth spaces are asked to contact Lion Maury Burns at 542-9691. Cost of each display booth is $7.50.

Also, will you please ask your readers who want to attend the event to mark their calendars? With their support, we'll make this year's contribution list to the community bigger than ever.

J.B. Santa Ana
Have you put a big check mark on the Feb. 27 page of your calendar, folks? The Trouble Shooter hopes so.

And, while you're about it, mark May 22, too. That's the date of the Ol' Trouble Shooter's big Antique Swap Session to be held at The City shopping center in Orange. Space reservations will not go on sale until April 1. More details later.

REPAIR CLASS

Dear Trouble Shooter
I'm sure some of the hobbyists who read your column and others interested in clock repairing would like to know that a clock repairing class is forming (it's bi-lingual) in the Los Angeles Unified School District. The class starts today. The materials fee is $2.50. It's not too late to enroll.

If folks need further details, they can call me at 633-1703.

J.W. Orange

Happy to pass word of the class long, Ma'am. Thanks for your letter.

PRESIDENT FORD?

Dear Trouble Shooter
While watching the Bing Crosby PGA Tournament, I noticed that everyone called ex-President Ford "Mr. President."

My son says that he is always to be addressed as "Mr. President," even though out of office.

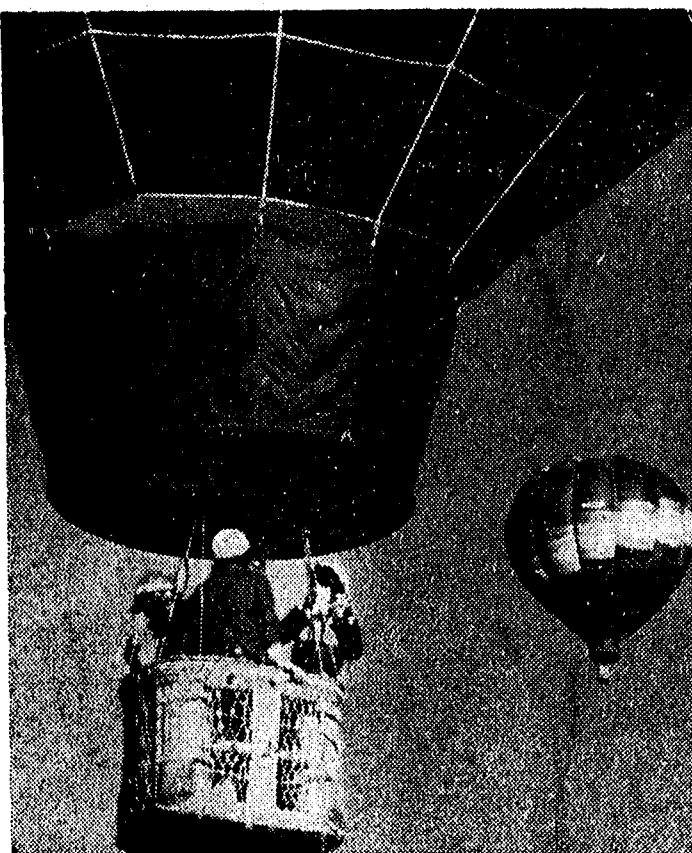

I say no, but I'm not sure exactly how it is proper to address him.

Please settle this one for us.

Former presidents are entitled to be addressed as "Mr. President" as long as they live.

HOT AIR BALLOONS BEING INFLATED RISE LIKE BREAD IN AN OVEN

A WIDE-OPEN SPORT FOR WIDE-OPEN COUNTRY — ORANGE COUNTY BALLOONISTS TAKE TO THE AIR FOR "HARE AND HOUNDS" RACE

PEACE AND CALM, GLIDING ON THE WIND

Balloons — Baubles In The Sky

By RITA ROBINSON

Register Staff Writer

Drifting in a hot air balloon 1,000 feet above patchwork fields and miniature farmhouses, I expected adventure and instead found peace and calm.

Actually, I was in a race with origins dating back to the 18th Century in France, the race of the hare and the hounds.

My pilot, Chris Robillard of Newport Beach, told me the first hot air balloon was invented by French brothers Joseph and Etienne Montgolfier in 1783. The papier-mache and linen balloon rose as the air inside was heated by an open fire on the ground below.

In today's balloons, the air is heated by fire from propane gas ignited by pilot lights.

The baskets, or gondolas, are handmade out of wicker from Borneo. And the balloons are still huge, colorful baubles dangling in the sky.

The race was like gliding on the wind.

Suddenly, we found ourselves upon the hare balloon as it landed less than a quarter mile ahead of us.

Chris warned we were going to drop in for a landing to get as close as possible to the hare balloon and win the race.

We landed with a great bounce and up in the air we went again. I wondered if we'd just continue bouncing over the fields, a toy of the fickle wind.

But we did stop, less than 50 feet away from the hare. Our first touch down is what counts in the race. It measured 63 paces, twice as close as the next nearest hound.

If we had been in France, rather than Perris Valley east of Elsinore, we would have popped a bottle of champagne.

Instead, Chris sounded the end of our chase on his fox hunter's horn.

Other balloonists from Orange County gathered around and the chase team held the balloon down while we got out.

There are only about 1,000 balloonists in the United States. 25 in California, Chris said. All balloons must be approved by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and pilots must have FAA licenses.

Today's balloons, made of fire-resistant nylon, stand 70 feet tall by 50 feet wide and cost from $5,000 to $10,000.

With a volume capacity of 70,000 cubic feet, the balloons can lift more than 1,000 pounds. When deflated, the entire balloon fits into its own wicker basket.

Chris and his friends can be found on almost any weekend ballooning above the pastures surrounding the Perris Valley Airport.

Besides the lack of high power lines and high-rise buildings, the valley is a favorite spot because of its perimeter formed by the San Jacinto and Santa Ana mountains.

Ballooning to Chris is an old-fashioned and charming way to get away from it all. As he says, "To me, it's like I'm an observer as the world is falling away from me."

CEMENT SURF SUMMER

It's been a summer of cement surf and skateboards. Kids on skateboards everywhere.

Some on sidewalks. Others shooting out dangerously from where you'd least expect them.

In some towns riding is outlawed. In others, the schools teach children the fine points.

In Florida and other areas the place to go is a skateboard track like Skateboard City in Port Orange or the Paved Wave in Cocoa Beach.

Mandatory headgear and pads help hard surface surfers fight "road rash" and "jeans burns."

Pride is the only thing that goes in a fall at the track.

Manufacturers predicted summer sales of 20 million boards with fancy names like "Big Foot" and "Power Paws."

The latest version has a molded board and sophisticated wheel and bearing design which facilitates stunt riding.

A decade ago a skateboard fad rolled across the nation and then disappeared over the concrete horizon. Promoters say the 1976 craze is here to stay and that 1977 will see still another cement surf summer.

What about a cement surf winter? Well, there's at least one manufacturer turning out skateboards with ski bindings attached—just in case.

Reindeer Escape Over Snowdrifts

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Three large Scandinavian reindeer took advantage of giant snowdrifts at the Buffalo Zoo on Sunday. Using the drifts as ramps, they jumped over the fence for some short-lived freedom.

The three reindeer, weighing between 500 and 600 pounds, were captured within an hour. Don Fusco, in charge of the zoo's tigers, lions and other large cats, said there was no likelihood that any other animals might escape.

Bears Just Sleep

Bears don't hibernate during the winter — they just sleep deeply. In true hibernation all body processes are slowed down, but a bear's pulse and respiration stay nearly normal during his long winter's nap.

tured in Detroit's newspapers. This week, Mrs. Guinnane, her husband Gerard and their seven youngsters — including the quads — face eviction from their home because of a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development regulation.

The Guinnanes used to own the house. But six years ago they fell behind in their mortgage payments, a finance company foreclosed, HUD paid the mortgage and took over the property.

Ever since, the family has been paying $141 a month rent to HUD. But last September, the department returned the rent check, and told the Guinnanes they could either buy the house — for $17,000 — or move out.

Nobody knows why HUD waited six years to act. But the department's Detroit deputy director, William Harris, said the eviction is necessary because it's the rule.

The Guinnanes say they'd love to buy the house, but not for $17,000. According to Mrs. Guinnane, an appraiser told her the property was worth about $6,000.

"What the Guinnanes are saying is forget the fact we had to go through foreclosure, sell this property to me at a price I say is right," Harris said.

The villain, apparently, is a HUD rule that says anyone who loses a house because of an unpaid mortgage, and later elects to buy the home back, must pay 105 per cent of the mortgage amount plus repair cost.

Ironically, Mrs. Guinnane said, it was another HUD official who told her and her husband to let their mortgage lapse in the first place. When they complained about mounting repair costs, she said, the official told them to let the finance company foreclose and then HUD would rent them the home.

It's hard to predict how much the house would bring on the open market once the Guinnanes are evicted. HUD has owned as many as 17,000 houses and vacant lots in Detroit at one time because it couldn't find buyers.

Some 3,000 of those houses have been torn down after vandals destroyed them.

Asked if it wouldn't be more practical to take the Guinnane's rent than to gamble on trying to sell the home, Harris said, "That is irrelevant. We took the property back with the intent to resell."

Meanwhile, the Guinnanes have faithfully put $141 a month into an escrow bank account. "It's their (HUD's) money," Mrs. Guinnane said.

San Miguel's Burros Killed On U.S. Orders

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — The small band of burros on Lonesome San Miguel Island is gone — shot to death under government orders.

The National Park Service, in charge of the tiny Navy-owned island 45 miles offshore in the Catalina Channel, ordered the 30 escaped domestic burros shot in December without public announcement.

An abalone diver, trespassing on the island early this week, observed that a number of animals had been shot. Government officials confirmed the shooting Friday.

William Ehorn, superintendent of the National Monument Group in the Channel Islands, said officials decided to eliminate the animals because they were partly diseased and were destroying rare native plants on the island.

20-Lb. Boy's Parents Jailed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A woman and her boyfriend have been charged with felony child abuse after the woman's 11-year-old son, weighing only 20 pounds, was hospitalized for severe malnutrition and dehydration, police said.

Shirley Ellenberg, 34, and Charles Nakao, 28, were arrested over the weekend after the woman brought young Gary Ellenberg to Mission Emergency, Inspector Fred Mullen said.

Hospital officials said the boy was alive Saturday, but in critical condition in intensive care.

Doctors told police the boy had been "the object of gross child abuse" and said his chance for survival was limited.

At the time of his admission, the child was in a coma, his body temperature down to 80 degrees and he was suffering "from the last stages of malnutrition," Mullen said. The youngster's wrists and ankles bore marks from a restraining device.

His mother and Nakao told police the boy had been handcuffed in the bathroom in order to prevent him from running away, Mullen said.

It's A Strange Life For Child Actors

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Natasha Ryan, featured in the television movie "Sybil," wants to see her name on a theater marquee and maybe become a professional glass blower.

In the film shown last November, Miss Ryan was shown lying on a table, her legs spread apart, while her sick mother attacked her with a knife. Another scene showed her tied to a piano while the mother banged loudly on the instrument.

Natasha is 6 years old. Valerie Bertinelli is 17 and plays 16-year-old Barbara on the weekly primetime comedy series, "One Day at a Time."

Mother Nancy Bertinelli says Valerie once was "embarrassed about kissing this boy in rehearsal hall over and over again. I left the room a little bit to make her feel more at ease."

Natasha and Valerie are 11 years apart in age. But both are among 5,000 kids aged 6 months to 18 years currently holding California work permits to perform, says Johanne Des Ruisseaux, a theatrical permit officer for the state Labor Commission.

Adult performances are coaxed from these kids by directors who sometimes have misgivings about the use of children in their adult world. But the folks who make the shows, as well as parents and the kids themselves, see a lot of benefits too.

Whatever problems occur — aside from occasional embarrassing moments like Valerie's — are usually prompted by the lifestyle, not the often intense or mature story material sometimes enveloping the kids.

"We've never seen anything that has harmed her," says Tomi Ryan, Natasha's mom. "In fact she thrives on it," adds Jim Ryan, her father, a physician and author specializing in preventive medicine.

At work, the state orders that a parent or guardian, as well as a teacher-social worker, must be present every minute the child or teen-ager is working, to monitor such things as work hours and tutored schooling.

The experience for the kids is great "as long as the child can do this work without pressure," says Mrs. Ryan.

"For aware children, it's such good experience," she adds. "They learn to be attentive, they learn to have good manners, they learn to have respect."

Natasha is taught that she should strive for a profession in addition to acting. Ryan says her choice right now is glass blowing. She's achieved one of her life's ambitions, riding in a limousine. Now she'd like to see her name in lights.

Natasha, says her dad, started acting in commercials before she was 2 years old, after a physician studying exceptional children at UCLA suggested the acting might be a good outlet.

"Natasha is a very bright little girl," said Dan Petrie, who directed "Sybil," the story of an abused 6-year-old who grew to adulthood as a schizophrenic with multiple personalities.

"I explained to Natasha," says Petrie, that the mother on film "is not like your own Mommy."

In the piano scene, "I got down and acted it out myself. I could say then after my acting, after assuming a cheery expression, 'See, that's all there's to it,' then smile and say, 'Let's go get a cookie.'"

"Natasha came and saw the picture," said Petrie, "and she was only frightened by one part of it," a dream scene depicting a headless cat.

"Oh Dan, I don't think I'm going to watch it on television," Petrie recalled the child exclaiming after watching the scene.

Natasha was delighted to work with, Petrie says, but he fears the effect of the work on less talented or less attentive children whom he feels belong on the schoolyard.

"I never allowed any of my own kids (now aged 18 to 25) to act as children. It was just a feeling of mine that it is a very, very heavy burden to lay on them. If they're good at it they get too much approval, if they're not very good at it they get too much condemnation."

"If I had children I wouldn't want them working in show business," says Herb Kenworth, who directs Valerie Bertinelli and Mackenzie Phillips, also 17. Mackenzie plays Valerie's older sister on "One Day At A Time," which depicts the trials of a recently divorced mother raising two teen-aged daughters.

"But then you see Valerie and Mackenzie and you wonder 'why not,' the director adds.

Valerie and Mackenzie both say they prefer being tutored by teacher and social-worker Gladys Hirsch at the schools they attend in the off-season.

Mackenzie, who grew up in show business with her entertainer-father John Phillips, likes the studio class better than the semester she spent last year at Hollywood Professional School.

"It's quieter, I'm only here with Gladys and Valerie and my biology project, hamsters," says Mackenzie.

"Last year going back to suburban Granada Hills High School wasn't so bad, but this year I'm a little scared to go back, because the show has gotten bigger and people just treat you a lot different," says Valerie.

Mrs. Bertinelli says she's excited by daughter Valerie's success but at the same time

"It's changed her social life. She doesn't see the kids she used to go to school with all the time."

Valerie's dates now are usually with guys in their 20s, and, says Mrs. Ryan, "I'm really getting accustomed to the fact that she doesn't really have much choice" because of the unavailability of teen-aged guys around the studio.

Viewers May Cheer Sharks Tonight

By GARY BLONSTON
Knight News Wire
Imagine how Evel Kneivel would look being rent into bite-size pieces by a pack of sharks, on live, prime-time television.

If you are under 12 and male, you might consider that a tragedy.

If you are over 12 and at all discriminating, you might consider that television at its socially useful best.

In either case, relax. Evel Kneivel is indeed going to rev up his Harley and jump over a pool of sharks on the tube this week, but in the end this odd little exercise isn't likely to be either tragic or socially useful.

It is most likely to be merely silly.

It is going to happen as the dramatic conclusion to a full 90 minutes of this sort of thing, performed by a variety of strange people on a show called "Evel Kneivel's Death Defiers."

The organization guilty of this show is CBS, and it has scheduled Evel and his colleagues to appear in the heart of the evening, from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Monday.

Along with him will be the ever-present and somewhat boring Karl Wallenda on his ever-present and somewhat boring high wire, a guy named Joe Gerlach who jumps out of tall buildings on to big pieces of rubber, and a person who calls himself "The Human Bomb" and spends short periods of time sharing small spaces like boxes and barrels with exploding dynamite.

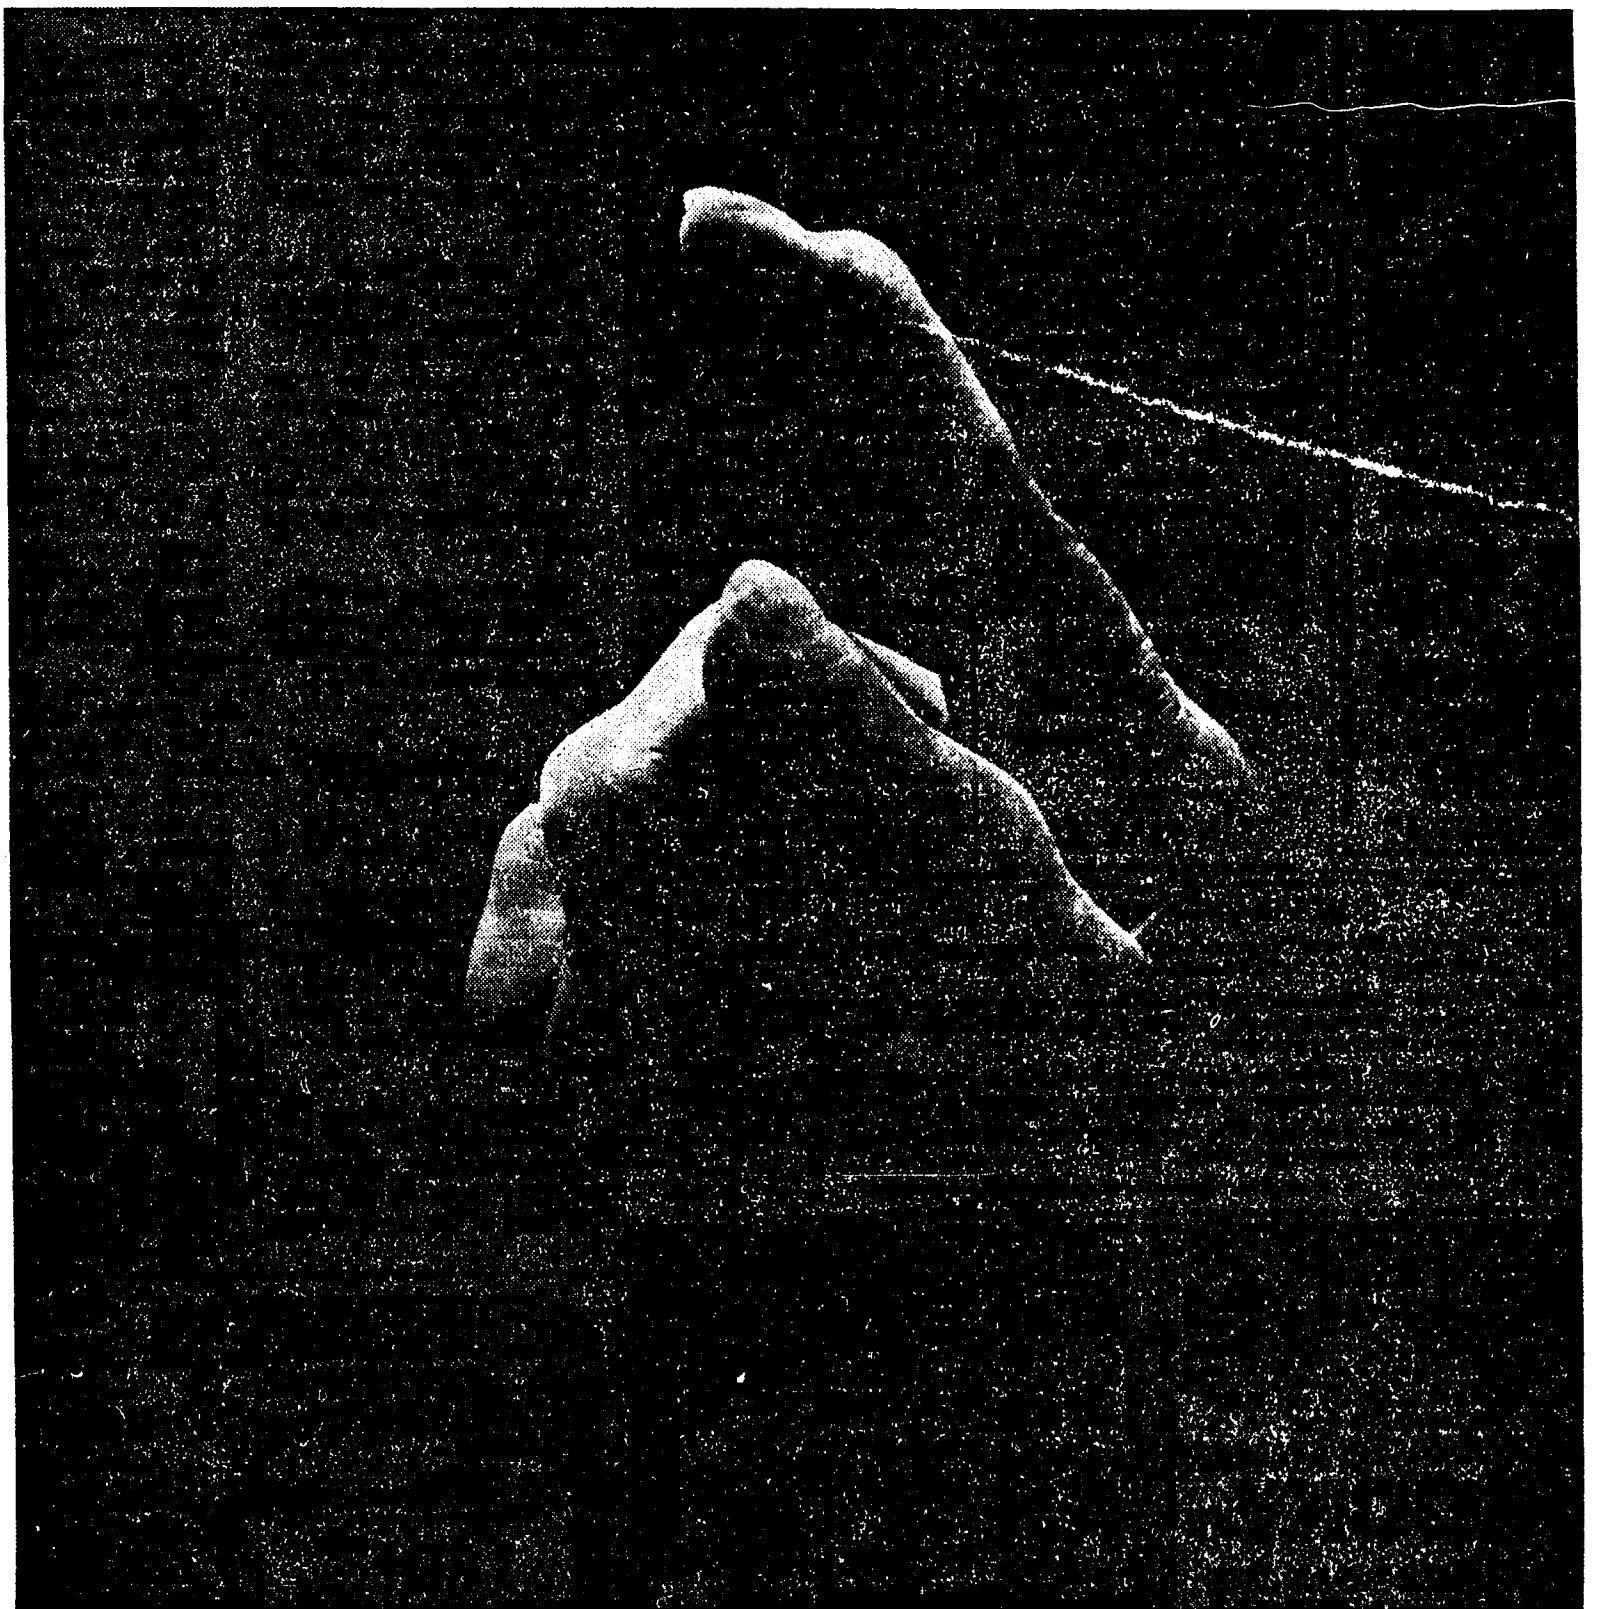

There will be other daredevil types, too, all over the country. CBS will flash from place to place, catching them at work. Presiding over all this will be Telly Savalas and Jill St. John. It is possible that they, too, took their jobs on a dare.

But back to the weird part, the sharks. It was probably inevitable that Evel Kneivel would figure out a way to work sharks into his act, even though he missed the big "Jaws" boom because it overlapped his attempt to sputter over Idaho's Snake River Canyon in a steam focket a couple years back.

But if all goes as planned, 13 lemon sharks (that's their name, not necessarily a comment on their quality) collected along the Florida coast will be flown to Chicago and placed in a 90-by-50-foot tank four feet deep on the floor of the Chicago Amphitheatre. Someone, Savalas or St. John or maybe Kneivel himself, will talk about how menacing the sharks are, what could happen to a man — or a motorcycle in their toothy grasp and how Kneivel doesn't really want to take this kind of risk but his fans expect it of him.

Then he'll jump his bike off a ramp, fly over the tank and survive.

We're #1.
And it hurts.

It doesn't care who it hurts, either. Arthritis is our nation's #1crippler.

It can hit anyone, anywhere. Hands, legs, backs, hips, shoulders. If there's a place that can hurt, it can be ravaged by arthritis.

The only common denominator is pain. And right now, there's no cure.

Not too much is even known about arthritis, but all this week reporter Ann Martin will tell you everything we do know about it. How to spot it, where to get help, how to avoid its crippling pain when possible.

Be watching at 6 on Channel 7 for the Eyewitness Closeup, "Arthritis." Then pray you don't get it.

La Streisand Grants Interview

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES — The surprise hit of the new movie season might well be "A Star Is Born." Why a surprise?

Because most of Hollywood seemed to be predicting its failure.

"No picture ever had such bad talk about it," says Barbra Streisand. "Everybody jumped on the thing that the star hired a producer who was her boyfriend and had been a hairdresser. It was a base journalistic setup."

"But I think we profited from the backlash to all the bad publicity," adds Jon Peters, her producer-boyfriend and onetime hairdresser. "People are discovering the film for themselves and saying that the critics were all wrong."

Streisand and Peters were in a state of exhilaration when a reporter called at her Holmby Hills manse on a sunny January afternoon. She sat on the floor of the living room and poured tea; the black-bearded Peters reclined on the couch and chided her for indulging in the sweets. The words tumbled out from both of them as they discussed the aftermath of "A Star Is Born."

"Right now the prediction for the domestic (U.S. and Canada) film rental is between 40 and 50 million," Peters said. "Proportionately we're doing as well as 'King Kong' and in some places better."

"I believe it will do just as well world-wide as it does here."

here. I don't see any problem in foreign audiences relating to the picture. Popular music goes everywhere, and this is the first authentic look at a life style that the world has heard about but never seen."

He predicted that "A Star Is Born" would surpass Barbra's previous big money-makers: "Funny Girl," "What's Up, Doc?" and "The Way We Were."

Although she claimed to know nothing about money matters, Miss Streisand is obviously enjoying the film's success. Especially after brouhahas surrounding its inception. Writers and leading men changed with the seasons. Shooting matches were reported on the set. Then director and co-writer (with Joan Didion and John Gregory Dunne) Frank Pierson unleashed a printed diatribe attacking star and producer.

Did Barbra actually direct some of the movie, as Pierson charged?

"You bet I did!" she replied vigorously. "I was forced to do it. Either that or fire the director, and get somebody else which would have only added to all the bad press."

"I dealt very closely with the actors, and I'm proud of what I accomplished. Especially with Kris (Kristofferson). He is my greatest joy, the fact that I was able to help him bring the character to life, to make him feel secure as an actor."

Some reviewers, including this one, observed that Kristofferson finally came alive as an actor in "A Star Is Born," his performance providing a needed balance to the always dynamic Streisand. Yet when Warner Brothers saw the first cut of the film, they despaired of the actor's work and hence the film. "Warners panicked," said

Peters. "That's when Barbra took over and edited the film herself. The work was staggering — 18 hours a day from July to December. When she got through, Kris's performance was terrific."

"And Pierson accused me of padding my own part in the cutting!" Streisand exploded. "Many times I cut my own shots out if Kris was better in his."

She added that she has received a large amount of letters from people who say they were profoundly moved by the film.

"Then maybe we succeeded in what we were trying to do: to tell certain truths about today's life," she said.

"In old movies, love affairs were never clouded by conflict. No matter what happened, the sweethearts never argued. In our picture you have two people who have to fight to stay alive. They are desperate to work out a relationship."

"In the old movie when Fredric March disgraces her at the awards, Janet Gaynor comes home and takes off his shoes because he's too drunk to do it himself. In our picture I say, 'What are you gonna do for an encore — set yourself on fire?' In fact some of the scenes were so rough we had to cut them ...

"She could never get to him. The film shows the power of communication. To stay alive you must communicate."

Recording Biz A Movie Topic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Columbia Pictures, Casablanca Filmworks and Motown Productions have joined to produce "Disco," a movie based on today's recording industry.

Rob Cohen of Motown will produce the film and Joe Layton will direct. The script by Barry Bernstein will employ many of the top recording stars.

MR. MALAPROP A Confusing Comic

By ELAINE MARKOUTSAS
Chicago Tribune

Sometimes, when people agree with Norm Crosby, he gets a little uneasy.

As when he asserts "the country is in economical reluctance." Or, as he told a crowd why they came to see him: "A subliminal suction magnetized you."

"Sometimes, I say things that are totally ridiculous. But instead of laughing, some people nod. 'Oh, yes,'" says the 47-year-old master of the malaprop.

The freshly tanned Crosby, who left Honolulu "and the luaus, the pupus, and the mums" after doing "The Don Ho Show," says he's enjoying a leveling in his nine-year career. ("Wherever I go it's super — the best clubs, Vegas.")

In the manner of many budding comics, Crosby began by borrowing material from people he saw on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

"I was always the funny kid in the neighborhood," says the former Bostonian. Eventually he started performing for friends at company parties, church suppers, temple breakfasts. Then he graduated to governors' and police chiefs' banquets.

Then one day he brazenly quit his job as advertising manager at a ladies' shoe store. His boss asked if he was crazy and offered to reserve his job. But Crosby already had made the shoe-to-show business transition.

"I wasn't enthralled with show business, per se. I thought more of the business (end). And I had nothing to lose really. I was single and living with my parents at the time."

He also was receiving disability payments. During the war his eardrums were shattered in an explosion and his hearing was impaired.

Crosby, who wears hearing aids, has become a spokesman for the "Better Hearing Institute" in Washington (he's a trustee for the Hope for Hearing Foundation in Los Angeles).

Crosby's brand of humor developed from a conversation with a night club owner who asked Crosby to find out if a dancer in the show was "staying over or communicating."

"Nobody was playing with words — I thought that it could be a funny way to go." After debuting in New York's Latin Quarter, and eventually on "The Tonight Show," Crosby carved his niche.

He doesn't prepare everything in advance ("That's too mechanical"). "Of course I don't create 40 minutes when I walk out, either. But I don't do everything in the same sequence every night." He says his barometer is his "permanent people" — the guys in the band who see him every night. "They can't fake enthusiasm."

"If it's cold I might talk about the snow and the slush and the frigidity with delinquent gales flowing from the lake from pollution. It varies — but I embellish every night." He tailors his act to his audience.

He has his favorite lines. On a Mike Douglas show he was introduced to a medium and asked if he had ever met one before. "No, but I've met a lot of well-dones," he quipped, to which Douglas countered, "That's rare."

Not everyone appreciates his humor. Economist and Tribune columnist Eliot Janeway almost punched Crosby out after an exchange on the "Dinah" show. "That's a rumor." And on the sagging economy, he taunted, "How does the money know if it's soft or hard?"

Absurd Drama In Brooklyn

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — Absurd drama most wild comes to the Chelsea Theater Center in a long-neglected Polish play, "The Crazy Locomotive."

Stop and look emphatically, but listen only occasionally to the cartoon spectacle that opened Wednesday at the experimental stage center in Brooklyn.

Though reportedly being done now for the first time in English translation, the bizarre piece was written in 1923 by Stanislaw Ignacy Witkiewicz, a pioneer in surrealist poetry and painting. In a dozen plays he was obsessed with the nothingness of human existence.

In "The Crazy Locomotive" he plunged into futuristic shock after reading Einstein's theory of relativity. At the center of chaotic plotting are a pair of famous criminals driving a trainload of unwilling passengers to apocalyptic destruction.

Des McAnuff, who is 24, has directed the baffling script like an animated comic strip. Tremendously helpful are the science fiction trappings designed by Douglas Schmidt and a musical score by Pril Smiley that comically recalls the sound effects that went with oldtime movies.

Candidates For Worst Films

By KATHLEEN CARROLL
New York News
NEW YORK — Making a list of the best films of a year is like shooting sitting ducks. The candidates are right there on the tip of memory's iceberg, waiting to be enumerated.

But listing the worst is an arduous task, producing anguish and doubt, for it means sifting through the wreckage and wakening the dead. It demands decisions the best-listers do not have to concern themselves with: For example, is a movie like "A Star Is Born," which leaped for posterity and missed, better or worse than one like "The Enforcer," which aimed below the belt and connected.

A worst movie is an empty promise, and here are this year's leaders in, as they say, no particular order.

"Lipstick," which pretended to be an enlightened movie about rape, and proceeded to drop kick its subject back into the 19th century by simultaneously offering Margaux Hemingway as a new sex symbol.

"Harry and Walter Go to New York," a shameless ripoff of "The Sting" that hoped to make it on the strength of two actors — James Caan and Elliott Gould — who haven't made any good pictures in years.

"The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox," ditto, except that the ripoff was of "Blazing Saddles" and the would-be performances were by Goldie Hawn and George Segal.

"Won Ton Ton, the Dog Who Saved Hollywood." Our German Shepherd and 57 cameo performances, from Edgar Bergen to Johnny Weissmuller, in a movie whose premier party was appropriately, for the dogs.

"All Screwed Up." "Seven Beauties." and "Let's Talk About Men." This year's crop of Lina Wertmuller releases, sharing a special prize for Worst Lina Wertmuller Film of the year.

"Mickey and Nicky," Elaine May's shaggy-dog story, which cops the laurel for Worst Movie by a Woman Director Other than Lina Wertmuller.

"Bugsy Malone," which dressed children up as mobsters and had them kill each other — softly, with whipped cream, but irrevocably — as if violent death needed a good G-rated treatment.

"The Blue Bird." The $15 million was apparently spent making the location site in the Soviet Union look like a backyard in Secaucus; Elizabeth Taylor, Jane Fonda, Cicely Tyson, among others, give the kinds of performances that ought to end careers.

"Inserts": Richard Dreyfuss, damp from his success in "Jaws," played a pornographic filmmaker in the loudest, most uncontrolled performance of the year. The writer and director of "Inserts," John Byrum also wrote "Harry and Walter," as well as last year's "Mahogany." That's three strikes; let's hope he's out.

Merit 100's Here!

MERIT taste science applied to new low tar 100mm cigarette with impressive results.

The MERIT breakthrough technology that produced a whole new taste standard in low tar smoking has now been applied to a 100mm cigarette.

New MERIT 100's. Only 12 mg. tar. Yet packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke and proven to deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

If you smoke but haven't chosen to take advantage of the MERIT breakthrough because you prefer a longer length cigarette, you'll be interested.

Kings: 9 mg. 'tar,' 0.7 mg. nicotine—
100's: 12 mg. 'tar,' 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

MERIT & MERIT MENTHOL. KINGS & 100's.

Because now you have your MERIT, too. Read the test results for yourself.

Test Data Conclusive

New 12 mg. tar MERIT 100's were taste-tested against a number of major 100mm brands ranging from 17 mg. to 19 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results: overall, they liked the taste of MERIT 100's as much as the higher tar 100mm brands tested.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL. King Size and new 100's.

The taste barrier for low tar smoking has been broken again.

Russia Denies Olympic TV Deal With NBC

MOSCOW (AP) - A spokesman for the Soviet Olympic Committee said today that "no one has yet been awarded the rights" to televise the 1980 Olympic Games in the United States, despite NBC's announcement it had been given the exclusive rights.

"Each company can say what it wants," Soviet spokesman Allan Staradub said when asked about NBC's announcement Sunday. "NBC did not receive the rights."

Told that NBC was unequivocal in its announcement, Staradub said: "Remember the Satra Corporation? They only signed a protocol."

He was referring to the New York-based trading company which announced Dec. 22 it had provisionally been awarded the television rights.

NBC-TV president Robert Howard and the two vice-presidents with him could not immediately be reached for comment. They reportedly were meeting with Sergei Lapin, head of Soviet television.

Meanwhile, an ABC delegation, headed by Vice President of Sports Roone Arledge, arrived in Moscow Sunday night, just as NBC was making its announcement. The ABC group, caught off guard by the NBC statement, was scheduled to meet with Soviet Olympic officials later today.

NBC, while refusing to reveal terms, said it had reached a solid agreement with the Soviets and contracts would be signed "shortly." It was learned that NBC expected the signing to take place Tuesday.

But Staradub said a signing was not likely so soon. "Any final contract has to be approved in advance by the International Olympic Committee," he explained. That would take more time, he said.

Some have speculated that the Soviets could get as much as $100 million for the U.S. TV rights, four times as much as ABC paid for the Montreal games last year.

Watson: Golf's New Nicklaus

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) - "Well," sighed veteran Tour official Dom Mirandi, "it looks like we've got another Nicklaus on our hands."

It may be a little early to start placing Tom Watson in that category, but there's no question that he's the outstanding player of the new pro golf season and almost certainly the brightest of the young stars who are replacing the more established names and claiming the rich tour for their own.

He's finished fourth-first in his last three starts, has played those three events 42 strokes below par and has set scoring records in both his victories - in the Bing Crosby a week ago and in Sunday's San Diego Open.

While his heroics have drawn the inevitable comparisons with Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller and others - Watson, intelligent, friendly, a growing favorite with the galleries and a golfing Tom Sawyer - red-haired and freckle-faced - isn't yet ready to rank himself with the game's greats.

"I have to win many more titles before I can be considered," he said after a solid three-under-par 69 had staked him to a five-stroke victory in the San Diego Open. He played the Torrey Pines Golf Club in 269 for the week, 19 under par.

"The really great players became that way because of their ability to concentrate. (Lee) Trevino is the best at this, and then Nicklaus."

"They manage it in completely different ways. Trevino can switch. He blows off tension by talking to people and then can concentrate on a shot. Nicklaus just shuts everything out."

"I have to work on this." And he has the tools for it - a degree in psychology from Stanford. He worked it during Sunday's first round, too. He opened it, bright, sunny day with a two-stroke lead, built it to four at the turn, engineered a two-stroke swing on the 10th hole and cruised in from there.

"I tried very hard to close out the negative thoughts," he said. "When you're thinking where not to hit the ball and you're going to hit it right there."

It didn't happen.

He hit it just about where he'd. He birdied the second on 15 feet, birdied with a par shot from a par three, reached on the third, reached on the fourth, two-putted for birdie on the fifth.

That domination of the par fives was the key. He had a string of 10 consecutive birdies on those long holes, played them 13 under par for the week and said it's all due to his driver - "I can't harp on it enough."

And the improved work with the driver can be traced directly to his good friend Byron Nelson.

"I called Byron last year and needed some help," Watson said. "He didn't hesitate. Had me down there for three days, stayed at his ranch, and he worked with me."

The principal change involves a relaxing of his right side, which enables him to make his release a little later, keep the clubface on the ball longer and work it from left to right.

"I used to hook it," he said. "And that's where I got in trouble. It'd be coming off the clubface at funny angles. Now, more relaxed on the right side, I work it from left to right. It's a better swing. It will stand up under pressure. The other wouldn't."

He really didn't have a lot of pressure after moving into sole possession of the top spot in the third round. The last round was a front-running laughter that produced a $36,000 check, pushed him into the year's leading money-winning position with $86,700, made him only the third man to win his way into the World Series of Golf and enabled him to break the tournament scoring record for the second consecutive week.

John Schroeder, with a closing 67, and Larry Nelson, 69, tied for second five shots back at 274. Neither ever really threatened. Australian rookie Bob Shearer, the only man who had a shot at Watson, slipped to a 73 and tied for fourth with Jerry McGee at 275. McGee had a last-round 68.

NBC Insists Deal Set For Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) - Despite assertions by the Soviet Union that no final decision has been reached on United States television rights to the 1980 Summer Olympics, NBC insisted today it would be televising the Games.

"Technically, of course, the rights cannot be ultimately awarded without approval of the IOC (International Olympic Committee), but tomorrow (Tuesday) we are signing the contracts with the Soviet Organizing Committee and state television," said NBC Vice President of Sports Carl Lindemann Jr.

sources as saying Smith and LeBaron have agreed upon financial arrangements and areas of responsibility, and only a last-minute switch would block the announcement this week.

LeBaron, 46, is a lawyer in Las Vegas. He ended his NFL playing career in 1963, but has coached briefly in both the college and pro ranks.

Connors' Father Dies Of Cancer

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) - James Connors Sr., 53, father of tennis star Jimmy Connors, died Sunday night at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Hospital spokesmen said Connors had been under treatment for cancer since Dec. 11 when he entered the hospital.

Connors had been manager for the last 26 years of the Dr. Martin Luther King bridge, linking East St. Louis, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo.

It was not immediately determined whether his son had returned home following his five-set upset loss to Dick Stockton in the final Sunday of the U.S. Indoor Pro Tennis Championships at Philadelphia.

Survivors include the widow, Gloria, sons Jimmy and John, and three sisters.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Three Vets Make Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) - Amos Rusie, Joe Sewell and Al Lopez were elected to baseball's Hall of Fame today by the Veteran's Committee.

They will be inducted into the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine along with Ernie Banks, who was named by the Baseball Writers Association of America earlier this month.

The decision came after more than three hours of deliberation by the 10 members present of the 12-man committee. Rusie and Sewell were elected as players and Lopez in the executive category.

Wagner New GM At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) - Dick Wagner has been elevated to general manager of the Cincinnati Reds by club President Bob Howsam.

But Howsam indicated today he would continue at the helm of the club, giving Wagner additional duties with the team which has won two straight World Series.

Howsam was general manager until being named president in 1973. The club dropped the title of general manager at that time. Wagner also will retain his previous title of executive vice president.

LeBaron To Be Falcons' GM

ATLANTA (AP) - Eddie LeBaron, who quarterbacked the Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys in the 1950s and 1960s, is owner Rankin Smith's choice for general manager of the National Football League Atlanta Falcons, the Atlanta Constitution said today.

Snowmobile Race Driver Killed

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) - Veteran racer Jack Flynn, 42, of Petosky, Mich., was killed Sunday when his machine, stalled on a curve, was struck by another snowmobile on the 79th lap of the TC 250 snowmobile race.

Flynn was dead on arrival at a Traverse City hospital. A hospital spokesman said death was caused by massive internal injuries.

The race, called after the 183rd lap because of blowing snow and poor visibility, was won by Buddy Weber of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Lakers Extend Home Streak To 19 Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points, 13 in the fourth quarter, to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a come-from-behind 101-99 National Basketball Association victory over the New Orleans Jazz Sunday night.

The Lakers won their 19th straight game at home and New Orleans lost its 10th straight road game.

Trailing 92-86 with 5:30 to play, Los Angeles outscored the Jazz 15-7 down the stretch. The win keeps them one-half game behind the Portland Trailblazers in the Pacific Division, with a 32-16 record.

With Los Angeles leading 101-98 on two free-throws by Earl Tatum, Pete Maravich drove the lane and was fouled by Abdul-Jabbar in a bonus foul situation. Maravich missed the first shot, converted the second, and intentionally missed the third free-throw, hoping for a Jazz rebound.

Abdul-Jabbar got the rebound, but his outlet pass was intercepted by Nate Williams, who missed from the corner with one second remaining.

Maravich led all scorers with 29 points. However, he did not score his first point until seven minutes remained in the second quarter. For the game, he was 11 for 33 from the field and 7 for 9 from the line.

Williams scored 24 points coming off the bench for New Orleans, and Cazzie Russell and Don Chaney each scored 16 for the Lakers.

Bartow Will Return, Hopes Bruins Do Too

ATLANTA (AP) - Gene Bartow hopes it was only a dress rehearsal for his eighth-ranked UCLA Bruins.

"I'll be back here in March," the Bruins coach said Sunday. "I hope our team will be back, too."

Bartow had just watched UCLA crush seventh-ranked Tennessee 103-89 in a nationally televised game at the Omni, site of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's basketball championship tournament in March.

The Bruins, playing with the poise that helped UCLA capture 10 national titles since 1964, had little trouble with the Vols, who entered the game with a 12-game winning streak.

But UCLA never trailed and easily overcame the only Tennessee threat when the Vols closed a 15-point deficit to 56-52 early in the second half.

Sophomore David Greenwood quickly hit three straight 20-footers from the top of the circle, triggering a 31-18 spurt that gave UCLA command at 87-70 with 6:50 remaining.

"We can't shoot much better than we shot," Bartow said. "We beat an awfully good team. It was a grueling game and our depth was definitely a factor."

It was the sixth consecutive triumph for UCLA, 16-2, and its second in a row on national television following last Sunday's 70-65 decision over Notre Dame.

"I think we've got a chance," Bartow said of returning with his team for the NCAA tournament. "But there are a lot of great teams in the West. They talk about all the great teams in the East and Midwest, but they better think about some of those in the West."

UCLA took a 6-1 lead, stretched it to 11 points in the first six minutes and had a 40-25 advantage with just under seven minutes left in the half.

Tennessee cut the margin to 56-52 with 16:48 to play on a three-point play by Olympian Ernie Grunfeld, but the Vols never got closer.

Sawdust Reggie Traylor Triggers Dons

BY CARL SAWYER

While South Coast Conference basketball coaches fear the talents of Steve Smith from Baltimore, hope not to be slumped by Kevin Williams from Detroit and try to defend Sylvester Pritchett from San Mateo, they're getting zapped by Reggie Traylor from Santa Ana.

Some of the Southland's JC coaches try to make a big deal out of Santa Ana College's lineup of talent drawn from far and wide by the presence of Don coach Rolland Todd. Others mumble under their breath about his ability to attract basketball talent as if there were something wrong with it.

With all that talk going on, Reggie Traylor from Santa Ana High is playing a very big role in Santa Ana College's basketball success and he loves every minute of it.

An All-Century League choice as a senior at Santa Ana High School, the 5-8 freshman guard has been a dazler in the Don backcourt since earning a starting job early in the season.

"If we have any surprises, Reggie has been the most pleasant surprise," says Todd. "He does many things very well, plus he works as hard in practice as he does in games. He is a very big part of our offense."

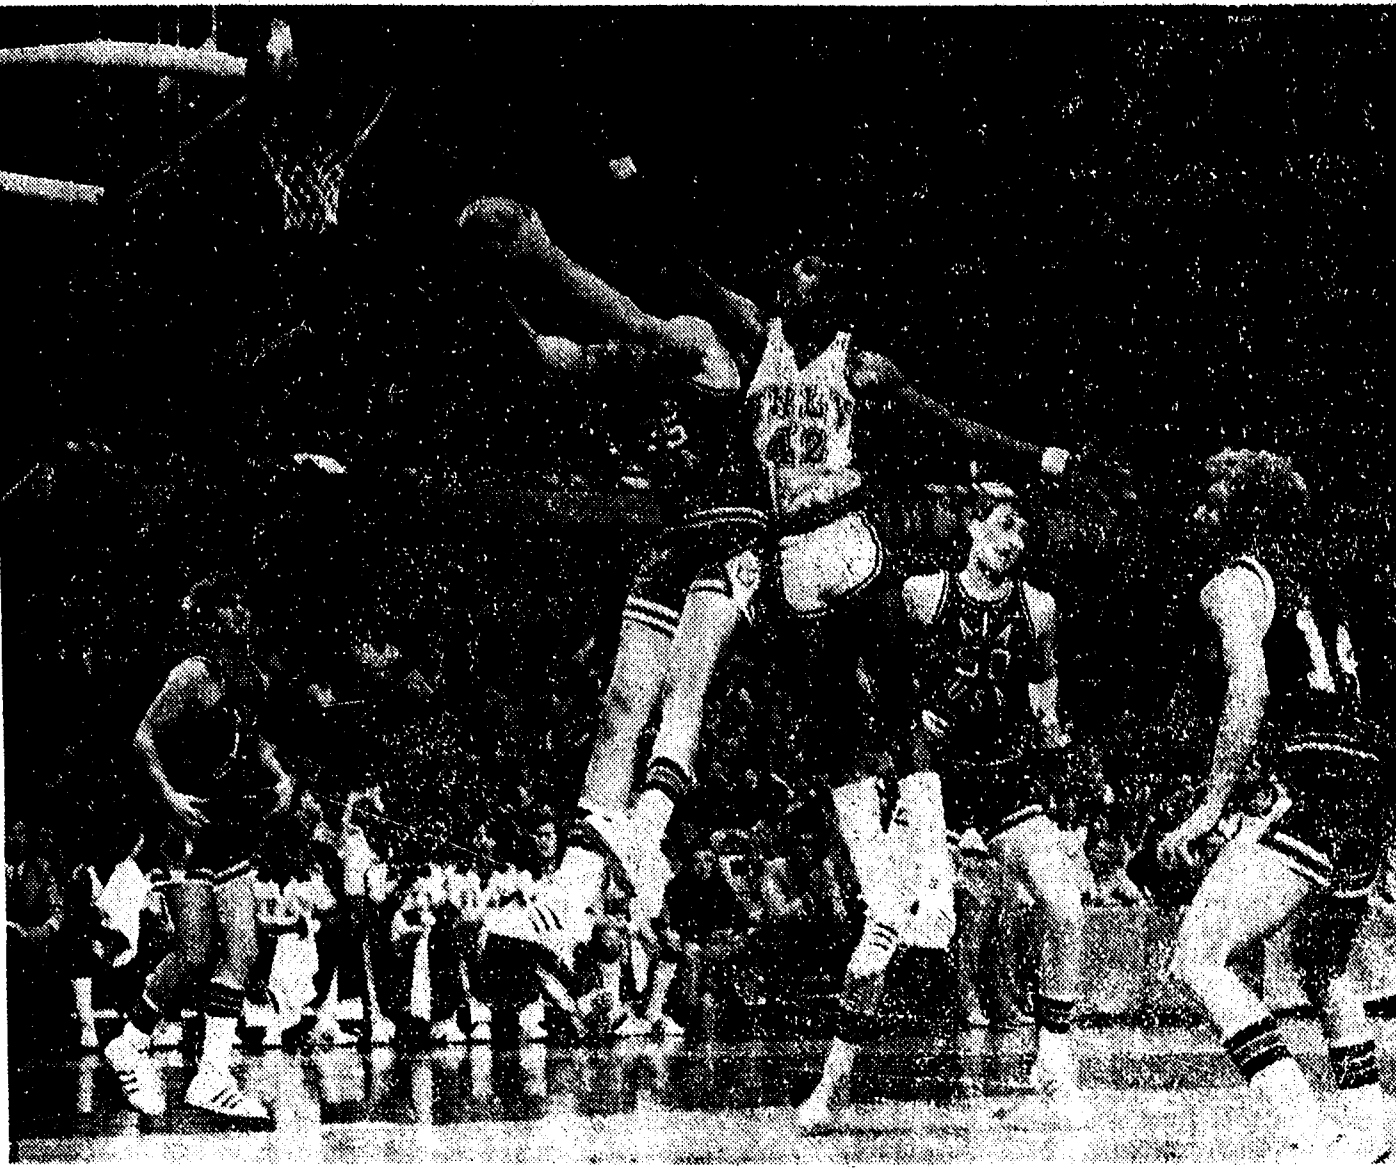

A crafty left-handed shooter, Traylor is one of those speedy "jitter-bug" types who quarterbacks the ball downcourt for the Dons between and around much bigger defenders.

Todd is comfortable at the start of each game with Traylor on the court.

"He gets us into our rhythm and that's a certain knack," explained the Don coach.

Traylor has made the transition from the prep court to the college court a smooth one and has found many differences.

"It's a much faster pace and the competition is much better," said Traylor. "It's more work, but it's more fun, too."

STRONG TIMBER — Bayard Forrest (35), Athletes-In-Action's 6-10, 230 pound center, was again a major factor in an AIA win Saturday, as UN Las Vegas fell before AIA, 104-77 at the Anaheim Convention Center. Reaching in vain for the rebound here was Larry Moffett of UN Las Vegas, while Tim Hall (50) and Eldon Lawyer (14) stood by.

Oates Praises AIA Defense

By DAVID OSTERMAN

When a basketball squad scores 104 and 102 points against the No. 1 and fifth ranked college basketball teams in the county, you expect the coach to be enthusiastic about his offense.

But Bob Oates, whose Athletes in Action team demolished UN Las Vegas 104-77 at the Anaheim Convention Center Saturday was happiest about his defensive teamwork after the game.

"We concentrated on keeping them from that second effort," said Oates, whose squad is now 23-6 on the year. "We are a tough physical team and we wanted to use that strength to keep them outside and away from the boards."

AIA did just that, winning the battle on the boards, 64-33 and sweeping the defensive boards almost clean against one of the fastest teams in college ball.

"They (Las Vegas) are a well coached team and are extremely fast from free throw to free throw line," said Oates. "Their game is the fast shot and they got them tonight, but they didn't get the second effort shot. We took that away from them."

The big men in the battle for the boards for AIA were forward Tim Hall and centers Ralph Drollinger and Bayard Forrest.

Hall finished with 17 rebounds and 13 points for AIA while Forrest and Drollinger, sharing action, combined for 18 rebounds and 32 points. The two big centers, Forrest from Grand Canyon and Drollinger from UCLA, also got five slam dunks in the game.

Forrest had one back-handed two fisted dunk in the second half which brought a near sellout crowd of 6,991 fans to the floor.

The AIA victory wasn't only on the front line though. Guards Brad Hoffman and Eldon Lawyer also had their chances in the spotlight. Hoffman a 5-10 guard, who starred at North Carolina before joining AIA, had seven assists in the game, most in the first half, when his alert ball handling, gave AIA a commanding 53-39 lead.

Three of his assists were to Lawyer, who hit 11 of 13 shots and finished with 23 points, high for both teams.

On defense, 6-7 Reggie Theus and Rober Smith of Las Vegas, were never able to get their outside shooting in line.

The two men, combined to hit only seven of 20 shots, while Las Vegas as a team hit only 40.3 in the game.

Oates was uncertain if his team played better Saturday or against USF on Jan. 20.

"It's hard to say. I think we hit the boards better tonight than any time all year, but we didn't control the ball as well as we did against USF."

"We played two of our best games against them and I think it was because we had time to rest. We played 18 games in December. It's hard to practice when you play a game Friday night, travel 800 miles and play again Saturday."

"We had a week off during Christmas and I think that really helped. And we didn't have Terry Lerrow, who had a cast on for our early games. He was a big difference tonight, because he is our fast forward."

The USF and UN Las Vegas games were the first home games in the 10 year history of the Tustin based church team, which is defending AAU champions.

Yet Oates doesn't feel the wins will make it hard to get more home games next year at the Convention Center.

"Jerry (Tarkenton) has already said he's coming back next year and so has USF," said Oates. "Coaches like to rise to the challenge and I feel the wins will make it easier for us to schedule teams. Teams don't mind losing to a respectable team, they mind losing to someone no one has ever heard of."

Tuesday's Empire Shootout Highlights Prep Schedule

After last week's steady stream of first place confrontations in the various county prep basketball leagues, it seemed impossible there could be anymore coming for awhile.

But no one told Los Alamitos and Katella about the long odds, and those teams head for their Tuesday night meeting at Katella with identical 4-0 Empire League records.

Although Los Alamitos sports a 12-5 overall record compared to 12-6 for Katella, the Knights have had the easier time in league play, winning their four games by an average of 14 points.

Los Alamitos, on the other hand, is winning by an average of nine points, including a narrow six-point victory over Cypress Friday, 66-52.

Bolsa Grande 5-11, which lost to undefeated Los Amigos in the Garden Grove League last week, will try to hang onto second place Wednesday at 7 p.m., visiting Rancho Alamitos, which is 5-2.

For the second consecutive week, El Dorado finds itself in a crucial Orange League encounter. Last week the Golden Hawks fell to La Habra, and Tuesday El Dorado (7-1) visits a Brea-Olinda team which is 5-2 and tied for the second spot in the standings.

Four JC Cage Squads Fight For State Spots

Four of Orange County's six community college basketball teams are smack in the middle of red hot championship races and that means another hectic week for coaches, players and fans.

At the mid-way point of conference races, Cypress College rules the Southern Cal Conference. Santa Ana College tops the South Coast with a one-game lead over Fullerton and Saddleback is in hot pursuit of first place Palomar in the Mission Conference.

For the first time in years, Orange County has an opportunity to qualify three teams for the Sunkist State JC Tournament at Fresno in March, but no one has a berth in the bag at this stage.

The upset bug is still alive and well in JC ranks as the Metropolitan and Western State Conferences learned last week when Bakersfield and Santa Barbara both fell out of first place unexpectedly.

Can the same thing happen in the Southern Cal, South Coast and Mission?

Cypress has an opportunity to pad its win column by taking on two second division clubs as the Chargers gear for a final showdown with second place Santa Monica. The Chargers host Los Angeles City on Tuesday night, then trek to Los Angeles Southwest on Friday night.

The South Coast steps into the spotlight Wednesday night when ancient rivals Santa Ana and Fullerton mix it up on the Hornet court. Coach Ezra Van Horn and his Hornets have been one of the season's major surprises and could put a real topser on a sensational comeback by upsetting the defending champion Dons.

Santa Ana cleared a tough hurdle at Cerritos College last Saturday night to clear the way for a trip to Fullerton where the Hornets always are tough to down. A Santa Ana win would give the Dons a 6-0 mark and a two-game edge on the field going into the final round of South Coast play.

Saddleback faces a stiff test Wednesday night when Gaucha coach Bill Mulligan returns to the court where he directed the Tigers to numerous Mission crowns before moving to Orange County.

The defending champion Tigers will be boiling mad also after dropping two games last week that have them on the verge of being eliminated from the title race. Saddleback hosts San Bernardino on Saturday.

Chico State Faces Panther 5 Tonight

Chico State tries to stop the Chapman College winning spree tonight and then goes on to UC Irvine Tuesday night in a rare basketball visit to Orange County.

The Panthers, who play at Orange High School at 7:30, have won five in a row and six of the last seven games for a 9-10 record.

Starting guard Reg Newson may be ready to play after missing the last two triumphs.

Chico has an 11-7 overall record and leads the Far West conference in a bid to make the NCAA playoffs.

Cary Melugin, 6-5, has paced the scoring at 13.3 followed by 6-4 Jim Schreiner at 10.5. Ken Guido is averaging 7.5 for the defending champions.

Chapman is also home for the weekend hosting Grand Canyon Friday and UC San Diego Saturday.

The game at UCI will be at 8.

Idle for a week after playing well for several games, Irvine is 8-10 after winning three of the last five. A controversial setback at Northern Arizona followed two victories.

Then the Anteaters will attempt to get to Omaha to meet Creighton Thursday night and return in time to entertain Bakersfield State Saturday.

Now second in the PCAA at 4-2 and still 1 1/2 games behind unbeaten Long Beach State after a last-second triumph at Fresno State, Fullerton resumes play Saturday seeking revenge at San Diego State.

The Aztecs attempt to bounce back from two road losses (3-2) tonight as host to UC Santa Barbara. Thursday, Long Beach visits winless Pacific and Fresno goes to San Jose State. Long Beach goes on to San Jose Saturday.

Falcone, Mallory To Titans

Second team all-state defensive tackle Lou Falcone of Fullerton and Golden West linebacker Scott Mallory were among nine additions Sunday as Fullerton State completed its signings of football junior college transfers.

First team all-California linebacker Dana Lotz of Monterey Peninsula, a 6-0, 215-pounder, was part of a group which increased the total to 13 from the JC ranks.

Head coach Jim Colletto, who hopes to sign from four to six high school seniors by Feb. 19, said only "walkons" would be added from now on out of community colleges.

Falcone is 6-1, 220 from Fullerton and Mallory 6-0, 215 out of Huntington Beach.

Honorable mention All-America receiver Jerome Young, 5-11, 160 of San Diego Mesa; Citrus middle guard Henry Camarena, 6-0, 210; Miller Johnson, a 6-2, 170 Santa Monica wide receiver; 6-3, 264 Mt. San Antonio offensive tackle Pat Flexen; safety Terry Hanslik, 6-2 and 180 from Grossmont and Steve Codey, a 6-3, 215 defensive end at El Camino, complete the list.

Signed earlier had been Cerritos running back Joe Fletcher, San Jose quarterback Mike Martin and Citrus teammates Obie Graves (running back) and Dale Bunn (quarterback).

"We're pleased with the players we have signed," said Colletto. "There isn't a shaky one in the group. We think they all can play."

Nater Swamps The Bucs

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Sven Nater's 20 points and 18 rebounds Sunday led the Milwaukee Bucks to a 100-92 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets.

Nater, who played for the Nets in the American Basketball Association two years ago, helped the Bucks to only their second triumph in the last 10 games. The Nets lost their third in a row and 16th in 17 starts.

The loss gave the Nets the worst record in the NBA, 13-34 for a 27.7 percentage. Milwaukee is 15-37 and 288.

New York led 84-77 in the fourth quarter before Milwaukee reeled off 11 straight points, six of them by Bobby Dandridge. The Nets came back to tie it 88-88, but two free throws by Nater with 2:56 to go put Milwaukee ahead to stay. Dandridge then hit a free throw and a jumper to make it 93-88.

DiMaggio and Graham Win AA Golf Classic

Duran May Get World Title Bout

By ART PARRA
SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. -- The team of Joe DiMaggio and Otto Graham won the 11th annual American Airlines Golf Classic Sunday afternoon at the McCormick Ranch Country Club as the former New York Yankee "Clipper" sank a five-foot putt on the second sudden death hole.

It marked the ninth time DiMaggio and Graham had played together in this event featuring a baseball and football player as a team. The duo are "Hall of Fame" entries.

The five-foot putt was a pressure stroke after runner-ups Clyde Wright and Joe Namath had each bogied the 180-yard par 3 second hole.

DiMaggio stepped up to his ball, took aim and drilled it straight into the cup, winning $10,000 for the pair.

Both Graham and DiMaggio immediately announced their purses of $5000 each would be given to charity.

Said DiMaggio, "Class will tell. Otto and I have been telling these guys for 9 years we were the best. When we got on a course where accuracy made the difference instead of sheer strength, we showed them. My share of the purse will go to several charities in the San Francisco area."

Graham echoed the comments of DiMaggio but added, "My share will be given to the United States Coast Guard Academy Athletic Association. I am doing this knowing everyone is going to pay their taxes quick this year. You see, as a member of the Coast Guard, my income is from tax payers generosity."

The 54-hole tournament, played before a huge crowd with most following combinations of DiMaggio-Graham and Wright-Namath, ended with both teams shooting net 61's for a total of 181.

Picking up second money was worth $2500 each to Wright and Namath. Wright, now negotiating his 1977 contract with the Tokyo Giants in the Japan Major League, announced his purse would go to fix Mrs. Wright's teeth again. "That will take about $1800 of it. The rest will be used for a big party...and you know what that means," Namath admitted he would keep his share of the money.

Buddy Bell, Cleveland Indians third-baseman, and Paul Warfield, Cleveland Browns wide-receiver, finished third with 182, one stroke back. The two shot a 61 for final day. Phil Garner, (Oakland A's) Fred Biletnikoff (Oakland Raiders) were next at 183, also coming home with a final round of 61.

Co-leaders at the end of 36-holes, Bobby Grich (California Angels) and Steve Zabel (New England Patriots) shot a 66, finishing with 186. Don Sutton (Los Angeles Dodgers) and Jim Hart (St. Louis Cardinals) each picked up $500 with a total of 184, shooting 61 Sunday.

PARRA-graphs -- The popular tournament will be played in the Phoenix area again next year...Clyde Wright was a last minute substitute for Thurman Munson (New York Yankees), snowed in at Cleveland...The two 1976 DCY Young award pitchers were seen playing catch behind the hotel. Randy Jones (San Diego Padres-National) and Jim Palmer (Baltimore Orioles-American) even let Don Sutton join the fun...The victory Sunday for DiMaggio and Graham makes slightly more than $20,000 they have won in nine trips to the tee.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) -- Roberto Duran, seemingly in a class by himself in the lightweight division but unable to call himself undisputed world champion, might soon get his chance to settle that dispute.

Don King, who promoted Duran's 13th-round knockout of Vilomar Fernandez here Saturday, is trying to set up a fight between Duran, champion of the World Boxing Association, and Esteban DeJesus of Puerto Rico, champion of the World Boxing Council.

DeJesus is the only man ever to beat Duran, winning a 10-round decision in a non-title fight about six months after Duran gained the title by stopping Ken Buchanan in the 13th round on June 26, 1972.

Duran avenged the loss by knocking out DeJesus in the 11th round of a WBA title fight March 16, 1974. DeJesus is scheduled to defend the WBC title in Puerto Rico Feb. 12 against Buzzsaw Yamabe of Japan.

The lightweight title, as with most others, has been split in the power struggle between the two groups.

Duran played chase with

Fernandez Saturday as DeJesus watched at ringside. Finally catching up with him, Duran scored his knockout with 2:10 gone in the 13th round. He drove home a solid left to the side and followed with a right to the belly, causing Fernandez to crumple to his knees.

Fernandez was able to walk to his corner after the 10 count. Later, he said the "good shot to the body" left him groggy and unable to see.

Fernandez' rights caught pursuing Duran occasionally, but lacked the power to slow the Panamanian champion. Fernandez, a native of the Dominican Republic and a resident of New York, has scored only five knockouts in his 20-6-1 pro career.

Duran, meanwhile, is a human buzz-saw who goes for the knockout. He has succeeded in all 10 of his title defenses and 45 of his 56 fights.

"It didn't bother me that he ran a lot," said Duran. "I knew I'd catch him."

The crowd paid up to $40 with no guarantee the bout would go longer than the one round it took Duran to floor

Alvaro Rojas three months ago. The fans didn't mind the shifts tactics of Fernandez.

In fact, referee Servio Lay of Panama drew lusty boos from the 1,400 present in the indoor tennis facility at the Hotel Fontainebleau when he told Fernandez to mix it up during a circling, non-punching routine in the fifth round.

Fernandez took some of Duran's best punches during the bout. He admitted to being tired from the 10th round on, but until he collapsed from the body punches in the 13th, he'd shown little sign of wilting.

Duran credited Fernandez for being a "valiant fighter well prepared" after it was over.

At 23, Fernandez is two years younger than Duran. He's lighter, too, scaling 132½ to the champion's 133½ at weigh-in.

The 25-year-old Duran earned $80,000 and Fernandez, 23, got $20,000.

Leonard Makes Pro Debut

Sugar Ray Leonard, an Olympic gold medalist, launches his pro career this week while Emile Griffith opens his 19th year, hoping to win a world title for the sixth time.

The 21-year-old Leonard, of Palmer Park, Md., will fight a six-round lightweight bout against Luis Vega of Allentown, Pa., Saturday in Baltimore and for CBS-TV.

Griffith, who will be 39 next Thursday, will fight Christy Elliott, an Irishman living in New Jersey, in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. Griffith, who held the world welterweight and middleweight titles a total of five times, lost a disputed decision in a bid for the junior middleweight title last year and says he hopes to get another shot a championship.

The featured 10-rounder on the Garden show will pit Wilfredo Benitez of Puerto Rico against Harold Weston of New York, who is rated among the top 10 welterweight contenders by the World Boxing Association and the World Boxing Council.

Benitez, 26-0, recently was stripped of the WBA junior welterweight title for failure to defend within a prescribed time.

The week's schedule: Tuesday At Oklahoma City, Okla. Sean O'Grady, Oklahoma City, vs. Earl Large, Clovis, N.M., 10, super bantams. At Winterinternals Prudhomme Shatters Mark

POMONA, Calif. (AP) -- Don Prudhomme posted the fastest speed in Funny Car drag racing history Sunday and won his third consecutive championship in the National Hot Rod Association Winterinternals.

Prudhomme, the two-time defending Winston World Champion from Granada Hills, Calif., raced past Raymond Beadle of Dallas, Tex., in the Funny Car finals with a time of 6.03 seconds and a finish line speed of 247.25 miles per hour.

No one other than Prudhomme had ever before run faster than 240 MPH in a bodied race car and Prudhomme's own previous best was only 241.53 MPH.

In the other racing categories, Jerry Ruth of Seattle, Wash., won Top Fuel; Larry Lombardo of Malvern, Pa., Pro Stock; Dave Settles of Eulest, Tex., Pro Comp; John Lingenfelter of Hoagland, Ind., Competition; Tony Christian of Arlington Heights, Ill., Modified; Dave Boertman of Muskogon,

Gushiken Keeps Boxing Crown

TOKYO (AP) -- Yoko Gushiken of Japan climbed up from a third-round knockout Sunday and retained the World Boxing Association junior flyweight championship with a split 15-round decision over Jaime Rios of Panama.

Gushiken went down from a right to the jaw for a mandatory eight count in the third round and was cut over both eyes. But he became more aggressive in the fourth round and appeared in control from the 10th round on, mixing a two-fisted attack to the head and body.

"It's a very bad decision," said Harumio Icaza, co-manager of Rios, who once held the title. "Rios scored a knockdown and a cut over both eyes of Gushiken. Rios won 10 rounds and it's impossible that he lost... I am going to protest to the World Boxing Association."

Mich., Super Stock; and Chad Langdon, Garden Grove, Calif., Stock.

Ruth, the 1973 World Champion and runner-up at the 1974 Winterinternals, upset Don Garlits of Seftner, Fla., in the finals after low qualifier Shirley Muldowney of Mt. Clemens, Mich., was eliminated in the first round by an equipment malfunction.

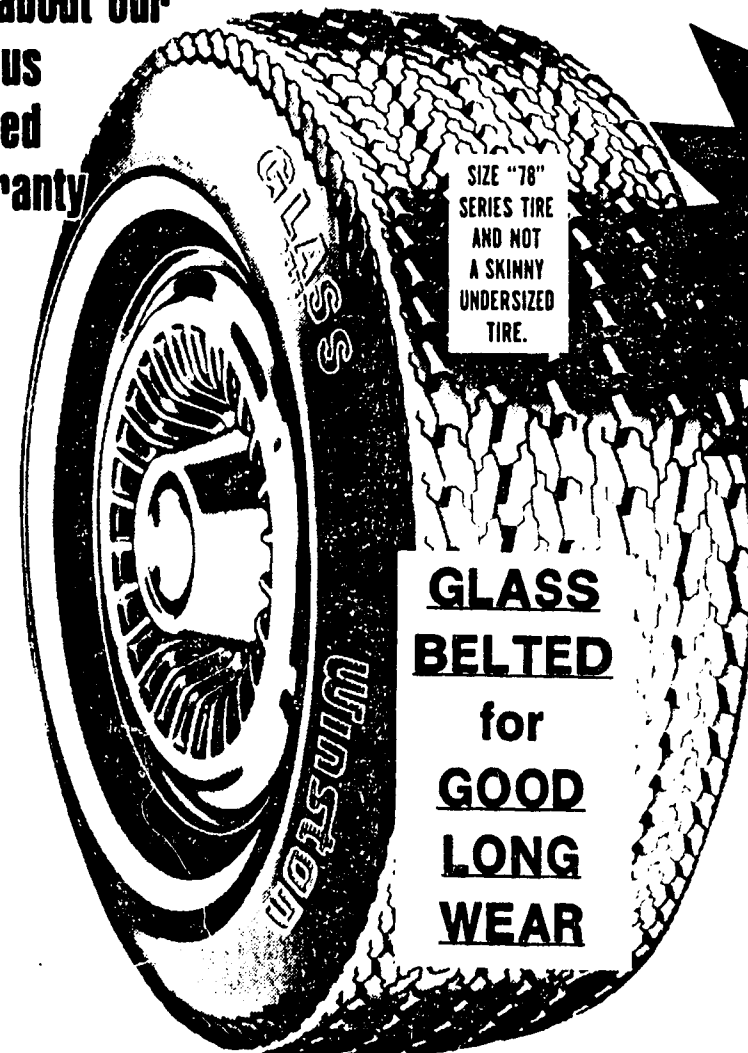

Lombardo, driving for four-time Winterinternals winner Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins, not only beat Don Nicholson of Orange, Calif., for the money but also established a new national top speed record for Pro Stock cars at 159.29 MPH. The old mark of 158.73 was held by Warren Johnson of Fridley, Minn.

Final results of the 17th annual National Hot Rod Association Winterinternals drag races completed Sunday at the Los Angeles County fairgrounds:

Galliard was unable to talk for five minutes after San Francisco's game Saturday night, a heart-stopper in which the top-ranked Dons erased a 16-point second-half deficit to beat Santa Clara 71-70 on a basket by Chubby Cox with two seconds left.

"Santa Clara outplayed us," said Galliard, when he finally found his voice. "But we got the ball to the right guy at the right time."

So the Dons got a big scare but managed to keep their perfect record intact at 21-0. But the three top challengers to San Francisco's No. 1 ranking were not so fortunate. All fell by the wayside.

No. 2 Michigan was upset by Big Ten rival Northwestern

99-87. No. 3 Alabama dropped an 87-85 squeaker to sixth-ranked Kentucky in a Southeastern Conference matchup and No. 4 North Carolina was stunned by 19th-ranked Atlantic Coast Conference foe Clemson 93-73.

In other games Saturday involving the Top Twenty, No. 9 Marquette downed DePaul 85-64; No. 10 Wake Forest beat Appalachian 83-73; No. 11 Louisville defeated Rhode Island 87-85; No. 12 Cincinnati whipped Duquesne 83-65; No. 13 Minnesota topped Ohio State 77-67; No. 15 Arkansas beat Baylor 68-59; No. 16 Arizona trimmed Colorado State 81-67; No. 18 Purdue edged Illinois 66-63, and No. 20 Memphis State defeated Dayton 81-67.

In Sunday's major matchup,

No. 7 UCLA defeated Tennessee, 103-89 in a nationally televised game from the Omni in Atlanta.

No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas lost to Athletics in Action 104-77 in an exhibition game. No. 14 Providence did not play and No. 17 Syracuse's game against LaSalle was postponed because of heavy snow.

Many other games also were called off because of harsh weather, including everything in the Mid-American Conference.

San Francisco trailed by as many as 16 points in the second half, came back to take the lead with a 25-6 spurt, then fell behind 70-67 on Roy Taylor's steal and dunk with 1:45 to go. A tip-in by Marlon Redmond then brought the Dons within one with 58 seconds left.

Santa Clara went into a stall to try and kill the clock and Kurt Rambis was fouled with nine seconds left. But he missed the front end of a one-and-one and the ball bounced out of bounds — off Santa Clara.

Cox then took the inbound pass and drove the length of the court, putting up the gamewinning shot with two seconds left. Cox led the Dons with 14 points.

Tex Winter called Northwestern's upset of Michigan "the sweetest win I've ever had in basketball in 30 years."

Guard Billy McKinney was Northwestern's big gun with 29 points and also the key man because of his ballhandling.

"Michigan is the quickest team in college basketball," said Winter. "They rely on a pressure defense. Some teams break the pressure defense but are unable to score. We broke it and did score."

Northwestern jumped ahead 45-39 at the half, built the lead to 13 at 70-57 and then withstood a comeback which brought Michigan within two.

"It was our third game on the road this week, but that had no bearing on the loss," said Michigan Coach Johnny Orr. "Give Northwestern credit. They outplayed us and outshot us. We made a comeback, but we couldn't contain them. And McKinney was absolutely phenomenal."

Kentucky scored a big road victory over Alabama. Jack Givens' two free throws with 14 seconds remaining clinched the triumph. In the SEC race, Tennessee leads with an 8-0 mark. Kentucky is now 7-1 and Alabama is 6-2. They have played each other once, with one more meeting to go.

"To say that I am pleased is the understatement of my life," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "It was just beautifully done. We really executed well down the stretch."

Kentucky led for most of the second half, but Rickey Brown's three-point play tied it for Alabama at 83-83 with 2:02 to go. Rick Robey gave Kentucky the lead for good with two free throws with 1:51 to play, then Givens' two foul shots provided enough margin to offset a basket by Keith McCord in the closing seconds. Givens led all scorers with 23 points.

Wayne "Tree" Rollins scored 15 points, grabbed 19 rebounds and blocked eight shots as Clemson clobbered North Carolina. The Tigers led 40-34 at halftime, then shot 69 per cent from the field in the second half to pull away.

DePaul stayed with Marquette for 20 minutes, trailing just 32-29 at halftime, but the Warriors ran away with 53 points in the second half. Butch Lee led the winners with 21 and Bo Ellis had 20.

Rod Griffin shot 10-for-12 from the field, scored 28 points and hauled down eight rebounds for Wake Forest. "When the going gets tough, we like to go to Griffin," said Coach Carl Tacy — and that's just what the Demon Deacons did.

Louisville romped to its 12th consecutive victory as Larry Williams tied his career high with 28 points and Wesley Cox added 22. Bob Miller's 19 points helped Cincinnati defeat Duquesne. The Bearcats committed just five turnovers while forcing the Dukes into 21.

Mike Thompson shot 14-for-19 and scored 31 points to power Minnesota past Ohio State. Marvin Delph and Sidney Moncrief had 22 points apiece as Arkansas raised its record to 16-1 and Phil Harris' 30 points and 15 rebounds led Arizona over Colorado State.

Walter Jordan scored 17, including three free throws in the final minutes, to lead Purdue past Illinois, while John Washington's 20 points and 11 rebounds helped Memphis State down Dayton.

In other major games, Anthony Roberts' 32 points led Oral Roberts over Virginia Commonwealth 72-52; John Holloran scored a career-high 38 points as George Washington shocked Maryland 86-76, and Holy Cross won the Madison Square Garden Classic by beating Seton Hall 78-59.

Sports Quieted By Old Man Winter

By The Associated Press

Old Man Winter played no favorites over the weekend. He stormed on several parades.

Hardest hit by the severe winter weather conditions was the upstate New York area. In Buffalo, which suffered through its worst snow storm in recent history, professional and college sports action was postponed.

Friday night, the Buffalo Braves and Cleveland Cavaliers had to postpone their National Basketball Association game because Buffalo was unreachable. A Sunday rematch in Cleveland also was postponed because the Braves could not get out of Buffalo.

The Braves could not even get out of their homes to practice over the weekend after the games were called off.

A National Hockey League game between the Sabres and the Los Angeles Kings could not be played because neither team could make it to Buffalo. The Sabres were in Montreal Saturday night and the Kings were in New York.

Also postponed in the Buffalo area were college basketball games between St. Louis University and Canisius, and Fairfield against University of Buffalo.

Those were not the only collegiate postponements. Dozens of games, including Fordham at Notre Dame, La Salle at Syracuse and the entire Middle Atlantic Conference schedule were called off Saturday. The Fordham-Notre Dame game, however, was played Sunday, while a Big Ten Conference game between Ohio State and Minnesota was moved to Minneapolis after the Ohio school shut down.

Seven race tracks cancelled their cards Saturday. They were Keystone and Penn National in Pennsylvania, Bowie in Maryland, Chicago's Washington Park, Suffolk Downs in Boston, Latonia in Kentucky and Waterford Park in West Virginia.

While much of the country was knee-deep in snow and beset by near-zero temperatures, the professional golf tour was thriving.

The tour, which customarily travels through Arizona, California and Hawaii in January and February, has had some of its best television ratings ever. The bad weather has had much to do with that.

"Those folks in Buffalo with 13 feet of snow on the ground, and in Chicago, Detroit and New York," said a television official, "they turn on their TVs and see sunshine, girls in hula skirts and young men in shirt sleeves and they don't want to leave the sets."

O'Shaughnessy has been one of the hottest distance runners in the country recently, narrowly missing the indoor world record at one mile and 1,000 yards.

"We have mapped out a schedule all the way through the NCAA outdoor in June and we don't plan to change it," said Arkansas distance coach John McDonnell. "The one thing we don't want to do is kill the goose which laid the golden egg."

O'Shaughnessy ran a 3:55.4 mile in a quadrangular meet at Columbia, Mo., Friday night. That is the second fastest mile ever run indoors and the third sub-four-minute mile of his career. Tony Waldrop set the indoor record of 3:55.0 in 1974.

Whiz Kid Wins Three Of Five

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Whiz Kid Steve Cauthen has treated West Coast fans to a bit of the riding magic that has made him the nation's leading jockey, bringing in three winners in five mounts at Santa Anita.

The 16-year-old apprentice jockey flew into California for Sunday's San Marcos Handicap, but was thrown by his mount, Announcer, Cauthen, who was unhurt in the incident, rode three of his other mounts into the winner's circle Sunday.

Veteran Bill Shoemaker had a chance to show a little magic of his own, bringing Royal Derby II from last to win the featured $56,650 San Marcos. The eight-year-old favorite ran the 1 1/4-mile turf course in 1:58 1/5, paying $7.40, $4.20 and $3.40.

Royal Derby II, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, came from behind to beat Anne's Pretender by nearly two lengths. Anne's Pretender paid $5.00 and $4.80, and third place finisher Tedy's Courage paid $10.40.

Cauthen had three winners and a second Sunday, continuing the winning ways that earned him stardom in the East. He rode into the winner's circle with Highland Light in the second race, Faliraki in the sixth and Sky Charger in the ninth race.

He finished second in the seventh event aboard Life's Hope.

On Saturday, Uniformity scored his second consecutive upset victory in the current meet, responding to Fernando Toro's ride to take the $57,500 San Pasqual Handicap.

Uniformity, carrying 117 pounds, ran the mile and one-sixteenth race in a blazing 1:41 flat. The longshot winner paid $17.20, $8.40 and $7.00. Finishing second was Distant Land, who paid 4.20 and $3.60. Pisistrato finished third and paid $6.80.

Kehoe Scores 2 In Penguin Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rick Kehoe scored two goals and assisted on another and goalie Dennis Herron made some sensational saves as the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Boston Bruins 5-2 in the National Hockey League Sunday.

Kehoe's second goal came in the third period after the Bruins had rallied from a 3-0 deficit to score twice.

EVER STRIVING FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The Blessings of Title IX

That there is a government-backed and taxpayer-funded campaign being pushed to eliminate differentiation between the sexes, and that the threat of loss of federal funds is being used as a club to force compliance, can no longer be doubted. This was made quite clear by Jo Jacobs, Title IX co-ordinator for the Michigan Department of Education, when she spoke at the Jackson (Mich.) Community College forum in mid-November. "Title IX" is the commonly used euphemism for federal regulations which prohibit so-called sex discrimination in education.

As reported by Sharon D. Winzler, education writer for the Jackson Citizen Patriot, Ms. Jacobs warned that failure to comply with rules set forth under Title IX could lead to loss of federal funds.

Among other things prohibited by Title IX, Ms. Jacobs pointed out, are all-girl pom poms and all male glee clubs. Permitted under that title, she emphasized, are "pom pom persons" and "bass-tenor glee clubs."

With respect to pom poms, the Title IX co-ordinator explained, schools will have to begin advertising for pom pom persons, rather than just women. Radical actions, she continued, might be to change pom pom uniforms so men could be included and to make sure men are aware that they are eligible to audition.

Moreover, Ms. Jacobs laid it down, "If the band, cheerleaders, and pom pom persons go to men's games, they should also be taken to the women's." "Men's games," permitted under Title IX, she explained, are those involving such contact sports as boxing, wrestling, rugby, football, basketball and ice hockey, in which only men participate. However, she insisted, there must be comparable programs for women. "Separate but equal," long ago outlawed with respect to schools, is permissible with respect to rough contact sports, you see. And "equal," Ms. Jacobs pointed out, means that if women are provided hairdryers in their dressing rooms, men must be likewise provided for.

Having gotten the matter of pom poms, glee clubs and sports out of the way, Ms. Jacobs went on to other fields. Under Title IX, she reminded her audience, for example:

- No reference to gender may be made in school tests and illustrations used in classes. For instance, a textbook in a nursing program referring to a nurse as "she" or some other feminine reference is prohibited.

- Course titles like "bachelor cooking" or "powder puff mechanics," are likewise prohibited because they restrict class enrollment by gender.

- In hiring, pre-employment inquiry of marital status is forbidden. Maiden names or titles like Mrs. or Miss may no longer be requested.

And finally, Title IX prohibits schools from accepting scholarships from outside groups that are earmarked for males or females, except in the area of athletics. Schools are prohibited from accepting aid or assistance from outside groups that discriminate on the basis of sex.

With respect to that last, one is inclined to wonder how Title IX, as interpreted by Ms. Jacobs, would react to funds contributed by someone for the benefit of unwed mothers? With "separate but equal" provisions for unwed fathers, no doubt.

The Question Box

Question No. 2408: A legislative committee in Sacramento has been holding hearings on why Dow Chemical Co. decided not to build a $500 million plant in the Sacramento River Delta area. Labor union officials and some legislators have been accusing Governor Brown and his appointed bureaucrats for the loss of this plum and thousands of jobs in California. Who is at fault - the governor, the bureaucracy or the legislature?

Answer: We would say that a member of the legislature who had not opposed at virtually every step of the way the establishment of the bureaucracy which has the people in its control is on rather shaky grounds to criticize the bureaucracy and the Brown administration's use of the bureaucracy the legislature created. The same goes for the labor union officials who many times seem to favor more and larger government with its attendant growth of bureaucracy.

In the Dow case, which had been left hanging for two years, it was reported that the company was faced with a requirement of getting 65 permits from 19 government agencies. In announcing it was indefinitely delaying the project, the company representatives said they were able to obtain only four of the permits in the two years.

It should be no surprise to anyone that the business climate in California is not favorable. Not only the multiplicity of regulatory agencies, from city and county planners to state environmental regulators, but high labor costs and even restrictive state laws have made the state far less favorable to those who would invest their money in providing job opportunities.

Some union officials are beginning to see the harm that big government is doing them and their members. This is evidenced by union workers opposing the sometimes irresponsible actions of the Coastal Commission, and by their alarm over the Dow case, in which an estimated 1,000 construction jobs have been lost in the next five years, plus possibly 1,000 factory jobs lasting far longer.

But the fault lies in the laws, creating the bureaucratic monstrosity. And in most cases the legislature passed the laws, now being used by the bureaucrats and the governor.

What About Berlin?

By ALLAN C. BROWNFIELD

WASHINGTON - Early in January, the government of East Germany showed exactly what it thought of the so-called "Spirit of Helsinki" and of the 1971 Four Power Agreement on Berlin.

What the East Germans did was (1) unilaterally declare that the Four Power agreement does not apply to East Berlin; (2) require, since Jan. 1., that all foreign visitors entering East Berlin from West Berlin must obtain a visa if they plan to stay 24 hours or longer; (3) close the control points it previously had on East Berlin's city limits where travelers cross into other East German areas.

The U.S., British and French have objected to this unilateral move, stating that it "further restricts freedom of movement in greater Berlin." The Allied statement challenges the rights of the East German government and the Soviet Union to make unilateral changes in the status of Berlin, even in the Communist eastern sector of that city. All of Berlin, according to the relevant international agreements, continues to come under the jurisdiction of all Four Powers - the U.S., Britain, France, and the Soviet Union - and only those powers acting jointly can change things.

The Allied statement says that it is clear that the purpose of the East German measures "was to give the impression that the German Democratic Republic could, by unilateral action, change the status of greater Berlin, in violation of the quadripartite agreement of Sept. 3, 1971, which applies to the whole of Berlin."

A key provision of the 1971 agreement says that all four governments agree, regardless of the differences in legal views, that the situation that has developed in Berlin "shall not be changed unilaterally." It is that provision that the Allies and the West Germans claim has been violated.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, speaking in the Parliament, declared that, "It must be made clear to the German Democratic Republic that the control measures are a serious provocation and are contrary to the spirit of detente. The latest steps of the GDR are chicanery. At the same time, they show a lack of self-confidence in the Communist Party leadership. Relations with the GDR have deteriorated."

By any standard, the action by the East Germans in clear connivance with the Soviet Union is a challenge to the Western position that all of Berlin is still under the joint sovereignty of the Four Allies of World War II.

More important, in the long run, is that the action of the East Germans and the Soviet Union with regard to Berlin is similar to actions in a variety of other areas - all of which show beyond any doubt that "detente" is simply a rhetorical device aimed at the West, but has little to do with the "human rights" mentioned in the Helsinki Agreement for the men and women who live under Communist regimes.

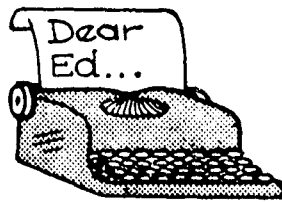

The Helsinki signatories agreed to respect "human rights and fundamental freedoms, including freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief." The recent arrest of dissidents in Czechoslovakia is one indication of how little these agreements mean. In the Soviet Union itself the story is precisely the same. Consider this example: four months after Helsinki, biologist Sergei Kovalev went on trial for "subverting" the Soviet government. What was his crime? It was supporting the stand of Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov against government infringement of civil liberties, and circulating accounts of the treatment of dissidents. Defending himself, Kovalev argued that he was only seeking to further the cause of basic freedoms guaranteed by the Soviet constitution. Replied the prosecutor: "Our state forbids acts which are foreign to its nature." Kovalev was sentenced to seven years hard labor and three years "internal exile." Sakharov noted that, "After Helsinki, the authorities plainly wanted to demonstrate their firmness and their power, which permits them to ignore even their own laws."

The fact is that the Soviet Union has not implemented the Helsinki accords in any area concerning human rights and the West, to its discredit, has remained silent about this violation. Leonard H. Marks, chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, declares that, "Soviet policy has been marked by tactics designed to minimize Russian compliance. Even more discouraging, the West has been reluctant to take strong initiatives. . . . What we need is a positive policy backed up by concrete action, to challenge the U.S.S.R. on the real issue, the opening of all borders to more human and informational contacts."

Unfortunately, the Nixon-Ford-Kissinger period was a strange era in which the U.S. entered into agreements and then refused to utter a word of criticism when the other side violated the agreements. What was in the minds of our policy-makers is difficult to understand. We can only hope that the new administration will turn its back upon such an approach. Objecting to the latest Soviet and East German violations of the law with regard to East Berlin is a good place to begin.

TV Cover-Up

I am enclosing a copy of the December 1976 Washington Report of the American Security Council, Washington, D.C. It relates the story of the fairness doctrine complaint recently filed with the Federal Communications Commission against CBS by the American Security Council Education Foundation. The complaint charges CBS with "massive and continuing violations of the Fairness Doctrine in reporting national security viewpoints."

In that connection, a compelling and even astonishing admission has been made by Walter Cronkite as follows: "There are always groups in Washington expressing views of alarm over the state of our defenses. The story is that there are those who want to cut defense spending." That attitude is no news to anyone who has listened to CBS-TV News during the past few years. But, the principal support for the complaint is a study by Dr. Ernest W. Lefever, then a senior fellow in foreign policy studies at the Brookings Institution, of CBS-TV News for a 37-month period.

As might be expected, CBS denies all, calls it an attempt to invoke the coercive powers of government against it, and vows to resist the complaint "fully and completely" in behalf of its "integrity" and (get this!) "indeed, of all journalism."

The ASC report reproduces editorials and news stories from some 17 newspapers across the country from the Washington Post to the Xenia, Ohio Gazette.

This may well be the news-business news story of 1976-77. Why (Oh, why) is CBS' coverage of national defense, especially its present shortcomings, so sparse and one-sided? Is CBS TV-News a propaganda wing of the current American Fifth Column? Why is CBS trying so desperately to acquire control of Vanderbilt University's videotapes of its news telecasts since 1968 and on which Dr. Lefever's studies were based? Would that be a "cover-up à la Watergate, which CBS condemned so self-righteously? Will CBS gain the support, it so cunningly seeks, of the nation's news media for its arrogant Cronkite doctrine?

The story should be of continuing interest to the Register staff (and all other newsmen concerned about the integrity of their profession) and to Register readers who are concerned about that important matter, the vital national security issues, and the simple David-Goliath aspect of the contest. I certainly hope the Register will follow up and publicize this story as it develops.

Vet For Pardon

As a Vietnam veteran I feel compelled to comment on the response to President Carter's granting of a pardon to Vietnam-era draft evaders. To give a little background: I spent 22 months in Vietnam flying helicopters and have been awarded the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, Air Medal with "V" device and six other medals for valor and service.

Your Tax Dollars

This column has reported on the burgeoning Food Stamp Program, which is estimated to cost $6.6 billion this year and to serve over 19 million Americans. The reports of fraud and maladministration are legion.

Here is one more aspect of Washington's business expertise. Eighteen vendors of these food stamps were unable to account for $8.7 million in food stamp money.

The law requires that these vendors deposit all money in Federal Reserve banks on a daily basis. And yet 1,100 vendors have been getting interest-free use of this money for weeks, and even months, with apparent disinterest on the part of Washington.

Two Swan Songs: Kissinger's And Ford's

By LEE EDWARDS

WASHINGTON - Two of Washington's most famous personages bid ostensible farewells to public life a fortnight ago, and their cacophonous swan songs tell us a good deal about them and our nation as we enter our third century.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, once described as the most powerful man in the world, selected the National Press Club as the recital hall for his farewell. The locale was fitting for it was the news media that transformed Kissinger from a Harvard professor into "Super K."

It was the media which allowed itself to be hypnotized by Kissinger's erudition, his awesome energy, his accent, his fondness for Hollywood beauties, his ego, which is monumental, and, in the opinion of some former aides, monstrous.

The secretary gave a brilliant performance, beginning as any good speaker does with humor. In fact, Kissinger has become the Jack Benny of American diplomacy, making jokes about his egomania as Benny used to do about his stinkiness:

"I have been called indispensable and a miracle worker. I know because I remember every word I say." There was loud and long laughter.

There is one important difference to keep in mind. Jack Benny was kidding. Henry Kissinger is not.

The secretary quickly became serious, reiterating two themes which have guided his approach to diplomacy over the last eight years: (1) the U.S. no longer dominates the world as it did in the 1950s and 1960s and therefore compromise with our adversaries is necessary, and (2) we have only two choices - negotiation or nuclear war.

"Never before," he said, "has (foreign policy) been conducted in the knowledge that miscalculation could mean the end of civilized life."

Kissinger argues that he is being realistic. His critics (including this writer) argue that he is unduly pessimistic and that his devout pessimism has led to a Spenglerian conviction among some in this country and the non-communist world that the West will inevitably decline and fall.

Thus, in Vietnam, it was "obvious" the Communists were going to win. Best, therefore, to get Americans out and not worry too much about the fate of the South Vietnamese.

In the field of strategic capability, the Soviet Union was clearly outpacing the U.S., whose people would not agree to more defense expenditures. Best, therefore, to sign a SALT I and press for a SALT II.

To give Kissinger his due, he did perform a minor miracle in the Middle East, where an uneasy truce prevails. But Israel and its friends in the U.S. are asking more and more loudly, What price peace? And if Sadat is ever replaced as Egypt's head of government, the major restraint on Arab extremists will be gone.

In the question-and-answer period, at the National Press Club, Kissinger was asked bluntly, "Have you put the Soviet Union into a position to achieve world nuclear supremacy?"

His response was pure Kissinger. First, he implied that the question betrayed irrationality - "I think it is time that we conduct a rational debate on the issue of nuclear strategy" - and then he said:

"I do not believe that any American administration would permit a situation to arise in which the Soviet Union could achieve strategic superiority over the United States."

Whatever Henry Kissinger believes, it was clear from President Gerald Ford's final State of the Union message to the Congress that he was deeply concerned about just such a possibility.

Leaving aside the expected rhetoric about what his administration had done for the nation in the preceding 30 months, the central theme of Ford's address was: The Soviets are arming themselves to the teeth - we had better do likewise.

He called for development of the Trident submarine missile, the B-1 bomber and a more advanced ICBM. He urged a military capability to deal with more conventional challenges and crises, "particularly in Europe."

While Henry Kissinger reflected his native European pessimism, telling the Washington press corps that the U.S. should adjust to a new reality in which it is no longer Number One, Jerry Ford displayed his basic American optimism and can-do-spirit, asserting the U.S. can still come out on top.

But, said the outgoing president, "We must have the wisdom, the stamina and the courage to prepare today for the perils of tomorrow."

It was the most important speech a retiring president has made since the much-quoted address of Dwight Eisenhower 15 years ago. Then, Ike spoke to a too powerful U.S. military-industrial complex. Now, Jerry Ford warned of an ominously expanding Soviet military-industrial complex.

The future of the nation and the world depends in large measure on whose vision of the future - Ford's or Kissinger's - prevails.

Cracked Myth

A myth perpetrated in America for a good many years is that it is every citizen's patriotic duty to pay his taxes. The story goes: If we are to continue to live in a free country, we must bear the burden of its costs.

Well, up to a point that may be correct, and from the founding of this nation we Americans have paid billions in taxes, but when those taxes get out of hand and begin to create a hardship on the individual and curtail his ability to live a well-earned, reasonably comfortable life — then there must come a citizens' rebellion to the farce. A stopping place must be reached.

Government at all levels has gone much too far. The burden on all Americans of the stabilizing middle class is beginning to take its toll.

An example of this overwhelming problem is the property tax. We have, here in California, a property tax rate that has gone off the scale, and California property owners are screaming for some relief.

This burdensome tax is forcing people out of their homes because they just can't meet the piper's demand. As the property owner feels the crunch, so does the renter, who is hit with additional increases that deal a blow to his monthly wages. And, come April 15, Uncle Sam steps in directly with his hand out for another big chunk for the income tax, which is a Marxist-imposed duty upon the wage-earner. It hits everybody in the nation who works for his living; everybody, that is, except those like the Rockefellers and other families in the multimillion-dollar class who can use their tax-free foundations as loopholes to get away scot-free. Another exempt group is, of course, the welfare class, which pays nothing.

Sales taxes, city taxes and county taxes also force the consumer to cough up additional funds. And let us not forget the State Income Taxes which are now beginning their climb to Federal Income Tax heights. Social Security taxes, Inheritance Taxes, taxes on taxes — as in gasoline! Taxes, taxes, taxes! When will it stop? It's the same in every state of this Union. Taxes of all kinds are being paid by Mr. and Mrs. Middle Class American to keep the welfare state alive and to enable the puny bureaucrats to live high on the hog, while we wallow in the hog pen.

The time is rapidly approaching when Americans will no longer stand for these impositions upon their wherewithal to live in a decent way.

Millions of Americans are refusing to pay their income taxes, on Constitutional grounds. More millions are withholding their property tax payments in protest of the high rate. Everywhere you go these days, shopping malls, banks, supermarkets, etc., you see ladies manning booths to have petitions signed to relieve themselves, and us, of this terrible tax problem.

We must get government at all levels out of competition with the free enterprise system. We must abolish unconstitutional government agencies like OSHA, EPA, and others too numerous to mention, that have forced individuals and businesses to their knees.

We must return our country to a sound money system, and eliminate the Federal Reserve Banking System which has debauched our currency. We must eliminate the federal control of the states, which emanates from the Federal Regional Councils put into operation by Executive Order 11647 in 1972.

As I have pointed out thousands of times in my speech on "Land Use and Regional Government": "When government subsidizes, government controls." That was made official in 1942, when the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision in the case of Wickard versus Filburn, and the Agricultural Adjustment Act: "It is hardly lack of due process for the federal government to regulate that which it subsidizes."

It's just plain common sense, it seems to me, that if we are to lower our taxes, we must lower government to a level where we can be the controllers — not the "controllees."

Don't Rate

If you must show pictures of the draft dodgers, at least make it in the back pages, for I don't think they rate front page. Oh, yes, I'm sure they stand on their rights as citizens to avoid service and run away, but why didn't they stay? If, in 1941, we had run to Canada or wherever, wouldn't Hitler have been happy?

I don't see any difference in a nazi or a communist have a new name for the same tyranny. But at least don't make heroes out of these people. Time will tell how much they'll do for the country.

Pardon Nonpayers, Also

In view of the fact that the President of the United States of America, on his first day in office gave to all draft evaders a total amnesty and unconditional pardon, I have a request to make on behalf of myself, and all American taxpayers.

I would appreciate having him decree to one and all, a blanket and unconditional pardon, as I have decided that in view of the fact that I don't like where my hard-earned money is going through taxes, I really would rather not pay taxes this year.

Getting A Handle On The National Budget

By JOAN BECK
Chicago Tribune

The federal government will cost us about $440 billion next fiscal year, unless President Carter decides to make it more. The sum is so enormous we don't even bother with the digits any more. We should. That's $440,000,000,000 of our money the government is talking about.

We need to look at that sum carefully — $440,000,000,000. It tends to numb the brain. It seems unreal, like play money. It's easier to lop off nine zeros and see the handy tables calling for $112.3 for defense and $2.3 for agriculture and assume it all is reasonable and necessary.

But that $440,000,000,000 is our money. Paying the federal government is the biggest item of expense most families have these days. And we should not brush off the federal budget without realizing just how much of our money the government is planning to take, how it intends to extract it from us, and what we are getting for our cash.

Divided equally among us all, the $440,000,000,000 the federal government plans to spend will cost each of us more than $2,000 next year. It comes to more than $8,000 for a family of four, almost as much as the government says will support a family of four completely in a low-budget kind of way. And it adds up to about $5,000 for every one of us 88 million wage-earning workers.

Stacked tightly in one dollar bills, the money to support the federal government for one fiscal year would make a pile more than 69,400 miles high, reaching about one third of the way to the moon. Laid end to end, that many dollar bills would stretch for 41,477,272 miles, or almost 15,000 times between New York City and Los Angeles.

The $440,000,000,000 would buy a four-year college education in a prestigious private university for at least 18,333,000 young people. Or a new medium-priced car for every household in the nation. It would cover the tab for all our food and much of our shelter. And it's 10 times more than the dividends all the corporations in the United States paid their stockholders last year.

There's no question that the $440,000,000,000 is our money, as the new federal budget makes perfectly clear.

The government itself cannot produce money. It can only spend what it extracts from individuals who earn it, or borrow it against future such extractions.

The biggest chunk of the new budget, $171.2 billion, is due to come from individual income taxes, mostly money we earn but never even see. The second largest sum, $126.1 billion, is Social Security tax payments, deducted in part from our wages and paid for in part in higher prices set to compensate for employers' share. Corporate income taxes will account for only about $58.9 billion of the new budget; but we pay most of this indirectly through higher prices and lower returns to stockholders, a substantial portion of which are now pension funds, cutting into our retirement income.

The rest will be nickled and dimed and dollored out of us in excise taxes, customs, and minor miscellany — except for a whopping $47 billion deficit we'll have to handle by borrowing. Never mind that the budget already requires $39.7 billion a year for interest on previous borrowing or that interest five years from now is projected at $47 billion a year.

The bigger the budget gets and the more areas of American life come under government domination, the more difficult it is to judge whether we're getting our money's worth. And the more difficult it becomes to cut back if we decide we're getting ripped off, or would rather spend our money ourselves. Already tax experts say about 97 per cent of the $150.4 billion share of the budget that goes to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is out of control.

But we can't stop asking the question as to whether we're getting our money's worth. Former President Ford predicts the federal tax take from us five years from now will come to $587.3 billion just to cover programs already in existence. President Carter has made several expensive promises which might make these figures too low.

But we must measure every proposal President Carter makes in terms of how much it will add to the national budget. Because we will have to pay for it. There isn't anyone else.

LIBERAL ARTS ASCENDANT
Let's Teach Students To Think Again

By JOSEPH D. COFFEE, JR.

The thinker or the tinker? This may be a rather exaggerated set of alternatives, but it reflects the debate in higher education about how well our liberal arts colleges prepare students for the challenges they will find after graduation.

Vocationalism is in vogue and has put liberal arts program on the defensive. Moreover, within the liberal arts, the twin goals of flexibility and specialization have left students to shape their own curriculum without being exposed to each of the major academic areas — the humanities, social sciences and the natural sciences.

Student protests against fixed or distribution requirements in the 1960s led many institutions to relax their degree requirements.

College faculty members have too frequently handed over to the students responsibility for fashioning their higher education — despite the fact that they as educators surely have a greater competence to say what makes an educated man or woman than an 18 year old freshman or sophomore.

They may believe that a liberal arts education is the best if not the only way to produce the desired result — a thinking individual. Yet in recent years they have felt powerless to assert their expertise in defining a fundamental education for those who would become liberally educated.

Of all of the problems we face in higher education, I think the one that demands greatest attention is what some people call the "smorgasbord" approach to curriculum. Pick your course and pray it works. We've lost ground, I'm afraid, when it comes to general education.

"Contemporary Civilization" courses started at Columbia University after World War I and similar programs were installed at other prestigious colleges during the 1920s. The end of World War II saw a resurgence of interest in general education and in 1945 Harvard published its famous "General Education in Free Society" which influenced many other institutions. Over the years, though, we have seen an erosion of general education as it yielded to the competing demands for early specialization in an increasingly technological society.

Today, we find some concerned observers looking at the deficiencies of the graduates of the past 20 years and searching for a new approach to provide that common intellectual experience which marks the educated person. This is not to suggest that we should go back to the 1920s or even the 1940s. Rather we must move forward to develop new programs for new demands, at least for the rest of the century.

What do students entering college want? Intellectual growth is seldom mentioned these days. More likely, the answer to the question will be "to get into medical school" or "I want to be a lawyer," or "I can't get a good job without a degree."

We shouldn't fault them. But we should recognize that they have been encouraged to think narrowly. Their parents, their teachers, and their counselors seem to have overlooked the basic need for a broader understanding of current society, understanding gained from a study of civilizations across the centuries.

This is the path to intellectual enrichment. Study in the liberal arts brings flexibility of thinking, a capacity to understand people — to see another's viewpoint, to understand why a person thinks the way he does. It is very important that we provide a better understanding of the people who live outside of the United States — through study of their literature, religions, economic backgrounds, politics; their several histories and aspirations. And, a very special focus ought to be on the non-Western world. These are some of the imperatives for the new undergraduate curriculum.

We feel that our college, founded 10 years ago, provides a model for this. Our "World Studies" program was designed at a time when general education and specific distribution of requirements were rapidly disappearing from favor, but we persevered. And the risk was worth it. Our program survives, and we can demonstrate that such an approach works. Our research, using the undergraduates Record Examinations as a measure of general knowledge, shows that our students make significant percentile gains over four years and this is based on comparison with national norms.

Once again, priorities in higher education are changing. The need to return to more structured requirements is again at the top of the agenda. Even Harvard is beginning to announce the result of soul-searching and planning for change. Does this mean a trend toward more requirements, team teaching and interdisciplinary education of the type our college has already developed?

Probably not. There is likely to be a lot of discussion, but change is not easy. Cost is one factor. Another is structure. Colleges will have to deal, among other things, with faculty reluctance to disrupt a life's work based on narrow disciplinary interests and their training as specialists.

Still, the traditional liberal arts dividend of a more rewarding personal life remains a strong positive force. Not only is human understanding the most important ingredient of education, it also is the important result of the education process. It's exciting and effective because people — students — deep down are more interested in people than anything else. And, we are really in the business of preparing people to work with one another, to be more productive citizens.

The liberal arts should be seen as the most practical form of higher education available to a young person preparing to live in the uncertain, but surely smaller world of tomorrow.

Practical? Yes, for it provides a base of understanding and a capacity for analysis and synthesis which will always be in demand in the changing career process of the typical college graduate. JOSEPH D. COFFEE, JR., is president of Eisenhower College in Seneca Falls, New York.

Who Will Get Gary Gilmore's Hood?

By ROD MCKUEN

LOS ANGELES (NANA) — This is not about capital punishment or punishment in the capital. It's really an account of two circuses rivaling each other for attention.

Before the protest letters start arriving, I should make it clear that I am not comparing the elected president of the United States to the convicted killer in Utah — only the media's coverage of them both.

I guess you had to be there. Most of us were not, but through the magic of the media, last week's two biggest circuses were brought to us in living color on television and wide-column black and white in the press.

I speak, of course, of the inauguration of Jimmy Carter and the amount of attention in the world press, at a time when bridges collapsed, airplanes crashed, cold waves in country after country killed thousands, ships collided, ballets were cancelled, ballet stars shot themselves — well, you get the picture, it was not exactly a slow news week even though it would seem that only two rings of a potential three-ring circus, were holding the audience's attention.

But what a cast! Paul Anka, Geraldo Rivera, the attorney general and the governor of Utah, Lawrence Schiller, Playboy magazine, secluded widows, a judge named Ritter, the American Civil Liberties Union, Chevy Chase, James Dickey, Linda Rondstat, Muhammad Alli, Bette Davis, Red Foxx, an unknown folk singer whose name escapes me but who nevertheless was on prime-time television, singing one of his own original songs that contained, among other lines, "My name is Gary Gilmore and I'm gonna take a six pack with me when I go." No kidding.

More. Paul Newman, the governors of 14 states, the mayor of San Francisco, Beverly Sills and Paul Simon (not necessarily together), Loretta Lynn, Shirley MacLaine and Nichols and May (back together)...last but not least, the entire state of Texas.

There were green and white fireworks the night before one event, ashes sprinkled over an entire state the day after the other. Both events had souvenir hunters and hawkers and tee-shirts with the heroes' names emblazoned upon them. Both events had well-wishers and protest marchers and special sections cordoned off for the press.

Mexican-Americans ran a full-page ad addressed to Mr. Carter (a New York restaurant owner ran a somewhat more dignified, smaller ad), civil libertarians sent out appeals on behalf of future Gilmores.

Both Mr. Carter and Mr. Gilmore conceded they felt good about their coming event. Between the commercials, you could catch the grandstands going up in Washington, D.C., and the chair being carried off in Utah. And commercials are already in evidence for similar events to star Mondale in eight years, again in Washington, and Jerry Lane Jurek in Huntsville in perhaps eight weeks.

Geraldo Rivera choked back emotion as he was the first to show us the blood-stained chair Mr. Gilmore had sat in. Photographers waited breathlessly to catch the president's first swivel in his new oval-office chair.

Certainly if there are many more weeks like this, there will not be enough cracker jacks or balloons to go around.

Of course, I feel sorry for Paul Anka, an old friend and a fine songwriter, who lost out in his bid for the movie rights to Lawrence Schiller who got the works: the Playboy interview, the tape recordings, the movie rights and the front page of both Times on both coasts.

I don't know if Starsky or Hutch will play Gilmore in the movie, but it's probably a safe bet that Schiller will not ask Paul Anka to write the title song. Whether or not Motown of RCA puts out the recordings is, I'm sure, as yet undecided and only time will tell if Gilmore's Playboy interview will cause as much excitement as Mr. Carter's. The portion that has been released so far, while admitting murder and other very bad things, said nothing about lusting in his heart for a woman other than the one he had a suicide pact with (I understand it's virtually a tossup as to whether Faye Dunaway or Sandra Dee will get that role — no doubt it depends on the height of the actor).

Perhaps all that can be said about these two affairs has finally been said. We must, of course, await the live TV coverage of the execution to come from Texas — that should top even the ratings of "Gone With The Wind." (I did not by design choose a motion picture that has its setting in Georgia).

Many will feel the final summing up of the Gilmore extravaganza was best articulated by the governor of Utah, who, according to Bill Moyers, stated, "It was like seeing the Dow Jones hit one thousand." I preferred The New York Times version, who, quoting the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution, "Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines be imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted," and then added, "Is there no better way to decide what this amendment means?"

The Times, of course, was not addressing itself to capital punishment, which has little to do with the Gilmore circus, but to the circus itself.

It will take at least 100 days and perhaps some years to sum up best what the other circus meant. Meanwhile, for those of you who may have missed some of the other events of the week...Yugoslavia's prime minister died in an air crash. ERA passed in Indiana. And a bill that would ban discrimination against homosexuals in housing, employment and public accommodations passed in Florida — despite or because of Anita Bryant.

Miss Bryant stated that should the bill pass it would be "infringing upon my rights or rather discriminating against me as a citizen and a mother to teach my children of God's moral code, as stated in the Holy Scriptures."

Miss Bryant seems to have caught the mood of the moment, an eye for an eye. However, a word of advice, stay out of San Francisco, honey. Up there, as in your own state, certain automobiles are already sporting bumper stickers that read: BUY CALIFORNIA ORANGE JUICE — BOYCOTT BRYANT.

The rest of the news last week was far too complex to fit into my allotted space. However, it might be interesting to go out on this item — the afternoon of Gilmore's execution a bill was introduced in Utah to outlaw capital punishment.

One loose end need tying up. While Billy Carter has agreed to buy the president's peanut business, no one has yet told up who gets Mr. Gilmore's hood, or indeed what happened to it. Was it washed in cold water to remove the blood stains and prevent shrinkage so it can be used again? Will Mr. Schiller claim it to add that touch of reality in his film, missing in the execution? Perhaps it can be stitched up as a satchel to carry away the proceeds from the many commercial endeavors connected with the event.

An educated guess would see it being cut into small squares and sold as mementoes. They did it with the Beatie's sheets. At any rate, don't call us.

"Son, it's time you started settling down and finding yourself a good tax shelter."

Currency Troubles Abound

Most of the economic reports and forecasts are either bullish or favorable regarding the U.S. economy of 1977. Some have hedged their bets, but few are concerned with the international situation.

The United States is not an island and what happens in other countries will have some effect in the country. The world-wide currency problem has not abated. It has been quiet for a couple of weeks — but the problem remains.

The Canadian dollar is still under pressure — the Mexican peso has not stabilized — Britain still faces economic upheaval — Italy is a quagmire full of liras.

If the countries of South America with inflation and currency problems are added to the list of other less developed countries, the number of "problem" countries reaches alarming proportions.

The economic sickness around the world has been caused by politicians and those supporting the policy of printing-press currency. These persons believe that all that is needed is to print more currency and any economic woe can be solved.

Every political regime is analyzed constantly to see where they are going to lead the economy. This gives the impression that economics is a political thing. That the real world doesn't exist — that political actions can solve economic problems.

Program Support
Thus when a politician announces a new program, it is hailed by businessmen and workers alike. They all hope that this will solve their particular problem.

This comes from an ignorance of economic reality and a lack of understanding of how markets work. It seems so complicated that individuals have given up trying to understand what is happening and revert to supporting various political schemes which they believe will help them personally — and to heck with other considerations.

Karl Marx's philosophy contains one tenet that supports this belief — economic determinism.

Economic determinism means that everything is shaped by economics. Politics, religion, art, life styles, families are all shaped by economics according to this philosophy.

The strange part of this is that many who would consider themselves staunch free enterprisers accept portions of this philosophy without consideration.

This philosophy denies "reality" in economics. It is all a creature of the "state," economic determinists claim.

"The state can do anything." Communist countries don't have inflation, Communists say. Red China is a Booth Resigns As UB Pres.

BOSTON (AP) — Wallace W. Booth has resigned as president of United Brands Co., it was announced Friday.

Booth will be succeeded by Seymour Milstein, who has been vice chairman of the board.

Unofficial sources said Booth resigned in a policy disagreement.

In announcing the election of Milstein, board chairman Max M. Fisher said Booth agreed to continue with United Brands as a consultant.

Fisher's statement said Booth "had brought the company through a difficult period during the past 20 months."

Booth succeeded Eli Black, who committed suicide in a jump from the Pan Am building in New York on Feb. 3, 1975.

Booth left his office Friday without returning a call.

A United Brands spokesman told The Associated Press "there were some policy differences."

"They were resolved amicably. He's parting on good terms," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said Booth had no immediate plans. The resignation was submitted Friday and was acted on immediately.

Booth was a senior officer of Rockwell International before joining United Brands on May 12, 1975.

shining example of the Communist state, others say. Capitalism has failed, is a resounding chorus around the world.

These bromides are repeated and believed by many. The thinking and reasoning individual says to himself, "I wonder if I am wrong. Everyone seems to be going in a different direction than I am!"

Little Light
What has happened is that there is a tremendous amount of noise, words and pictures supporting the failure of free enterprise and capitalism — and very little light shown on the matter.

Let's take inflation in Communist countries. The state sets the price of goods. Therefore there can be no inflation or deflation because the state won't let the price be changed. By definition, there is no inflation — they say.

But look at the real situation. Take a pair of shoes. If Russia sets the price of shoes at let's say, 10 rubles. Assume this is a much cheaper price for shoes than in western countries. What happens?

First there are long lines in Russia to buy those shoes. You stand in line for hours to buy a pair. When you finally get to the purchase point you are told that they are all sold out. You will have to come back.

Now that pair of shoes you want is still quoted at the 10-ruble price — no inflation they say. But the hours you spend in line can be translated in rubles which should be added to the price you pay for the shoes.

When a product is not available, because the production was sold out due to the low price, more time will have to be spent before you can purchase them. Also, what does the price of an item mean when you cannot purchase the item itself.

Steak Prices
This reminds me of the joke about a butcher. "A customer went into a butcher shop and noticed the price of steak was $2.50 per pound. The customer complained to the butcher that his competitor down the street has the same steak for sale at $1.95 per pound.

The butcher said, "Why don't you go down the street and buy his steak?"

The customer replied, "He's sold all his steaks."

The butcher, retorted, "Come back to my shop when I have sold all my steaks and then I will let you buy them at $1.50 a pound."

There are "real" economic laws. You must produce to supply yourself and your family with the necessities of life and the luxuries you want.

True, force can be used to take away part of the production of the worker and give it to a non-producer. As long as the producers continue to produce in sufficient quantities, the non-producers can live off the producers.

But — at some point in time — the producer will refuse to produce — or reduce his production to a point of subsistence only not leaving no surplus for the non-producers.

This tack or revolution against those stealing his production are his alternatives.

The politician can impose force to enslave the producer as they have done in the Communist countries — but history has proved that the enslaved producer does not produce the quality and quantity that a free producer does.

Continental Ins. Gets 10% Of AIC

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Continental Insurance Co. of the United States announced Friday that it has acquired 10 per cent interest in Asia Insurance Co. of Hong Kong.

Asia Insurance Co., which is majority owned by Bangkok (Thailand) Bank, has a paid-up capital of $5.3 million.

It is associated with Asia Insurance Co. of Singapore and the Central Asia Insurance Co. of Indonesia, the statement said.

Continental, which recently opened a regional headquarters in Singapore, has placed $18.8 million in the Asian dollars market through its subsidiary, Firemen's Insurance Company of Newark, N.J., the statement added.

Continental has joint ventures in Malaysia, the Philippines, Taiwan and Japan.

British Interest Rates Dropping

LONDON (AP) — The trend toward lower British interest rates accelerated Friday as the Bank of England announced it was cutting its minimum lending rate (MLR) 1 point to 12 1/4 per cent, effective today.

The MLR now is at its lowest level since October. On Jan. 21, the bank lowered the MLR 3/4-point to 13 1/4 per cent.

Friday's reduction is expected to put pressure on major commercial banks to lower their base lending rates again this week. Barclays, Midland, National Westminster and Lloyds all cut their base rates — rates on loans to their best corporate customers — to 13 per cent from 14 per cent Tuesday. There was speculation that the banks soon would introduce a 12 1/2 per cent rate.

The MLR reduction is the largest since the central bank last October boosted the rate to a record high of 15 per cent. The 2-point rise at the time was seen by some as a near-panic measure to protect sterling, fund the government's deficit and slow the rate of growth in the money supply.

However, the situation in the last four months has changed radically.

This month, speculative funds have been flowing into sterling rather than out of it; the government's success in selling bonds has eliminated any worries over funding the British deficit, and the money supply in the past few weeks has been falling rather than rising.

Up until two weeks ago, the Bank of England had been able to pursue the government's state policy of slowing reducing interest rates. The MLR had been cut 1/4-point four times between late November and the start of 1977.

But then the flood of money, much of it from overseas, into government bonds caused authorities to decide that a faster drop in interest rates could be allowed.

The government has been able to place bonds worth more than $12 billion in the last four months.

Some financial advisers, however, are beginning to wonder how long the boom in British bonds will last.

A senior director of one merchant bank, with links both to New York and Europe, says he is telling clients to lock in their profits.

There is also some question of how much longer sterling will be a desired currency due to the sharp drop in British interest rates.

The Bank of England has been purchasing dollars this month both to build up reserves and to keep the pound from appreciating too greatly. However, foreign exchange dealers reported Friday that the bank had been forced to change positions, buying sterling to try to maintain the value of the British currency.

Canadian Paper Mills Shipment Declines 5.3%

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian paper mills shipped 768,243 tons of newsprint during December, down 5.3 per cent from November, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said Thursday.

But the December total was far above the 365,068 tons shipped in December 1975, when many mills were idled by strikes.

Shipments to the United States in the latest month of 537,766 tons were down 6.4 per cent from November. Shipments in 1977 totaled 261,240 tons.

Canadian newsprint mills operated at 91 per cent of rated capacity in December, compared with 95 per cent the previous month and only 40 per cent a year earlier.

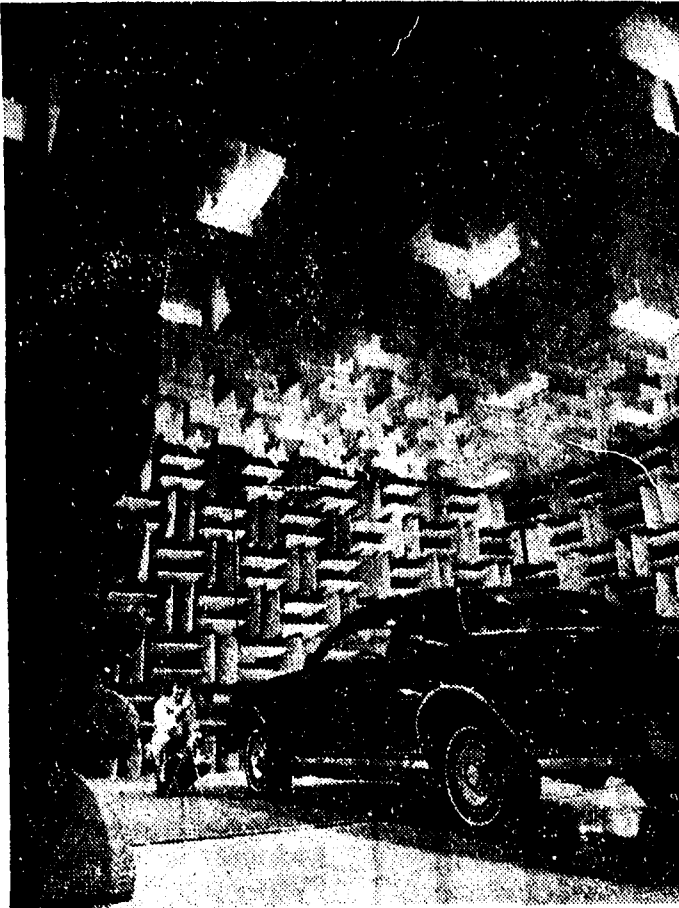

December production totaled 717,068 tons, down 9.6 per cent from November and up from the December 1975 total of 323,851 tons.

Fairchild Chairman Will Step Down

MONTAIN VIEW — (BW) — Roswell L. Gilpatrick announced his intention to retire as chairman of the board of Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. after the annual shareholders meeting May 6.

He will continue as a director of the company.

The board said Gilpatrick will be succeeded by Wilfred J. Corrigan, president and chief executive officer, who will retain his present title.

SEMI-ANECHOIC ROOM — General Tire & Rubber Co.'s semi-anechoic room was designed to test tire noise levels. The hundreds of pie-shaped fiberglass wedges — four feet in length form the walls and ceilings, were designed to screen out certain frequency ranges. This allows engineers to evaluate tire noise without picking up extraneous sound.

Yamani Predicting OPEC Meet Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, believes discussions will begin soon with other oil-producing nations aimed at ending the two-tier price system in effect since December. The New York Times reported Friday.

In a dispatch from Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, the newspaper said Yamani believes market forces will drive prices down from the current boost of 10 per cent and 5 per cent more in July that 11 OPEC members proclaimed last month.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, at the December meeting in Qatar of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, held their increases to 5 per cent.

In an interview with The Times, Yamani said the two-stage, 15 per cent hike is "far away from what we think is reasonable," adding at least one producer — Indonesia — already has cut its increase to 6 per cent.

Yamani said Indonesia's oil

minister is expected in the Saudi Arabian capital city of Riyadh in the next few days to discuss the situation, and predicted that other oil nations also would meet soon with the Saudis.

The oil minister told The Times that because oil-consuming nations had built up large stockpiles in anticipation of the proclaimed increases, OPEC members' production is down and the new prices have not taken effect.

But the oil minister did not say what the current or predicted oil prices are.

U.S. Home To Acquire Homcraft

MIAMI (AP) — Officials of U.S. Home Corp. of Clearwater, Fla., the nation's largest home builder, say the firm has agreed in principle to acquire Homcraft Corp. and make Homcraft's president the chief executive of U.S. Home.

Homcraft President Guy Odom headed U.S. Home's Houston division until he started his own company in 1973.

If U.S. Home stockholders approve in June, the company will sell Odom 134,078 shares of stock for $1 million. The agreement is subject to an audit of Homcraft and to approval of both firms' bankers.

Privately-held Homcraft, a Texas and Louisiana builder, expects earnings of $1.7 million on revenue of $48 million for the year ending Feb. 28, a spokesman said.

U.S. Home has been without a president since June when Benjamin Harrison resigned. He had favored expansion into non-construction fields but directors disagreed, a spokesman said.

No New England Refinery Planned

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — If Shell Oil Co. strikes oil off New England, the firm will transport the crude to a mid-Atlantic refinery, either by pipeline or in tankers, a spokesman said Friday.

The oil company has no plans to build a refinery in New England, even if it finds large quantities of petroleum in the proposed drilling area on Georges Bank.

Samuel M. Paine, Shell's production manager, commented after addressing a meeting of the New England Daily Newspaper Association.

"Shell has refineries in New Jersey and Delaware," Paine said. "In the near term, we don't see a need for more refining capacity."

If necessary, he said, the other refineries could be enlarged.

CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

GM Seeks 8 Million Cars

By TOM KLEENE
Knight News Wire

DETROIT — General Motors Corp., looking for more than eight million vehicles whose owners have not responded to safety recall campaigns, is launching a computer-aided system aimed at reducing that number by half.

The computer, in response to a touch-telephone or teletypewriter inquiry from a GM dealership, will provide instant information on whether a particular GM vehicle is a recall no-show and, if so, will describe the repairs it needs.

The system, which is being offered to GM's 13,000 U.S. dealers at no charge, is intended for use on cars and trucks brought into a dealership for service or on new and used vehicles that are in inventory.

"The response to our campaigns has not been what we would like it to be," GM service director O. Robert Pansa told a news conference Thursday. "It is very difficult to locate each and every vehicle involved."

"This new computerized system is designed to help us identify vehicles on which safety recall campaign services have not been performed."

According to Pansa, the computerized program is the first of its kind in the automobile industry and will cover all recall campaigns initiated by GM after Oct. 1, 1970.

GM's eight million no-shows represent about 30 per cent of the approximately 28 million cars that it has recalled since the automobile industry began these campaigns under government mandate in 1966.

The automakers are required to notify the registered owner of each recalled vehicle by certified mail as well as to perform the necessary repairs at no cost to the owner.

"And in many cases, we have attempted to follow up on the certified letter when the owner has not responded," Pansa said. "But we have frequently had difficulty in tracking down an owner who may have moved to a new address, or a car when it has been sold to another owner." Even in the widely publicized Chevrolet motor mount campaign, which involved 6.6 million vehicles in 1970, he said, the response by owners was only 63.6 per cent.

Federal Mortgage Growth Rises 446%

By BARBARA TAYLOR
Register Real Estate Editor

The 446 per cent increase since 1968 in the government's involvement in mortgage market was cited Friday by the head of the federal Home Loan Bank Board as a "disturbing trend."

While government funds in the mortgage market skyrocketed, he said other lending institution involvement in the secondary market has increased to a much lesser extent and life insurance involvement in the field was off $12 billion or a 41 per cent decrease.

Marston cited several other impediments to extending the mortgage market base including the "mandatory" elimination of the due-on-sale clause, the pre-payment penalty, interest on escrows and underwriting criteria and foreclosure requirement procedures.

A stable mortgage market implies more participants, he said, adding he is against excessive regulations, laws and mortgage allocations.

"While their purpose may be good, they are costing people money. Is there a cost-benefit ratio," he asked.

Marston, a Republican who expects to be replaced in the Carter administration said in 1977 he expects a five to six per cent rate of inflation. "We should be concerned about both the impact of the freeze in the East and the drought in the Rockies and the West," he said. "This well could impact the CPI." "Consumer

Despite the savings inflow into S&Ls and thrift institutions during 1976 and expected continuation of that trend, because of the weighted average of home prices, the "dollar relatively will not be more plentiful if figured on a per unit cost, he said.

He predicts 1.31 million single family home starts during 1977 and 470,000 multifamily units for a total of from 1.78 to 1.9 million.

As for Carter's program, Marston said the year should be good and there isn't much he can do to "mess it up, so if I were Carter I would come up with a whole flurry of high sounding programs and not fund one of them."

"In the words of a Georgia philosopher, 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it,' he said. He said he believes Carter should do all he can to control inflation.

South Korea Looks For Fishing Areas

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea, faced with serious setbacks in its fishing operations in the north pacific, plans to develop new fishing grounds around New Zealand, Australia and the Antarctic, the Office of Fisheries said today.

Because of 200-mile fishing zones proclaimed by the United States and the Soviet Union, South Korea fears that its deepsea fish catches will be drastically cut back in the North Pacific, the major Korean fishing area.

'Rags To Riches' In 4 Years

By SAM CAMPBELL
Register Associate Editor

Four years ago, Mrs. Dora Odom, 40, of Huntington Beach was on welfare. Twice divorced, she was the sole support of her five children. Her secretary's paycheck wouldn't stretch. Her credit was gone.

"I couldn't borrow a dime" is the way she described her plight.

Today she has a substantial net worth and is engaged in building projects that total hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"I did it all on real estate purchases," she said. Her swift financial progress was verified by a brokerage involved in transactions to which she was a party.

Other than supporting her family, Mrs. Odom didn't really start out on a quest for wealth.

Her real passion was to help a number of emotionally disturbed patients with whom she had been working. She became involved in this field, when she started to work in a state mental hospital as an offset to the welfare dollars she had been receiving. During this period, she studied and became a psychiatric technician.

One day she read in The Register that then Gov. Ronald Reagan was planning to shut down a number of state institutions for the mentally ill. She correctly forecast that non-dangerous patients would be housed in private homes. Her only resource was the rent money for her own home and the grocery money to feed her children. She decided on a gamble.

Her decision was to open a residence for schizophrenics. "It was a risk," she said. "I had to bet that I would get the residents and that I would get my rent money back in two weeks."

She won the bet. Her first residential-care project was in Anaheim. Eventually she opened five more — buying four of the properties.

Believing she could do more for the occupants if she could house them in one locality, she sold the houses with a lease-back provision and bought land on Warner Avenue.

The property happened to be in the vicinity of another construction site. The developer wanted to buy her out. Because of a zone change, her parcel could not be used as she envisioned, a place for housing her schizophrenic tenants.

So she gambled again. "No," she told the neighboring developer, "I won't sell. I will develop the property myself."

With the help of a partner, she did. The project proved a financial success. It is providing the means by which she is negotiating for a site on which to construct other housing for her schizophrenic residents.

Schizophrenics, she said, are not dangerous per se. To be a schizophrenic is not the same as being a psychopath. The latter, she said, is a schizophrenic, but not all schizophrenics are psychopaths.

She voiced a need for a sheltered-work program. The schizophrenic personality is painted into an unemployment corner. Usually, a job application will ask about any history of emotional disturbance.

"If he tells the truth, he doesn't get the job," Mrs. Odom said. "If he tells a lie, he doesn't get the job." An employer check could reveal the emotional problem.

This type of personality, she explained, tends to be self-conscious about taking the pills that the afflicted must have to feel and behave normally. She advises them to answer, when asked, that they have a chemical disorder requiring medication. From her experience she is convinced the ailment arises from a deficiency.

"Like diabetes," she said. "At one time diabetes wasn't understood either."

She believes the stigma of schizophrenia will diminish when public understanding increases.

Real estate ventures were not Mrs. Odom's first experience as an enterprise. At one time she owned a successful take-out food stand. In one month she had two offers from substantial firms for backing on a chain. Marital difficulties sent that dream crashing and put her on the welfare rolls.

As a sideline, Mrs. Odom likes to offer encouragement to women who, like herself, are divorced.

"Often they feel they can't take care of themselves. I say, 'Who took care of you before you were married?' They say they've lost their skills. I say, 'Okay, there's school. Get some skills.' I take advantage of everything that is being offered. No limitations except what you set for yourself."

The last sentence is an inheritance from her father. She credits her own progress to the teaching of her father and the discipline of her mother.

"My father was philosophical type. He studied for the priesthood in Mexico, but left because priests were being killed. He worked as a waiter, gone most of the time. He taught me and my brothers and sisters, the only limit is the limit we put on ourselves."

"And that's what I tell my residents," she said. "I don't baby. I don't pamper. And I don't feel sorry for them."

"They say, 'You don't know what it is to get welfare. You don't know what it is to stand in the foodstamp line and have other people look at you.' I say, 'Look, I was there.'"

Born in El Paso in a Mexican culture, Mrs. Odom said she didn't know how to speak English until after she started to school. I remember crying in class because I couldn't talk. I don't even remember when I started speaking English."

Mrs. Odom has a personal goal. She expects to form her own development company.

Why venture on her own? She explained:

"If I have a partner, I don't really know how much I did. If I do something by myself, I know."

As to the possibility of mistakes?

"You're bound to make mistakes. That's what you learn from. Some think if you make a mistake, all you can expect are more mistakes. I made mistakes, but you learn fast when you have to."

As to risks? "All life is a risk. At times you have to take risks to get anywhere. If we never take a risk, we will always be where we're at."

Immigrants Catch Up In Pay In 13 Years

STANFORD - (BW) - On the average, immigrants take about 13 years to match the earnings of native born Americans of comparable age, schooling and area of residence, a new study (using 1970 census data) shows.

The findings were reported by Barry Chiswick, former senior staff economist with the Council of Economic Advisors, now a senior fellow at the Hoover Institution of Stanford.

Five years after immigration, foreign born white men have average earnings 10 per cent lower than native born whites, he said. After 20 years, however, they average 6 per cent higher earnings. After 30 years they are ahead by 13 per cent.

"Although the earnings of immigrants are initially low, they rise rapidly with time in the United States as immigrants acquire the skills and knowledge relevant to the United States," he said.

"After not too many years, immigrants have higher earnings than the native born. This arises from the apparent selectivity bias in migration - the tendency for the immigrants to have disproportionately high ability or be highly motivated workers."

In 1970, 9.6 million Americans were foreign born, roughly 5 per cent of the total population.

Except for those born in Mexico, the country of origin was not significantly related to earnings, once schooling, age and other factors were taken into account, Chiswick found.

Those born in Mexico had averaged earnings 33 per cent lower than U.S. born white males. After 15 years in the United States, those born in Mexico had earnings similar to those of Spanish surname persons born in the United States.

Comparison of the Mexican born and the Spanish surname Americans "suggest that the earnings disadvantage of immigrants... is not because they were born in Mexico, but largely reflects problems shared in common with native born Mexican-Americans."

Airwest Reports Doubled Net

SAN FRANCISCO - (BW) - Hughes Airwest reported a preliminary net profit of $3.5 million for 1976, more than double the $1.7 million profit the previous year.

It was the airline's fifth consecutive year in the black. Operating profits were $6.6 million, up from $2.7 million in 1975.

Russell V. Stephenson, acting general manager, attributed last year's earnings to improved economic conditions that provided the impetus for traffic increase in the last half of the year, coupled with the success of expanded air service in key markets. Both also helped offset inflation.

GM Workers Get Rebates On Purchases

DETROIT (BW) - More than 500,000 General Motors hourly employees and hourly retirees in the United States will be able to receive cash refunds ranging from $200 to $500 on the purchase of new vehicles under a plan announced by GM president Eliaht M. Estes.

Estes said the new vehicle refund allowance plan for hourly-rate employees and retirees will be effective with vehicles delivered on or after Feb. 1.

General Motors' active hourly-rate employees with at least one year seniority and retired hourly rate employees are eligible to participate in the plan.

Energy, Jobs Link Cited By Oilman

MEMPHIS, Tenn. - (BW) - The nation's energy problem is, in reality, a jobs, income, quality of life and personal freedom problem. Randall Meyer, Exxon USA president, said.

Speaking before the Economic Club of Memphis, Meyer said that unfortunately the energy problem is still not perceived in this manner because it has not been expressed in those terms. "But there is, in fact, a very close relationship between energy and the economy," he said.

Meyer said in broad terms, the solution to the nation's energy problem can be characterized as consisting of "twin economic imperatives, one of providing sufficient additional energy to support economic growth and the other to develop new domestic energy supplies and thereby reduce our dependency on foreign sources."

"What we cannot do is to delay those near-term decisions on coal development, nuclear development, oil and gas development and conservation while we speculate on when solar or fusion will be available in significant quantities. If we don't develop our conventional resources in the near-term, we aren't going to be able to sustain a viable economy and standard of living," he said.

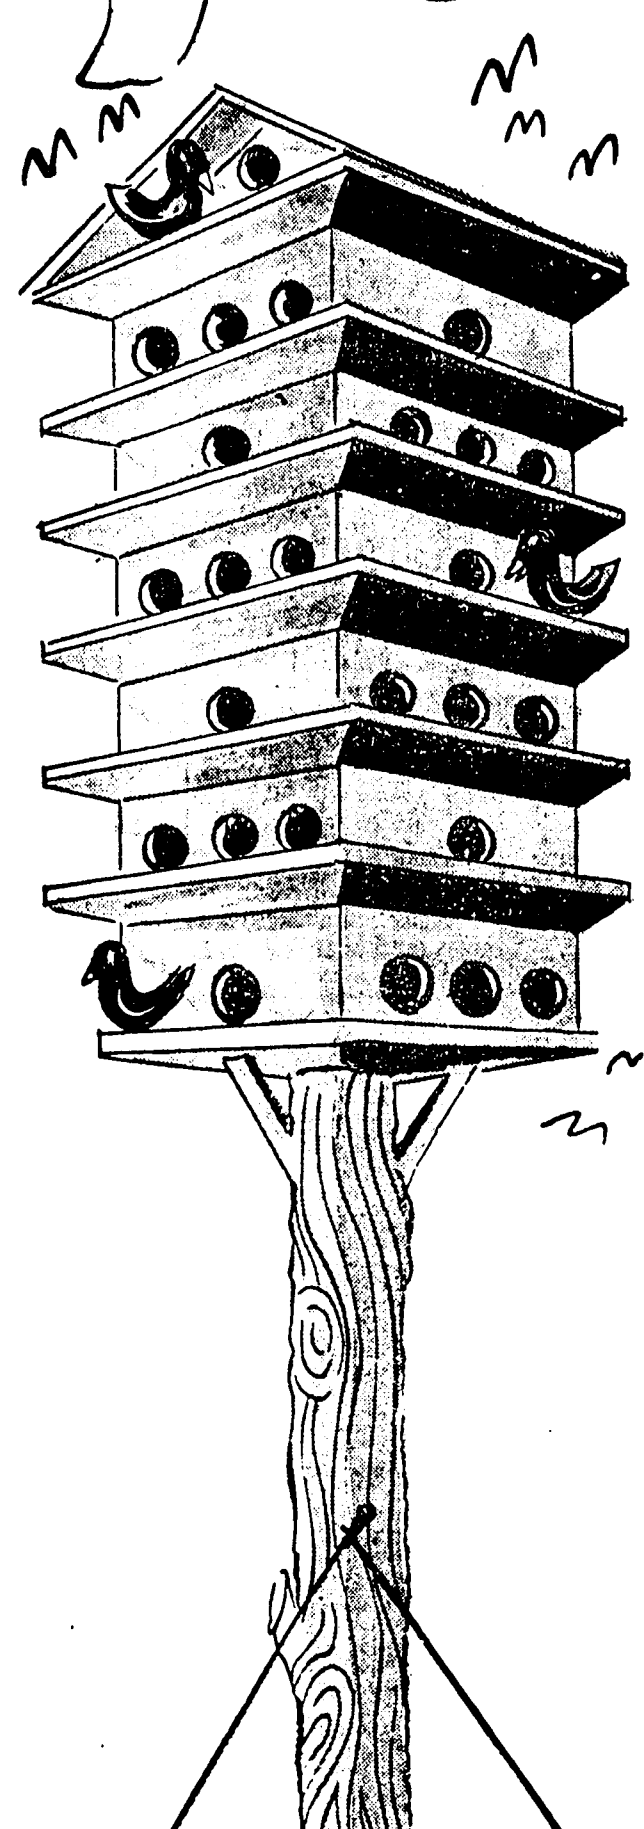

"The practical problem, of course, is that all of the required actions are basically distasteful to large segments of the populace and this is why I am concerned about the outcome," he said.

Gourmets Create Authentic Foreign Meal

By JO ANN MINEIT
Register Staff Writer

It is difficult to think of a social or recreational activity in American society which does not revolve around, or at least involve, eating and drinking. What fun is a ball game without a hot dog in one hand and a cold beer in the other? A movie without popcorn and a soft drink?

To host an elegant soiree without offering caviar and champagne would be utterly gauche. And what would a cocktail party be without cocktails and hors d'oeuvres? Or a barbecue without something to barbecue and something to sip.

To the gracious hostess, "entertaining" involves, foremost, not what to do but what to eat, what to drink.

Because each society and culture has foods and traditions distinct to its region or country, many people, from the suburban housewife to the amateur chef to the connoisseur of fine cuisine, have become increasingly curious about the culinary customs of other countries.

Thus, a novel style of dinner party has emerged, appropriately termed a "gourmet" dinner group which is aimed specifically for the sophisticated palate.

Perhaps the largest of such groups in the county to hold these formal parties with a potluck-style format is the Villa Park Gourmet Dinner Group which is comprised of Villa Park Women's Club members and their husbands and boasts approximately 100 participants.

Consuming and imbibing is not the only purpose it serves, however, according to Elsie Everett, chairman of the dinner group. The monthly event provides couples with an opportunity to become acquainted with each other. And most consider it to be a cultural as well as a social experience. It also gives everyone a chance to experiment with preparing and sampling regional foods from throughout the country and exotic dishes from all over the world — and at a nominal expense.

In order to accommodate the large group, yet provide intimate dinner parties, each month's theme is hosted in the homes of several members. To accomplish this, the chairman sets up a rotation system whereby couples are grouped differently each month.

Each aspect of the monthly event is an experience in itself, agreed many of the members. First, there is the extensive research on the background and customs of the region or country selected. Then comes the menu selection followed by the often difficult search for hard-to-locate specialty food items. Even the planning of a decor demands a flair of authenticity, with the end result being an elegant, all-evening dinner party.

The important thing, according to Elsie, is to experiment with typical foods of each area, not just the exotic.

However, noted Darlene Lundgren, if you're doing a country like Italy, for example, you try to choose unusual foods and get away from lasagna and spaghetti.

Or you might try something really far out — like the ancient-Rome theme Ginger Kleerup hosted.

"We researched what and how the ancient Romans ate and ended up with a dinner where we served only wine and offered no silverware."

Women's libbers would surely frown upon the format of that party. However, it was all done for the sake of authenticity.

While husbands reclined on chaise lounges, the wives rotated amongst the men fetching them food and drink.

"Each woman had one 'master' for each course," Ginger explained, "and the foods served were strictly finger foods — cornish game hens, shrimp and crab, ribs, fruit and cheese."

Sherry Zakowicz, founder and first president of Villa Park Women's Club, is responsible for the gourmet group's inception eight years ago when Villa Park was a relatively new city. She and her husband, Bill, moved to Villa Park from Massachusetts where they had participated in a similar group and found it to be an excellent way for people to get acquainted.

Sherry hosted one of January's Armenian dinners during which she explained a few of the rules: The seating arrangement is wife-husband, alternately — but you can't sit next to your own spouse.

If you don't like the authentic wine selected by the hostess, you never ask for a California chablis or burgundy — to do so is considered to be quite "tacky." And if the beverage peering up at you from the demitasse appears a bit murky, you must quietly refrain from requesting coffee with cream and sugar.

In reference to the Slivovitz she selected as an after-dinner drink, Sherry admitted, "I have perfume that tastes better," and switched to an alternate pistachio liqueur.

To further enhance the foreign flavor of the evening, Cindy Lasof surprised guests with her rendition of an authentic belly dance.

Sherry recalled another time when a dozen live lobsters arrived at her home for a New England feast — they were the feast. One guest, however, was unable to eat the sea creatures — the one who brought them. She'd affectionately named them all.

Although the women do extensive research in preparation for each meal, on occasion they opt to reject traditional customs.

Like one gourmet dinner with an African theme.

"They truly do use pure blood from beef," winced Audrey Gustafson. "They have a mechanism to take blood from the jugular vein of cattle which they mix with meal."

But most culinary customs aren't quite so distasteful.

"Sometimes we do get a little timid," Audrey conceded, "but the way I feel, if it isn't good, we won't starve. I'd rather take the risk and try having something different."

Describing the type of individuals who enjoy a gourmet dinner group, Ginger said, "We are people who like to eat and who like to do a little more in the way of cooking."

"One couple belong," she said, "because the husband insists his wife learn to cook."

Prepare To Pare Pounds With Pears

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Fresh fruit is the former fatty's friend. But too many of Mother Nature's sweets are fair-weather friends, abandoning the marketplace when we need winter solace most. Ah blueberries, peaches, juicy nectarines...where are you now?

But not the reliable pear. Midwinter is the best time to enjoy this succulent sweet...a bargain at only 100 calories! There's nothing more delightful than a pear at its moment of perfection.

Trouble is, a pear's "moment" of perfection is just that — lasting a day or so, no more. Pears are often rock-hard and unsweet when purchased. They must wait awhile, a few days perhaps, before reaching that gently-resistant state that signals perfect ripeness. Eat at once; pears quickly turn mealy-textured.

To use pears imaginatively, consider them as a replacement for apples in any favorite fruit combination.

How about a Pear Waldorf Salad with low-cal mayonnaise? Or make homemade chunky "pear sauce," no sugar needed!

Or try these:

CRANBERRY PEAR COMPOTE

1 cup whole cranberry sauce

OPTIONAL — 1 tablespoon honey or equivalent sugar substitute

pinch of cinnamon, ginger, allspice

3 pears, pared, cored, quartered

3 sweet eating oranges, peeled and cut in large chunks

Combine in baking dish. Cover and

bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Serve warm or cold. Eight servings, 120 calories each.

BLUSHING POACHED PEARS

8 fresh pears

1 cup Port, Red Sangria or Concord grape wine

1 cup cold water

3 whole cloves

1 tablespoon arrowroot

optional — sugar substitute to equal one-half cup (check label)

Cut pears in half lengthwise; don't peel. Remove cores. Put cut-side up in a shallow frying pan and pour on the wine and one-half cup water. Add clove and cinnamon. Cover and simmer gently until just tender, about 8 to 10 minutes.

Remove pears with a slotted spoon. Stir arrowroot and remaining cold water together and stir into liquid in the skillet, cook and stir until thick. Remove from heat and stir in sugar substitute to taste.

Pour over pears, serve warm or chilled. Each half, plus "syrup" about 60 calories.

FRUITED POACHED PEARS — substitute unsweetened fruit juice (orange, pineapple, apple, apricot, grape) for the wine. For extra natural sweetness, add a small box of golden raisins (1 and one-half ounces) to the poaching liquid.

MINTED POACHED PEARS — substitute one-quarter cup green cream de menthe and three-quarters cup water for the wine. Garnish with springs of fresh mint, if you wish.

QUICK PEAR SALAD — 1 unpeeled cored fresh pear, diced; 1 cup diced

celery, one-half cup low-calorie blue cheese dressing. Combine and serve on lettuce. Serves four, 53 calories each.

What's the calorie count of your favorite cake mix? Some are bargains, others aren't! For calories by brand name, and recipes for decalorizing popular desserts, send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 35 cents to SLIM GOURMET MIX TRICKS, in care of The Register, Sparta, N.J. 0787

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

Plants Adapt To Indoor Life From Many Areas

By LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Have you often wondered where your houseplants originally came from? The ability plants have to adjust to growing conditions in our homes is a true miracle. Plants suitable for indoor growing may be divided into three groups:

TROPICAL PLANTS — They grow naturally in the hot steamy tropics of Central and South America, Africa and Indonesia, where the light is often filtered through higher layers of foliage, the temperature and humidity are high and relatively steady and the soil often consists of a thin layer of spongy, partially decayed vegetation.

SUB-TROPICAL PLANTS — From countries such as India, China, Japan, the shores of the Mediterranean, the South African veld, Australia and our own Southern states. Regions where there is considerably more difference between the seasons, where summer days are warm and sunny and winter is comparatively short with the lowest temperature about 40 degrees, and where there is fairly high humidity and reasonable rainfall, more or less evenly distributed throughout the year.

DESERT PLANTS — Native to the deserts of the Southwestern United States, Mexico, South America, Africa, the Middle East and Australia, where there is intense sunlight every day, it seldom rains and the humidity is low. The temperature is high by day and often drops sharply at night.

The plants do their very best for us, so we certainly owe our best in caring for them. We can also see how evolved plants are and, through them, realize our potential for change and growth. Happy growing!

(Now available, the Mother Earth Plantasia album of warm earth music for plants. Send checks or money orders for $5.50, including postage and handling, to Western International Premiums, in care of The Register, P.O. Box 80817, Los Angeles, Calif. 90080. Divorce Among The Middle-Aged: A Common Modern Day Malady

By KIKI LEVATHES
New York News

NEW YORK — Dr. Spock did it. Not to mention Rollo May, Martha Mitchell, Nelson Rockefeller, Eugene McCarthy, Gov. Marvin Mandel, and Sens. Lowell Weicker and Herman Talmadge.

God help us, even columnist Ann Landers, the lady with all the answers, confessed she didn't have the answer to this one — and she did it, too.

Splitting late in life. It seems to be happening to more people, more often and with hardly a raised eyebrow. It's almost expected among a certain group of well-to-do, mobile middle-aged people. Almost chic.

"Why, everyone in Great Neck in their 40s is getting divorced," said an attractive 45-year-old divorcee. "Why not? It's so much more interesting than staying married."

The National Center for Health Statistics reported 2,126,000 marriages in the country last year, 1,026,000 divorces, and a divorce rate of 4.8 per 1,000 population. That compares with 1,800,000 marriages, 479,000 divorces, and a divorce rate of 2.5 in 1965. Psychiatrists and family therapists are talking about a "divorce virus" or a "divorce epidemic," and, with the dramatic increase in divorce among all ages, Dr. Philip Guerin, director of the Center for Family Learning in New Rochelle, believes there is a substantial jump, particularly in the 40-50 age group.

"Some couples are so frightened by the number of divorces in their neighborhoods, that they come to us just to talk about what they can do to prevent divorce," he said. The center, which is internationally recognized for its work in family therapy, counsels about 150 families a week.

Lawyers also testify to this increase in the late-in-life divorce.

"About 50 per cent of my clients are in their 40s and 50s — that's double what it was 10 years ago," said New York matrimonial lawyer Burton I. Monasch.

"For the first time I even had a few clients recently in their 70s.

"One of my 70-year-old clients had a stroke. The fact that he didn't get along with his wife of 40 years, he believed, was the reason he had the stroke. While he was in the hospital, he gave instructions to the staff that he didn't want his wife to visit him. When he left, he moved into the home of his girl friend who was in her 50s and he never saw his wife again."

In her autobiography, "Private Faces-Public Places," Abigail McCarthy, wife of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, wrote candidly about her husband's 1968 presidential campaign and the havoc it brought to their 24-year-marriage.

"A political wife's career is that of her husband. He needs her. If she has another career she can be of little help to him, but she has nothing when he leaves or is rejected in political life. Inevitably, inexorably, unless the wife becomes her husband's actual office aide the congressional husband and wife begin to live separate lives....

"Gene left our home in August of 1969. He had long since come to the conclusion that the concept of life-long fidelity and shared life come what may 'for richer, for poorer,' etc. — for which we agreed in church — was no longer valid."

What goes wrong after 20 or 30 years of married life? And what does the future hold for these middle-aged singles? To answer these questions we talked to a dozen psychiatrists, family therapists, marriage counselors, and lawyers. There was (surprisingly, perhaps, for any group of specialists), general agreement about the reasons for the rise in the divorce rate among 40-and-50-year-olds, which are outlined below.

GENERAL ACCEPTANCE OF DIVORCE. The stigma against divorce has faded. "Older middle-aged couples grew up in a time when social prohibitions against divorce were strong and people stayed together regardless," said Dr. Henry Grayson, executive director of the Institute for Psychotherapy here. "Now, they look around and say, 'It's OK for the Joneses. It's OK for me.'"

THE EMPTY NEST. The kids leave. It's one on one again. Sometimes couples face each other and they don't know who the other is. They've grown apart. They're strangers. Or, long-buried or ignored grievances come to the surface.

END OF THE ROAD IN SIGHT. The late 40s and early 50s tend to be a stressful time in general for both men and women and take a toll in the best of marriages, according to Dr. Tom Fogarty, a family specialist with Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

While women are coping with menopausal changes and looking for new purposes in life now that the child-rearing function is over, men are peaking in their careers and discovering that long-sought-after goals, once attained, really weren't worth it after all.

SEX, LOST YOUTH. "The typical situation used to be that the man picked up after 25 years and went off with his 19-year-old secretary," said Mara Gleckel, co-director of the Womens Counseling Service of New York. "Now, it's the woman who is taking off. In her late 30s or early 40s she is at the peak of her sexual cycle."

"Both men and women go for the icing — and forget the cake, and sometimes, they suffer greatly. After the fun is over, most miss a long-term relationship and commitment."

WOMEN'S LIB. The women's movement of the last 10 years, certainly encouraged women to develop a sense of self and expect more out of life. It opened their eyes to new options and life styles in addition to home and family. "No doubt the movement gave external support to unhappily married women to face the loneliness outside of marriage," said Dr. Jessie Turberg of the Nathan Ackerman Institute. "She knew it wouldn't be a bed of roses, but she would try it."

Elderly Group Advised To Fight Prejudice Against Aged

By STAN WULFF
Register Staff Writer
People over 65 years should take up a useful occupation.

organize as a political force,
and follow their social inclinations. Dr. Alex Comfort told a large crowd of elderly persons filling the auditorium of the South Coast Community Hospital in South Laguna.

Dr. Comfort, author of the books "A Good Age" and
"The Joy of Sex," told the oldsters that "sexual performance does not change with age; the male may respond slower but he gets more miles
to the gallon."

Urging the audience to fight
a widespread "prejudice against the old," he told them to "write your congressman

so that the Institute of Aging
gets as well funded as any South American dictator."

Research now underway into experimental gerontology
could help to substantially slow the process of aging, said
the London-born physician who moved to Santa Barbara
in 1974, where he is a Fellow at the Institute for Higher Studies.

A short term goal for research would be to slow aging
so that a 70-year-old would have the body of a person 10 years younger, said Dr.
Comfort.

Long term research would require human biology experiments that would last a lifetime of 80 years, he said.

Meanwhile, old people are subject to prejudice as bad as that directed against ethnic groups and other minorities,
said the doctor.

The only difference is, he said, that we eventually all join the minority of the old.

People say that the old are
"unemployable, asexual, and go crazy easily," he said. The truth is, he added, that fewer old people are crazy than younger groups.

If an old person goes insane,
it is because of some disease or curable dysfunction, or because "we drive him crazy,"
said Dr. Comfort. Another reason may be "over-medication."

He related a case of a patient who was taking 41 different kinds of medicine from three different doctors, plus a couple borrowed from a friend. "No wonder, he got zoned," he said.

To remain in good health a person needs work, enough money, a home, and somebody who cares, he said.

Work is the biggest preservation of all." But it should be useful, paid work.

Older people need to stay in their own homes where they can maintain a measure of independence while receiving
"minimal" assistance and be much happier than in a nursing home, he said.

It is a myth that all old people have special needs, he said. "The needs are not that different: a wheel chair may be used just as much by a young person as an old."

Of all persons in the over-65
group, only 15 per cent receive welfare, food stamps,
and similar support. The other 85 per cent live on their savings, pensions and investments.

And only four to five per cent live in institutions. It is a minority among the old that require most of the medical attention, he said, while 75 per cent will stay well until their last illness.

"You can be a very strong political force," he told the audience, predicting that the next generation (of older people) will become much more demanding.

Remember The Miniskirt? It's Making Slow Comeback

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The miniskirt. You remember, that merest suggestion of a coverup, that excuse for a dress that glorified ankle, calf, knee, thigh — and frequently a bit more.

It was the stuff of which bad jokes were made. It made an industry of pantyhose and an historical marker of the office drinking fountain.

Well, after seven years of banishment by the fashion arbiters, the miniskirt is making a comeback. Not too fast. Not too short. Not for everybody. Not for everybody.

But a comeback. Of course, here and there — what with holdouts like Mary Hartman around — the mini, like the beehive hairdo, never went out of style.

Some Paris designers, like Pierre Cardin and Kenzo, are showing minis strictly for playwear, at the beach, on the cruise ship or at the resort. And there are some shorter cocktail dresses. It remains to be seen whether women will approve. There surely won't be a mini revolution and, fashion experts say, few women would shuck their wardrobe of longer, comfortable skirts for frivolous frocks.

After all, some suspect the mini had a greater and more zealous following among men than among women who found it a chilly concession to vanity.

"The miniskirt or mid-thigh tunic looks sensational for playwear. It's great for the young and those with great legs," says Helen Saltzman, fashion director at Saks Fifth Avenue. "I don't believe women will be dictated to any longer, and I don't think there ever again will be one length or one style."

"Variety makes sense." Ann Jones, fashion coordinator for Macy's of New York, says: "I don't think we'll see them except in the contemporary department, maybe in juniors, and then just a few for spring and summer."

"I don't think minis are very saleable. They're just not comfortable. The fashion customer wants longer skirts, and we have a hard time selling them if they're not long enough."

And at Gimbel's, another fashion expert says: "Most department stores don't want to confuse customers with skirt lengths at the moment. We're not pushing it, and I don't think the American woman is going to jump for it."

"Of course, young customers will go for anything new and exciting. You'll see plenty of minis at beaches and at parties, but not running around the city — unless women never got out of them like Mary Hartman."

Rita Perna, national fashion coordinator for Montgomery Ward, says the mini is "certainly one of the options on the fashion horizon. But I don't think we should get all excited and think it will replace pants, longer dresses or gauchos."

When confronted by the mini issue, men are predictably enthusiastic, often reminiscing about the magnetic minis they trailed on busy streets, up the escalator and to the filing cabinet.

But in fashion departments around the country, the sentiments are the same: Yes, minis will be about. But not in abundance. And there won't be a stampede.

And they won't be the hard little linoleum-like dresses of the 60s. They'll be longer, soft and flowing.

"We'll have mini tunics, but we think of it only for summer. It's a resort look, not intended for the office and really intended for the young," says Sonja Caproni, fashion director for I. Magnin in San Francisco.

She also sees the full-skirted, above-the-knees dress for late day, saying: "I think women who have nice legs like to show them."

In Dallas, Marsha Barrett, fashion coordinator for Nieman-Marcus says they will be offered for sale. She adds: "Overall, I feel most women will continue to wear skirts just under the knee."

"And the new minis won't be like the old 1965 English micro-minis. Here in Texas we still see a few of those. No, these will be sundresses, cool, loose and light."

And the last word on minis comes from the Daisy boutique in Fargo, N.D. where the skirtlets are about as common as bustles and dirndles: "Not in North Dakota!" says manager Meg Bierbach. "We're too conservative."

Polly's Pointers Handy-dandy hints for household chores

By Polly Cramer

DEAR READERS: Around-the-house repairs have always been an ordeal for many people. Here are a few hints gathered over the years that simplify many chores.

DEAR POLLY — When I could not find a yardstick, I hit on the idea of thumbtacking my tape measure to the broom handle. This worked well, since I wanted to measure from the ceiling down. With the extra length provided by the broom, I did not have to stand on anything to reach the ceiling.

DEAR POLLY — Those who doubt their carpentry skill can use an old comb to hold small nails in position, instead of getting their fingers in the way of the hammer.

DEAR POLLY — To save time, bruised fingers or even an uneven rod, when starting to hammer a curtain rod bracket on to a window frame, use clear tape on it first. Drive in the nails and remove the tape. The bracket does not slip and it is just where you want it to be.

DEAR POLLY — Put several soft paper towels by the telephone before starting a painting project. If you have to answer the telephone while working, pick up a towel and then the phone.

DEAR POLLY — Before storing a hot water bottle, blow lightly in it (after draining) and quickly screw on the top. The air inside will hold the sides apart.

DEAR POLLY — Before driving nails for large picture hooks in the wall, first look and see where the nails for the baseboards were driven in. Nails for baseboards are put in the studs which give support that plaster alone will not provide.

DEAR POLLY — To keep pictures hanging straight on the wall, put a round corn pad on each bottom corner of the back of the frame.

DEAR POLLY — When you write names and addresses in your address book, write the names with ink but the addresses in pencil. Addresses so often change, so you will have a neater book if you follow this Pointer.

DEAR POLLY — When someone borrows a book from me, I remove the paper jacket and write the borrower's name in pencil on it. I keep this. If the book is not returned in a reasonable time, I know where it is and can drop a gentle hint to the borrower.

DEAR POLLY — With five children, sorting laundry and then putting it away used to be a taxing chore. I finally put up a long shelf in the laundry room with the children's names taped on at intervals. Cup hooks were put underneath the shelf to hold coat hangers. Now I just put the clean clothes on the shelf. Each child knows which section is his and they put away their own clothes.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards. Ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of The Register, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana 92711.

GOLD TOUCHES DAYTIME WEAR

Brights And Whites Color Spring Fashion Scene

BY KARI GRANVILLE

Register Staff Writer
Sportswear featuring lots of brilliant, bold color and a total lack thereof — simple unadorned white — is what May Co. department stores will be offering the active fashion-conscious buyer this spring and summer.

Not only women, but men, too, will be decked in a rainbow of colors — red, green and yellow primarily — as the sexes' sporty styles begin to more closely parallel each other.

And, if the department store's seventh annual preview of spring and summer fashion held Friday at the Los Angeles Hilton is any indication, those bright stripes, solids and layered separates will top or accent neutral shades, most often white.

Completing the sportswear scene this spring will be the drawstring look, blouson tops, kangaroo pockets and hooded jackets.

Perhaps the most noticeable trend to come this spring will be a touch of gold for daytime wear. Sparkling gold metallic is being shown in hooded jackets and accessories such as handbags, belts and shoes, again mostly worn with casual white clothes.

Fashion executives for the May Co. have spotted four other up-and-coming trends outside the dazzling sportswear look.

One they have termed "colonial." And, as with sportswear, men's and women's safari-looking fashions lumped under this category will closely relate to each in style and fashion.

Basic khaki completes the adventuresome colonial look. Safari jackets and shirts, shorts, long pants with kangaroo pockets, and split skirts will be worn with heavy boots or work shoes.

Naturals is another spring trend, this one featuring slightly below-the-knee dresses and three-piece suits of cotton or linen. Also included in this category are tops and accents made of dish-rag textured fabric, a new addition to fashion.

The spring ethnic look, moving from darker prints, will have a bright, South Seas tropical look, focusing on oversized floral prints.

Basic styles in this trade winds trend will lean toward the off-the-shoulder look with lots of skin peeking through. Sarongs and strapless dresses will be popular. Tube tops, halters and strapless blouson tops will top tiered and full skirts.

Childlike innocence is captured in the spring and summer trend toward romantic dressing in long and short sundresses. Light and airy, these fashions will feature soft small prints and stark whites trimmed in delicate embroidery, lace and ribbons.

Late summer fashions will focus on black and white color combinations for women.

CAKE ARTIST — Professional cake decorator Frances Kuyper will demonstrate her art from noon to 2 p.m. Tuesday at Moskatel's, Garden Grove. Step-by-step instructions will be given by the master decorator followed by a question and answer period. Door prizes will be awarded during the demonstration.
